Census tells growth rate lag in village

by JOE SWICKARD

A preliminary census report indicates that Arlington Heights' growth rate is lagging far behind village predictions.

The preliminary report, filed Monday with the village, places the village population at 70,997, an increase of 1,794 persons since the last special census in 1972. Village officials had projected an increase of 4,600 residents, based on birth rates, construction of new housing units and annexations.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan said the figures "seem out of whack" and called for the village administration to double check the count through water bills, polling lists and school enrollment figures.

Ryan said the village population projections of between 74,000 and 75,000 residents had been in line with projections of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for water allocations.

"I AM VERY, very surprised at the figures," Ryan said. "It flies in the face of what I thought the development of the village had been."

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the central part of the village has been losing population as children leave home and the older families are not replaced with younger couples with growing families, according to information supplied by the census takers.

Although there have been more than 1,000 single-family homes and 730 apartment units added to the village since 1972, Asst. Village Mgr. Frank Charlton said the census has revealed the density is not as great as had been estimated by village officials.

CHARLTON SAID the village projected 3.9 persons per apartment house and 2.2 persons per apartment unit. The census indicates the rates are actually 2.2 persons per single-family house and 1.5 persons per apartment, he said.

The village has the right to challenge the census figures in writing by Aug. 20. Charlton said a preliminary oral challenge has been filed.

He said the "double checking" through village records is now under way.

"First we find out if the figures are right. If they are, then we see what they mean," he said.

The most immediate impact from the census will be the village's share of state motor fuel and income taxes. The village receives $10 per person from each tax.

THE ADDITIONAL funds will cover the cost of the census — $33,964 — with $2,000 left over this year. The village will get an additional $36,000 annually until the next regular census in 1980.

At least one trustee, Richard Durava, said the preliminary census figures indicate the village should reconsider some of its long range plans.

"We might be able to pull in our horns a little bit," Durava said.

Ryan said it is "premature" to start rethinking long range plans at this point.

"It doesn't represent a tremendous change," he said. "If the figures are accurate — and at this point I'm not ready to accept them as accurate — and are not just a temporary situation, then we might have to start thinking slightly differently."

The slower growth rate is not unique to Arlington Heights or the Northwest suburbs, Hanson said, but is part of a general trend of northern Illinois and Indiana, based on findings of the Census Bureau.

THE EYES of Arlington Heights Memorial Library are upon Texas. Frank Dempsey and Joy Kennedy scout telephone directories from the Lone Star state. The project is part of the North Suburban Library System's plan to acquire all the nation's directories, with each member library taking a state. More than 300 books will be needed to cover Texas and will be available at the library.

Mystery illness probe narrows

Swine flu scare fading: doctor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will never find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water. "We still do not know what it is," he said. "We have been working quite diligently, but we still do not have all the answers."

He said that with the elimination of bacteria-related diseases, the possibilities still to be checked out include the viruses, fungus-type diseases called mycoplasma, and toxic chemicals.

Sencer said some tests have been conducted to determine if viruses such as those that cause influenza were involved. "We have no positive information on the virus connection at this time," he said.

THE VIRUS research was continuing in Atlanta and at the state's laboratories in Philadelphia and Sencer said Wednesday it may take another 24 to 48 hours before any conclusions (Continued on Page 3)

Fast-acting gates add 'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM IS designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

Revised flood plain maps to be challenged by officials

Revised flood plain maps used to determine eligibility for federal flood insurance will be challenged by Arlington Heights officials as "defying common sense."

Trustee Frank Palmatier said the maps show that no buildings in Arlington Heights are affected by creek flooding.

"According to these maps, nobody with a building in Arlington Heights would be eligible for federal flood insurance. It completely wipes out the eligibility for the flood insurance," Palmatier said.

Palmatier, chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding, said the new federal maps are not compatible with village-prepared maps of local flooding areas.

This pair muscles the path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filipponio of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs

many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filipponio, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filipponio said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPONIO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Cowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filipponio were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

Reagan VP pick will help: Totten

Ronald Reagan's choice of Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., as a running mate probably will win him support of some of Illinois' eight uncommitted GOP delegates, State Rep. Donald Totten, R-Hoffman Estates, said Wednesday. Totten, Reagan's chief delegate hunter in Illinois, said some uncommitted delegates have indicated they will support Reagan because of Schweiker. He said he is hoping for a public declaration from "at least two" delegates prior to the Republican national convention in Kansas City. "The Schweiker announcement should be a net plus for us," he said. "We won't lose any as far as I know."

Seniors cry 'discrimination'

Elk Grove Village senior citizens living in their own homes say the new village garbage pickup rates discriminate against them. The senior citizens say they want the same price break given to senior citizens living in the Village Grove Apartments, 1071 Cheekwood Ln. Residents of the senior citizen apartments were exempted for one year from paying a 25-cent increase in their monthly garbage pickup. The increase went into effect for other village residents last month. Milton Brandt, 40 Woodcrest Ln., president of the Elk Grove Park District seniors club, said he represents 50 families seeking the price break for senior citizen homeowners. "We feel the seniors who live in homes are being discriminated against," Brandt said. "We want equal treatment."

Priester seeks to sell Pal-Waukee

Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester will ask Cook County to purchase the facility as a public airfield. Priester said Wednesday he can no longer afford the spiraling cost of operations at the Prospect Heights airfield. He said Pal-Waukee is ineligible for government subsidies because it is privately owned. "Only the public airports get government funding," Priester said. In other developments, the Chicago Area Transportation study has recommended Pal-Waukee be converted from a privately owned to a public airfield to assure its continued existence. "Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned . . . it is in a difficult financial situation," states the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

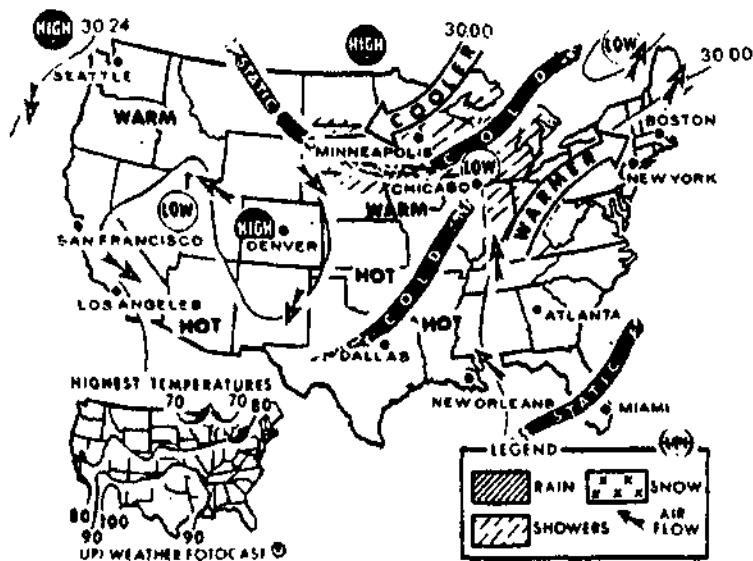

Maine Twp. to hire more police

Maine Township officials are planning to contract for more police protection to the unincorporated areas of the township. The unincorporated area is served by Cook County Sheriff's Police, but complaints by residents about rising crime in the area spurred consideration by township officials for additional protection. The township plans to contract for the additional protection with either a neighboring municipality or off-duty police from the area.

Dead girl's parents file suit

The parents of a 7-year-old girl killed in May by a train in downtown Des Plaines have filed a $1.5 million lawsuit against the Chicago and North Western Ry. The lawsuit was filed by Robert and Barbara McCullough of 734 Laurel Ave., the parents of Kathryn McCullough who was killed May 20 by a westbound commuter train at River Road and Ellinwood Street. Sheldon Grauer, attorney for the parents, said the lawsuit charges the railroad was negligent for not erecting a fence to prevent the child from going onto the railroad tracks. The girl was playing with her brother, who was not hurt, near the tracks shortly before the accident.

NORTRAN's fund emergency over: DiJohn

The North Suburban Mass Transit District (NORTRAN) is no longer in an emergency financial situation, NORTRAN executive director Joseph DiJohn said Wednesday.

Eight of the 21 NORTRAN communities have pledged nearly $175,000 in emergency loans to keep the North and Northwest suburban bus lines operating through Sept. 7.

The money is needed because Regional Transportation Authority funds are unavailable until the Illinois Supreme Court rules on the validity of the RTA budget. The budget was not approved until after June 30, the legal deadline.

A court decision on the budget is not expected until September. Atty. Gen. William Scott has been asked by the court to write an opinion on the case because it could have a far-reaching impact on the state's ability to control the budgets of subsidiary governmental bodies.

DiJohn said with the loans NORTRAN can operate well into September and perhaps longer, if other communities approve emergency loans.

Only 32 identified

Flood toll over 100

LOVELAND, Colo. (UPI) — Search teams, led by "sniffer dogs" often confused by smells of rotting debris, used bulldozers and winches Wednesday in the Big Thompson Canyon to unearth flash flood victims, some buried in mud atop one another.

The official death count was placed at "over 100" by Larimer County Sheriff Bob Watson late in the day. But only 32 victims were identified at makeshift morgues in Loveland and Estes Park at the canyon's west end 45 miles away.

Most of the bodies were mangled, with clothing and articles of identification ripped away in the flood. Refrigerated meat trucks and a garage served as temporary morgues.

Watson said the final toll could be between 150 and 200. However, he said his estimate was only "a guess."

The U.S. Geological Survey said measurements on canyon walls indicated the weekend flood crested at 19 feet — 9 feet higher than previously estimated. Weather service experts said the flood stemmed from a "once a century" storm that hit the northern Colorado Rockies.

Meantime, regional administrator Robert Rosenheim of the Housing and Urban Development Administration said flood damages probably will reach $50 million "based on our experience in Rapid City, S.D., where a 1972 flood killed 237."

Watson speculated a number of bodies were washed past the mouth of the canyon into corn and hayfields around this farm town of 20,000 and "as far east as Kansas." He said searchers expected to find more bodies of children "easily concealed in small piles of debris."

"We found cars wrapped round trees and then cut in two by the force of the water," he said. "Bodies were found in trees, stuck in the mud. They dug one body out and found another one beneath it."

A teen-ager plowing in the mud at the east end of the 35-mile canyon leading to the 14,000-foot high Continental Divide unearthed three bodies.

Seven teams of dogs — bloodhounds and German shepherds — fanned through the canyon to aid search crews in the body hunt. The dog handlers were members of a group that has helped Colorado law enforcement agencies locate missing persons for six years.

After recovery, the bodies were wrapped in paper sheets and taken to makeshift morgues.

RICHARD WELLS, a truck driver who delivered canned foods to the Philadelphia hotel where the Pennsylvania American Legion held its convention last month, is recovering in a New Jersey hospital from the mysterious ailment that has killed 22 persons.

can be reached.

Questioned closely at a news conference about whether the illness could be swine flu, Sencer replied:

"We can't say it is and we can't say it is not." But he added, "As each day passes without further spread, it will make us rest a little easier that it is not swine influenza."

Philadelphia health officers had reported six cases of illness with similar symptoms among people not connected with the convention. But state officials said those cases appeared to be what would normally be expected from respiratory-type diseases at this time of year.

in mystery sickness

PORTLAND (UPI) — A federal disease control expert confirmed Wednesday to Dr. Edward Press, Oregon Public Health Officer, that sabotage is under investigation as possibly involved in the deaths of 22 persons who attended an American Legion convention in Philadelphia.

"We've been concerned about that (possible sabotage), real concerned in a situation as bizarre as this," Dr. Bruce Dull of the National Center For Disease Control told Press in a telephone conversation.

Mobster Roselli
reported missing

MIAMI (UPI) — The FBI disclosed Wednesday it is investigating the disappearance of an alleged underworld figure who told the Senate Intelligence Committee he took part in six CIA attempts to assassinate Fidel Castro.

John Roselli, a reputed onetime associate of slain Chicago underworld leader Sam Giancana, vanished July 28 from the home of his brother-in-law in the Fort Lauderdale suburb of Plantation, Fla.

The FBI declined to disclose the name of the brother-in-law.

Pass swine flu liability bill: Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford said Wednesday Congress must pass immediately a bill letting the government take the insurance risks for swine flu inoculations.

"There is no excuse now to let this program — a program that could affect the lives of many, many Americans — be delayed any longer," Ford said in a letter to the Speaker of the House and the President of the Senate.

"The threat of swine flu is genuine. Data from both the scientific and medical communities support the need for an inoculation program," he said.

Ford said the "major problem" in carrying out his program of inoculating Americans against swine flu is the problem of insurance.

Private insurance companies have said the risk of medical lawsuits is too great for them to handle alone.

A House panel has passed a bill putting federal insurance behind the program and Ford asked the lawmakers to pass that bill.

That bill would assume liability for all damage except that resulting from defective vaccines.

In a related development Wednesday, the Aetna Life and Casualty Co. announced in Hartford, Conn., it would support this proposed approach by providing product liability insurance for the swine flu manufacturers.

Aetna said it notified the Health, Education and Welfare Dept. of its offer by telegram.

Congressional supporters of efforts to free the swine flu inoculation program of insurance problems announced Wednesday they were stepping up efforts to get the program through Congress before next week's recess.

With questions about the Pennsylvania illness' possible link to swine flu unanswered, committees in both houses of Congress called hearings to deal with insurance questions which caused two of the four flu vaccine makers to stop production.

An aide said the House Commerce Committee could send legislation to the House floor by Tuesday, and Sen. Edward M. Kennedy's health subcommittee could get legislation to the Senate before the end of next week, when Congress recesses.

White House Press Sec. Ron Nessen said Health, Education and Welfare Sec. David Mathews told President Ford the next 24 hours could produce identification of the Pennsylvania ailment.

Mathews said 100 million doses of swine flu vaccine are ready and there are plans to immunize residents of Pennsylvania and other areas when Congress clears up insurance problems.

Mathews said on NBC-TV's Today Show, "If we can get past this present impasse . . . then I think we'll be in good shape. I think the best advice I can give is to await results of the (Pennsylvania) tests."

The House bill would let those injured by the swine flu inoculation to sue the government. The proposal was cleared by a commerce subcommittee Tuesday night.

If the government lost a suit, it could return to court to recover damages from the drug companies. The person who gave the shot or any negligent party.

Insurance companies say they refuse to give coverage to the four drug companies making the vaccine. As a result, drug companies say they fear continuing the program.

"There is no way of knowing how much it is going to cost, just as there is no way to know if we're going to have a pandemic (large epidemic)," said the House committee aide, predicting "several million dollars" in claims — nowhere near the $25 billion the insurance industry forecast.

Meanwhile, Philadelphia officials said Wednesday they were more concerned with finding the mysterious ailment that has claimed the lives of 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention than any sagging business.

Two children's groups already have canceled plans to come to Philadelphia and the thrust of a massive media blitz to attract tourism was expected to be blunted.

"I'm sure it will have an adverse effect," City Representative and Director of Commerce Albert V. Gaudiosi said of the illness. "But that's not our concern. Our concern is to identify the cause of these illnesses."

The city has set up a 24-hour hotline to handle questions about the disease and Gaudiosi said, "We're checking out cashiers, elevator operators, anybody who may have come in contact with the conventioners."

CIA releases 59 secret documents

CIA documents released Wednesday show some officials regarded the agency's human experimentation with drugs and chemicals to be "unethical" and "unAmerican." They also show the CIA knew disclosure of the secret behavior modification experiments could trigger damaging public reaction, and say one official tried to stop former CIA director Richard Helms from destroying project records. In response to a Freedom of Information request, the CIA released 59 previously secret documents on the behavior-modification experiments it conducted on humans from 1953 until — according to official statements — 1967. Congressional and presidential commission investigations have already disclosed the agency used LSD, other drugs, chemicals, electric shock and other mind-altering techniques on human subjects who were sometimes aware of what was happening and sometimes not. At least one unwitting subject committed suicide. The documents confirmed the agency began the experiments in the early 1950s as a means of analyzing and combating the "brainwashing" techniques used by the Soviets, North Koreans and Chinese on prisoners of war, spies and dissident nationals.

House rejects Ford coal bill veto

The House Wednesday handed President Ford his 10th veto setback, voting to override his action to kill federal coal leasing reform legislation. The vote, and similar action in the Senate Tuesday, was a major victory for environmentalists who have been attempting for several years to update the 1920 federal coal leasing law. The measure, which now becomes law, affects western states the most where large reserves of coal lie beneath public lands. The 316-85 House vote was 48 votes more than required for the two-third majority required for an override.

Reagan seeks to woo Miss. delegates

President Ford and Ronald Reagan worked on their southern strategies Wednesday — Reagan hunting delegates in Mississippi and Ford entertaining uncommitted delegates from Virginia at the while Reagan had 1,030 and there were 108 uncommitted. Reagan Carolina and Virginia, but his gains were wiped out by a UPI resurvey of North Dakota which showed two previous Ford backers deciding to go to the convention uncommitted. UPI's latest tally showed Ford at 1,121, or nine short of the number needed, while Reagan had 1,030 and there were 108 uncommitted. Reagan and his potential running mate, Sen. Richard Schweiker, R-Pa., flew to Jackson, Miss., in an attempt to reverse a movement toward Ford in the 30-member delegation, which is the largest uncommitted block of delegates left.

Dems to pick Rep. Litton's replacement

The Missouri Democratic State Committee will face the sad responsibility of choosing the successor as Senate candidate to Rep. Although there were some technical questions, the state's election law overseer said Wednesday the state committee appears to be required to choose Litton's successor as the nominee for the seat Democrat Sen. Stuart Symington is giving up. Litton, a 39-year-old millionaire cattle rancher and two-term congressman, was killed with his wife and two children several hours after the polls closed but before the ballot count confirmed he was the upset winner over former Gov. Warren E. Hearnes and the preselection favorite, Rep. James W. Symington, son of the retiring senator.

The Red Cross evacuated under fire another 243 men, women and children from a besieged Palestinian refugee camp Wednesday but called off a rescue operation planned for Thursday because of the small arms fire and shelling. The evacuation — the second in two days — raised the number of wounded brought out of Tal Zaatar to 334. The truce was scheduled to take effect today at 8 a.m. (12 p.m. Chicago time).

Report Ugandan troops kill 5 students

Ugandan troops shot and killed five university students after President Idi Amin's son complained to his father he was being snubbed by classmates and had been threatened, the Kenyan newspaper The Nation said in its Thursday edition. The report coincided with the opening of formal talks between Kenya and Uganda on ending their growing feud and which diplomatic sources said could determine the fate of Amin. In a story prepared for its Thursday editions, The Nation said dozens of students had been wounded and several hundred others had been arrested during a major clash between army troops and students at Kampala's Makerere University on Tuesday. The Nation report could not be confirmed by independent sources.

3 reported killed in S. Africa strife

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (UPI) — South African police opened fire several times with automatic weapons Wednesday into a black crowd of 20,000 trying to march to downtown Johannesburg in protest over the arrest of student leaders. Witnesses said three of the demonstrators were killed.

According to newspaper reports, 18 others were wounded. Police said only 13 were admitted to the hospital and disclaimed any knowledge about fatalities. The Johannesburg newspaper, The Star, quoted witnesses as saying three persons were shot to death.

Heavy police reinforcements in armored cars, firing volleys of gunfire and teargas canisters finally dispersed the angry demonstrators massed on the outskirts of the segregated suburb of Soweto.

The violence started when a crowd estimated at about 20,000 gathered on the outskirts of the sprawling Soweto township, a black enclave of about one million population 15 miles south of Johannesburg, for a planned march into the central city to protest against continued detention of student leaders. Police refused to let them go.

At one stage, the crowds broke through police cordons ringing Soweto. Shouting black power slogans, rioters said they wanted to march "in peace" to John Vorster Square, the police headquarters named after the South African premier.

Police Minister Jimmy Kruger immediately reintroduced a ban on all public meetings until Aug. 31 after lifting an earlier ban last Sunday. He said the latest trouble was started by "activists disappointed that Soweto leaders persuaded school children to go back to school."

2 in bus kidnap case plead innocent

CHOWCHILLA, Calif. (UPI) — Two suspects pleaded innocent Wednesday to charges of kidnapping 26 children and their bus driver from this small farming community three weeks ago.

With guards and rooftop sharpshooters ringing the tiny courthouse and the bus driver, Ed Ray, sitting in the front row, Fred Newhall Woods and James Schoenfeld, both 24, each was arraigned on 43 counts of kidnapping and robbery.

The third suspect in the July 15 abduction, Schoenfeld's brother Richard, 22, who pleaded innocent last Thursday, was also brought to the hearing to ask for reduction of his $1 million bail to $50,000.

His request was denied by Justice Court Judge Howard C. Green, 60, after Madera County District Attorney Charles Hoffman opposed it, citing "the seriousness of the charges" and arguing that the younger Schoenfeld might flee.

Green continued bail at $1 million each for the three defendants, sons of prominent San Francisco area families. He set a preliminary hearing for all three for Aug. 26.

Ray, 33, had said after his escape he would "never forget" one of the kidnapers. Asked outside the courtroom whether he recognized any of the defendants who sat only four feet away, he gave a noncommittal shrug.

Woods and Schoenfeld stood motionless in the packed 61-seat courtroom but showed a flicker of concern when the judge said they could face life in prison without parole if convicted of kidnapping with bodily harm.

The pair, both captured last Thursday, barely spoke during the proceedings, replying only "Yes" or nodding their heads when asked by Green if they understood their rights.

Woods, who sported a cowboy-style outfit when arrested in Vancouver, Canada, wore a dark blue suit and tie for the arraignment. The Schoenfeld brothers wore slacks and open-colored shirts.

Those present in the court included parents and friends of the victims, who dug their way out of a Livermore, Calif., quarry owned by Woods' father after being buried there in a truck for 16 hours.

After the hearing, Woods and the Schoenfelds were remanded to the custody of Madera County Sheriff Ed Bates for a return to the Alameda County Jails east of San Francisco where they are being held.

$14 million lawsuit filed by Teamsters

The Central States Teamsters Pension Fund filed a $14 million damage suit in Chicago Wednesday charging five firms tried to defraud it of more than $7 million in life insurance premiums. The federal court suit charged a complicated scheme among the defendants to guarantee life insurance coverage for 180,000 union members and then use the premiums as "high venture capital" instead of investing it safely. The $1.4 billion pension fund has been under fire for years, accused of making reckless real estate investments, often with reputed crime syndicate figures.

'Bomber' robs bank

A woman who said she had a bomb in her purse robbed the Chicago Federal Savings and Loan Assn. in the city's Loop Wednesday of between $1,500 and $2,000, bank officials said. Martin Paltzer, senior vice president of the association, said the woman gave a teller a note at about 12:30 p.m., saying: "I have a bomb in my purse. Give me your hundreds and fifties." The teller handed over the money and the woman walked quickly from the office, Paltzer said. Police said they are looking for a woman in her 20s and two men in connection with the robbery.

'Daley aided racial woes'

Cops want 'dead' broker

Chicago police said Wednesday they would like to talk to former stock broker Estell Blevins about his identification of a corpse in April as that of himself, but because local officials said they have no reason to look for him, he comes and goes here freely. Blevins granted an interview Monday to Clearwater Sun reporter Linda Parker at his Clearwater Beach condominium apartment, but refused to discuss the circumstances surrounding his disappearance last March. "To talk about (the events) would highly jeopardize the lives of myself and my wife," he said. Blevins has made no great effort to disguise himself and still drives a flashy orange-red sports car with Tennessee license plates registered in his name with an address in Newport, Tenn.

Illinois briefs

Flu shot program delayed 7 weeks

Swine flu immunization will start at least seven or eight weeks behind schedule in Illinois, the Illinois Public Health Dept. said Wednesday. The program was to have begun this month for persons categorized as high-risk individuals, Director Joyce Lashof said. But problems in the testing program and debates over the question of liability for any injury caused by the vaccine have delayed distribution. It now appears the vaccine will not be available from the U.S. Public Health Service until September and that administration will not begin before early October, Mrs. Lashof said.

Millionaire drawing Aug. 20

One of 66 contestants will walk away from the Illinois State Fair Aug. 20 with a patriotic sum of $1,001,776 — courtesy of the Illinois State Lottery. Ten finalists will be chosen by drawing from among the 66 persons who won previous state lottery Bicentennial contests. Those 10 will be assigned a post position in a previously run horse race. The finalist with a post position matching that of the race winner will win at least $50,000 a year for the next 20 years. Second place will win $101,776 while third place wins $21,776, fourth, $11,776 and fifth, $1,776.

3 escapees recaptured

Three prisoners using a saw blade apparently smuggled to them escaped from the Champaign County Jail during the night Tuesday and all were recaptured about four hours after their flight was discovered. Robert Freeman, 21, held for Clinton County on theft charges, and David Dorsey, 23, Champaign, charged with attempted rape, were captured while they were walking along a railroad track where they were spotted by a suspicious citizen. Kenneth Laws, held for return to Tennessee where he had escaped from a state prison at Nashville, was found walking along a county road. Investigators indicated the men had sawed through the bars of their second floor cell and lowered themselves from a window on a rope made of blankets. Their escape was discovered about 7 a.m.

Ticket-writing slowdown rapped

Officials of Troopers Lodge 41 of the Fraternal Order of Police Wednesday urged state policemen to end their ticket-writing slowdown. A representative for the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement, however, said the slowdown had virtually ended even before the FOP statement was issued. Troopers in some areas of the state nearly a month ago began writing fewer than normal speeding tickets in an effort to draw attention to wage increases they said were inadequate. State police officials say the fiscal 1977 appropriation bill signed recently by Gov. Daniel Walker will permit raises of about 4 per cent for experienced troopers.

Grade-crossing panel formed

The Illinois Commerce Commission and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation established a grade-crossing council Wednesday to educate Illinois residents on the dangers of not obeying warning signs at railroad crossings. The council is part of a $13.3 million grade-crossing safety program announced by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday. The council will institute Operation Lifesaver — a program of engineering, education and enforcement designed to reduce train-automobile accidents at Illinois' 16,000 grade crossings. About 66 per cent of Illinois' railroad crossing accidents occur at crossings with automatic warning devices.

Use The Want Ads-It Pays

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester will ask Cook County to purchase and maintain the facility as a public airfield because he can no longer afford the spiraling cost of operations.

Revenues generated from airport services are not enough to pay for maintenance of equipment and runways, salary increases for employees or safety improvements, Priester said.

As a privately-owned airfield, Pal-Waukee is ineligible to receive government subsidies although Priester and airport users pay "enormous annual taxes" to the federal government, he said.

THE 69-YEAR-OLD airport owner said he has no choice but to urge state and county officials to purchase the airport so that it may survive. He said he hopes to begin talks this week, although no date has been set.

The federal government may pay 75 per cent and the state will pay the remaining 25 per cent of the purchase price if the county is willing to take over Pal-Waukee, Priester said.

Priester said he wants the purchase agreement to allow him and his son, Charles, to continue to manage the airport for the next 20 years.

The county could impose a minimal tax to support airport operations but, more important, Pal-Waukee then would be a public airport and could receive government funding, he said.

"Only the public airports get government funding. I've tried to get the people in Washington to change their minds about private airports, but they won't. So, Pal-Waukee isn't going to survive unless it's a public facility," Priester said.

PRIESTER SAID HE has refused to sell the 260-acre site for the construction of a shopping center or homes even though he is under constant pressure from local developers.

"This must remain an airport because it's a major reliever of air traffic for O'Hare Field. The planes would be backed up across the sky if it weren't for Pal-Waukee, and I'm the only one who seems to care," he said. Priester said it's difficult to champion his cause when he's barely breaking even.

About $5 million is generated each year from fuel sales, hangar rentals, flight instruction and other airport services. The annual expenses of operating the airport amounts to at least that much money, he said.

Like most businessmen, Priester is coping with the inflationary cost of labor, equipment and utilities, increasing taxes and insurance rates.

HE HAS SECURED what loans he can from the Small Business Administration and Chicago banks, "but bank officials lend us the money reluctantly, not because our credit isn't good, but because they think I'm nuts for not wanting to sell the airport for other land use," Priester said.

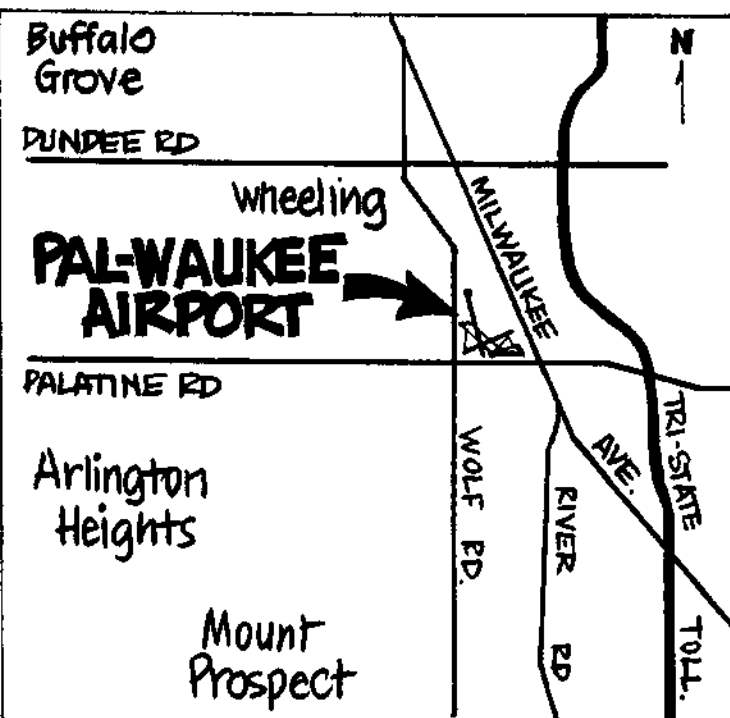

Priester has asked federal and state governments to absorb the airport's electric bill and runway maintenance expenses. He has asked that real estate taxes be applied only to revenue-producing portions of the airport.

"If the government did that for us, they would be providing us with financial relief in the form of about a quarter of a million dollars each year," Priester said.

"That would be peanuts to them, but to us, it would be the difference between going broke and staying alive," he said.

Owners of the 400 aircraft based at Pal-Waukee and of the more than 2,000 planes that fly in and out of the airport each year pay a Federal Aviation Airport Use Tax, he said.

THE TAX APPLIES to the sale of fuel and the licensing of aircraft. It amounts to about 7 cents per gallon of fuel and a varying percentage on the licensing depending on the gross ly upon computations. Ours are based upon actual experience dating back quite a few years. The new maps don't make sense, especially in the McDonald Creek area. They seem to have ignored it entirely," he said.

Flood plain maps to be challenged

The maps determine areas that qualify for the federal flood insurance program, which replaces the granting of federal Small Business Administration loans to cover flood damages. Many village residents received the low interest loans following flooding spawned by the "100 year storm" of 1972.

Before the maps are adopted as official documents by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, they must be the subject of a public hearing.

PALMATIER SAID the maps will be challenged at the administrative level before the public hearing, scheduled for Aug. 31 at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

He said he was hopeful the maps could be "corrected" before the meeting.

If the maps cannot be changed before the meeting, he said, "then we'll go the public hearing route."

$5 towel charge for MacArthur students this fall

Students attending MacArthur Junior High School in Prospect Heights Dist. 23 will be charged a $5 fee for towels this fall.

Students will be required to pay the fee, which is expected to cover the cost of supplying the towels. The school board eliminated the provision for district-funded towel service as part of budget cuts totaling about $10,000 approved in April. The anticipated savings by eliminating towel service was $6,000.

The board had considered charging a $8.50 towel fee with the option of having students bring their towels from home. By making the fee mandatory, Supt. Edward Grodzky said the district was able to reduce the fee.

The board also approved installing parking lot lights at MacArthur as part of life-safety improvements, state mandated requirements for school buildings. The cost of the lights will be $7,218.

Parks get grant for land expansion

A $50,000 land acquisition grant to expand Prairie Farm and Garden Park has been awarded to the Arlington Heights Park District.

The grant from the Illinois Dept. of Conservation will be used to help purchase 5 acres east of the park site at Council Trail and Belmont Avenue, said Thomas Thornton, park district director.

The park will be a working recreation of a northern Illinois farm of the post-Civil War era, complete with crops, authentic farm house, out buildings and barn.

The project is being financed through a special park district museum levy of 5 cents per $1,000 assessed valuation.

St. Simon plans vacation school

St. Simon Episcopal Church, 717 W. Kirchhoff Rd., will conduct a vacation Bible school 9 a.m. to noon Aug. 16, 17 and 19-27. Classes are offered to children 2 years old through sixth grade.

Artist Mildred McManus of Chicago will teach a class Aug. 16, and participants will make a mosaic mural. Material fees are $1.50.

Sale of airport to county sought

Panel urges conversion to public airfield

A report by the Chicago Area Transportation Study group calls for the immediate conversion of Pal-Waukee Airport from a privately owned to a public airfield.

"The possibility of the closure of Pal-Waukee Airport must be taken very seriously, especially considering the large number of aircraft based at the airport and its role as a primary general aviation reliever for Chicago-O'Hare International," states the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

"Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned and, therefore, not exempt from real estate taxes or eligible for state and federal grants-in-aid, it is in a difficult financial situation . . . land values and real estate taxes soar to levels that make it increasingly difficult to maintain and operate a privately owned airport at a profitable level," the report states.

THE REPORT recommends that until Pal-Waukee becomes a public airfield that the following be done:

- A master plan and financial feasibility study for future operation of Pal-Waukee Airport should be made to increase the possibility of obtaining federal and state funding. A local sponsor would be required to conduct the study and partially fund it.

- Municipalities bordering the airport (Wheeling, Prospect Heights and unincorporated Cook County) should consider more compatible land use adjacent to Pal-Waukee. Many homes, apartments and businesses currently adjoin the airport.

- That public funding for privately owned airports be considered in the future by state and federal governments. There are 15 privately owned airports for every public airport, and their continued operation is vital to air safety and traffic, the report states.

The study group, which is an agency of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, outlines the size and significance of Pal-Waukee Airport operation in the 90-page report.

The George J. Priester Aviation Service, Inc., provides aircraft storage, aircraft maintenance, fuel sales, flight training, aircraft rental and a charter service. There are five privately owned aviation businesses also located on the airport grounds.

THERE ARE 400 aircraft based at the airport, and more than 2,000 aircraft land and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

Patrons of the airport say they prefer Pal-Waukee over other nearby airports because of its proximity to Chicago and O'Hare Airport. The airport has a control tower, 5,000-foot runway and an instrument approach landing system for pilots, the study states.

The study states that northeastern Illinois airports, including DuPage County, Chicagoland and O'Hare, could not jointly absorb the current services provided by Pal-Waukee if the airport were forced to close down.

Harper's probe of Lahti actions continues today

A Harper College special committee tonight will continue its investigation of possible violations of college policies and state law by college President Robert Lahti and board members.

The trustees' committee reviewed at its July 27 meeting a statement from Lahti in which he admitted using college safety department vehicles for personal business.

He defended his actions, saying they were in the interest of the college because the alternatives would have taken him away from college business.

The committee also reviewed allegations reported by The Herald that Lahti flew first-class on college business although college policy mandates flying coach.

Lahti told the committee he had flown first-class six times since August 1974 to attend conventions and workshops with board members. There is no policy governing which class board members may fly.

Lahti also told the committee he once flew first-class with an official of the American Assn. of Community and Junior Colleges so they could discuss business during the flight and once flew first class at his own discretion.

The committee has looked into allegations that the board of trustees violated the Illinois Open Meeting Act by holding 24 unannounced meetings in the last 18 months.

At its last meeting, the committee decided to begin writing a report for the entire board during tonight's meeting, which will begin at 7:30 p.m. in Harper's Bldg. A, Algonquin and Roselle roads, Palatine.

Cancer Detection

A spirometry test which measures the vital capacity of the lungs can detect lung damage due to smoking, asthma, emphysema and other lung diseases. This test is offered by the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. in their Cancer Detection Examination.

Of every six people who get cancer today, two will be saved and four will die. Of the four who would otherwise die, one might be saved with earlier diagnosis and prompt treatment. It is estimated that there will be 675,000 new cases of cancer in 1976 and that there will be 370,000 deaths resulting from cancer. (According to American Cancer Society publication "76 Cancer Facts & Figures")

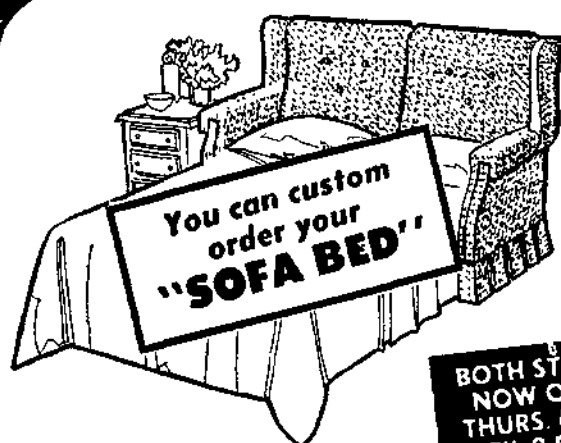

The best defense we have against cancer today is early detection and prompt treatment. A yearly Cancer detection examination is the first step that you should take. The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. offers a thorough low cost Cancer Detection Screening examination including history, physical examination, proctoscopy, chest x-ray, electrocardiogram, blood pressure, laboratory chemistries on blood and urine, pap smear for women, tests for vision, hearing, spirometry, glaucoma, body measurements. Instruction and education literature are also provided.

Give yourself the best protection available against cancer by calling your physician or the Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. today and make your appointment for Cancer Detection Examination. The Northwest Center for Early Disease Detection, Inc. is located at 1000 Grand Canyon Parkway, Hoffman Estates, Ill. Telephone (312) 885-1360.

"There it is," we say as we enter Wilmette and see the lacy dome towering far above the treetops; and our hearts give a little leap. What is it? The Bahai House of Worship, the most hallowed temple ever to be erected by the followers of Baha'u'llah. "The Dawning Place of the Worship of God," solely designated and entirely dedicated to unity in prayer and meditation of all the diverse peoples of the world. Silently, majestically and powerfully it bears witness to the oneness of God, the oneness of religion and the oneness of mankind.

WHEN IT COMES to caring for bodies, Larry Cowan, left, and Rocco Filippone can aptly do the job. They're strong men who lead a rough-and-ready life protecting celebrities who come to town.

the same floor he was on at the Regency Hyatt Hotel where he stayed downtown. We were even with him when he lunched with Hugh Hefner and Barbi Benton at the Pump Room," Cowan said.

And then there was that 12-day stay in May with Frank Sinatra.

"Those older women fans are worse than the teenyboppers," Cowan said.

"Sinatra is a warm, emotional person off stage who even kissed us good-by," he said. "Elton is more standoffish, a little colder."

THE MEN WEAR tuxedos when they work by Sinatra's side. They wore short-sleeved shirts and casual slacks guarding Elton.

"But one thing about both men. They both love what they are doing and they are different people when they get on stage. You see it the minute they are up there. They just sparkle," Cowan said.

It's not terribly difficult being an inconspicuous body guard next to entertainment giants like Sinatra and Elton, he said. But, it's a challenge in any case.

Cowan even was successful in sneaking Elton John into his restaurant last week for a hot dog with everything on it — and no one ever knew.

"We even gave him a Foxie's Restaurant tee-shirt to take with him," he said.

Elton took the memory of a good hot dog with him when he left Chicago Tuesday, but he left behind the muscles that guarded him.

The way we see it

Prospect Heights: a civics lesson

The City of Prospect Heights — thanks to some very dedicated people — is off to a strong start in developing into a well-run, well-organized community.

The newest Northwest suburb, Prospect Heights officially incorporated in January and its elected officials took office May 24. Since that time the city council has devoted most of its attention to laying the framework for Prospect Heights.

Officials began immediate discussions on formulating building and zoning codes; building and plan commissioners and a zoning board of appeals were appointed. A budget was adopted and ordinances were passed to bring state and federal funds to the city.

Council committees were formed to study police protection, road maintenance, construction codes and finances. Until a building code was drawn up and adopted, the council put a moratorium on all construction to safeguard against substandard building. A second moratorium has been placed on consideration of subdivisions until the council approves its zoning ordinance.

The council had the benefit of a great deal of information on the needs of the new city from studies conducted by the Prospect Heights Improvement Assn., the homeowners group that was the impetus behind incorporation. Yet, rather than rubber stamping the PHIA recommendations, the council conducted studies of its own.

In the past months we have seen, however, that there is more to putting a city together than nuts and bolts council action.

Creating a city takes time, energy and the type of personal commitment that the officials and residents of Prospect Heights have shown. For example:

— When money was needed to conduct a special census in the community and the treasury was dry, elected officials voted to take money out of their pockets to pay the costs, interest free. Their generosity was thwarted, however, when the state advised the council this was not proper procedure.

— Officials put out a call for volunteers to man commissions, to do typing, to survey residents on their addresses and help with building cabinets and shelves in the rooms being rented for city offices. Residents responded, and there is a roster of names of available volunteers.

— Until city offices open, the city is being run out of officials' homes. When residents have questions, they call Mayor Richard Wolf, City Clerk Nancy Lambert or their aldermen at home.

— When there is a need for paper — it suddenly appears. When there is cleaning to be done to prepare city offices — officials grab brooms. When a volunteer was needed to handle building permits — a local architect stepped forward.

What is happening in Prospect Heights is a civics lesson in building a workable government. Special interests and political differences have been set aside for the common good.

And that's something to be proud of.

Rumsfeld discovers new purpose for soft music

U.S. Defense Secretary Donald Rumsfeld has picked up the beat of the big bass drum, and it isn't a joke.

In order to mask conversations from possible electronic eavesdropping devices, Rums-feld has started to have background music piped into his office. The music is described as "soft and pleasant."

While defense department officials refuse to say whose idea it was to pipe in music, we think it is a good one.

Officials did say the music merely is a precaution since the offices of Rumsfeld and his senior aides were tested for microwave radiation, sometimes used in electronic eavesdropping, and the results were negative.

Imagine trying to discern a tape recording of a discussion of the big bomb with a boom, boom, boom of the bass drum in the background.

It seems almost like onomatopoeic justice.

Bad taste is doing good business

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The editor of one of the raunchier new girlie magazines was asked not long ago if the success of his publication meant "the golden age of pornography" was at hand.

"It has nothing to do with pornography," he replied. "What we are selling is bad taste."

Perhaps, then, this is the dawning of the golden age of bad taste.

Although no reliable statistics are available, there is no doubt that bad taste is currently one of the most marketable products in America.

The bad taste boom has been underway for some time, as witness such movies as "Pink Flamingos." But it's biggest shot in the arm came from the Bicentennial.

Now it has reached the proportions of light industry. Some economists think it should be included in the Gross National Product. Certainly it is gross enough to qualify.

Rock groups long ago recognized the economic potential of bad taste. Does anyone seriously believe it's the music that attracts 40,000 teen-agers to a rock concert?

Rock fans don't care what the music sounds like as long as the performers are sufficiently meretricious.

Because of this early exposure, today's teen-agers are expected to become the ultimate connoisseurs of bad taste, able unerringly to distinguish true vulgarity from what is merely tacky.

Tackiness is not so much a manifestation of bad taste as an absence of good taste. At times, the dividing line is pretty thin and even experts have trouble telling where one leaves off and the other begins.

Earlier this year, the National Observer published an article on tackiness. Several of the examples it listed clearly transcended the confines of tackiness and spilled over into the slough of bad taste.

If the editors and staff of a national publication don't always know the difference, it is clear that some sort of guidelines are needed.

As a rule of thumb, tackiness turns to bad taste at the point of contact with patriotism, religion, death, sex and bathroom fixtures.

On the National Observer's tacky list were such items as rhinestone harlequin glasses, aluminum Christmas trees, toilet seats of clear plastic with embedded coins, cigarette-stained fingers, mail-order coats of arms, Burt Reynolds in the nude and miniature replicas of the Astrodome in mother-of-pearl.

Items 1,2,4,5 and 6 are indubitably tacky. But a numismatic toilet seat and a bare Burt Reynolds clearly fall into the category of bad taste.

Some day, thanks to rock culture, bad taste will be instinctive and mistakes like the above won't happen. Maybe we won't see it in our lifetime, but it's coming.

Greening of the golf course: is it more important than lawns?

As they participated in the July 24 festivities dedicating the new golf course at the old Army Nike Base, one can only wonder what was going through the minds of the celebrators. For example, were they cheering about the fact that yet another bond referendum will be held, and, until it is passed it will be held again and again, which will result in yet another increase in our real estate taxes?

Or were they wondering, as I am, whether the Park District will water the new golf course only on Tuesdays, Thursdays and Saturdays? Or whether keeping the course green will take precedence over homeowners' lawns altogether?

Indeed, we can only wonder what was going through the minds of the celebrators. Of course, we already have some idea of what was going through the minds of certain officials: "and visions of sugar plums danced through their heads."

Worthy of note

A very warm and heartfelt thank you to Paddock Publications and to staff writer Kathy Boyce from the Bison Band and Instrumental Assn. of Buffalo Grove High School.

Throughout the past school year you have been most helpful in publicizing the band's concert, marching, contest, and now annual pops concert events. Your photo and story coverage of the "Peter Nero Pops Concert" was outstanding.

The Marching Bisons came away from Winnipeg, Manitoba, Canada, and the Manisphere Band Competition with a 1st Place Trophy in Field Marching — an event of which we are very proud. And now with that contest and trip behind us, the summer band program is in full swing getting ready for the coming marching season. We all realize that without The Herald and its fine staff, news of the excellent musical events our young people have prepared would not reach the general public.

Thanks again to everyone who has helped support the Buffalo Grove High School Band's continuing programs.

On Saturday, July 31, my family and I were driving by Randhurst when suddenly my husband went into an epileptic seizure. People driving near us helped in ways too numerous to mention. Many went for help. Some came back to us and helped me calm our children (ages 6 and 9) or assist my husband.

Carson Pirie Scott had a lady employee who was offering to care for the children or help in any way possible. Thanks will never be adequate.

In a time when everyone is supposedly "non-involved" strangers, police and paramedics were immediately deeply involved. Because of these people my husband is alive and well today.

Words will never express the gratitude my family and I feel.

U.S. firms face labor problems in Arab nations

by LEROY POPE

NEW YORK (UPI) — American firms operating in the Middle East find labor shortages in the Arab countries one of their biggest problems, says Rolland B. Guy, a contract specialist at Battelle Institute in Columbus, Ohio.

The labor shortage — for both skilled and unskilled labor — is acute in Saudi Arabia and some of the other oil rich Arab countries having the most lucrative contracts to award.

Guy estimated the unskilled labor shortage in Saudi Arabia alone for the next five years at 500,000 workers plus a shortage of 300,000 skilled workers.

THESE SHORTAGES are aggravated by unproductive local work habits and the absence of machinery. "For example, you still see primitive bucket brigades of 20 or more workers passing cement up four floors instead of a simple engine powered conveyor system," Guy explained.

The Saudis and other Arab nations that are doing a lot of building are having to import labor from their neighbors and from such far away countries as Korea and Pakistan.

But Guy said they are not making the mistake of taking these workers in as immigrants and creating population time bombs for the future. Instead, the imported workers are contracted for specific jobs and are repatriated when the job is finished unless immediately hired by another contractor. One reason for the labor shortage is the unwillingness of many Bedouins to abandon their nomadic life.

Dr. Abdelsalam A. Osman, a retired United Nations official, told a recent Battelle seminar there are other labor problems American companies must learn to cope with if they want to work in the Middle East.

Labor cannot be as productive in the hot climates of those countries as in the more temperate zones, Osman said, and each of the countries has its own social attitude toward work "and no single approach can be used for all."

National housing program extended

President Ford today signed legislation extending a nationwide housing program through fiscal 1977 with provision for $850 million in additional rental subsidies for low income projects. The bill would lower the present interest rate from 9 to 7.5 per cent on loans financing development of rental housing for the elderly or handicapped. It also provides the minimum interest rate for certain rural housing loans. Other provisions of the measure would:

- Ensure mortgages which provide interest reduction payments on behalf of lower income families.
- Authorize $100 million for the rehabilitation loan program which finances home improvements or repairs in slum areas.

Shop safety seminar scheduled

The National Safety Council will conduct a safety seminar for shop instructors Aug. 23 and 24 at its Chicago headquarters. The course is sponsored in cooperation with the American Vocational Assn. Arlington opens play today in Cook County tourney

by ART MUGALIAN

Lloyd Meyer has a very interesting theory, not one that will some day rival Einstein's or Newton's, but a theory that certainly has its importance in the world of American Legion baseball.

Meyer, the long-time head coach of Arlington Heights' lead team, feels that in a double-elimination tourney the two most important games are the first two.

Earthshaking? Not exactly. But cogent it is.

And it has a definite bearing on the future course of Meyer's 1976 squad on the eve of the Cook County tournament beginning today at Northbrook's Meadowhill Park. Arlington opens against the Glenn Maker Post at 1 p.m.

"If we can get past the first two games," Meyer said, "then I think we can put some pressure on the other teams with our depth and our pitching."

"Of course, we could get beaten a couple of times, 3-2, and we'd be out of it awfully quick."

Arlington Heights had a chance to demonstrate its depth, especially on the mound, in last week's three-games-to-two victory over Logan Square in the Ninth District playoffs.

Meyer used six pitchers effectively. He got good starting efforts from Dennis Drolet, lefty Bob Huber, and Kevin McBride. Relievers John Mertins, Todd Walker, and Doug Harth all responded when called on.

In addition to pitching depth, Meyer has more than adequate bench strength to rely on. When regular shortstop Paul Marsillo was injured, Dan Frase took over and did a decent job. Reserve catcher Tony Spinnelle can handle the defensive chores, and the husky slugger has an uncanny knack for delivering key hits whenever he's in there.

Meyer's concern, then, is that his team get through the preliminaries and on to the main business at hand — Sunday's finals. And, of course, that takes a little luck.

Luck has always been a corollary of Meyer's theory — a break or two either way in the opening games can be enough to swing the results. But, as always, you usually have to be good to be lucky.

"This is the best group of guys I've ever had," said Meyer recently. "The most dedicated, the most willing to work. They're great kids."

The Arlington coach has a long and

Lloyd Meyer

Bob Huber

successful record in post-season competition. His teams have captured two state championships and come close on several other occasions. They've won six of the last seven Ninth District titles.

This year's team enters the tourney with a 38-8 record and a co-favorite's berth with powerful Morton Grove. If they win, Arlington will face Morton Grove, recipient of a first-round bye, at 7:00 tonight.

"Morton Grove has the best hitting team, from what I've heard," said Meyer. "So I'm not sure yet who'll pitch the opener. It'll either be Drolet or Huber."

"I want somebody to throw curves and changeups at Morton Grove," Meyer continued. "Drolet has the better curve and Huber has the better changeup. So I really don't know yet."

Marsillo played Sunday against Logan Square and seemed to be back in form after shaking himself up on a double play earlier in the week. He had two singles, three RBIs, and a stolen base in the playoff finale.

When Marsillo is at short and his ex-Rolling Meadows H.S. teammate Guy Tenuta is at second, Arlington is at its strongest — defensively and at the plate. The two speedy infielders are a definite plus at the top of the batting order.

"We've always been able to score runs," said Meyer. "But Marsillo and Tenuta really make things happen for us. And we're good defensively, especially with Marsillo in there."

If Arlington Heights loses the opener, they will play again Friday at 4 p.m.

And if they lose the opener, Meyer will have to start working on a new theory.

BATHING BEAUTY. Double Edge Sword, hero of the $100,000 added Washington Park Handicap in his last Arlington Park appearance, gets a bath from Susan Pearson in preparation for Saturday's $125,000 Golden Invitational.

Foolish Pleasure won't be everyone's favorite

Turf Editor

Foolish Pleasure's anticipated appearance at Arlington Park in the $125,000 Golden Invitational Saturday has created a conspicuous aura of excitement for thoroughbred racing fans.

But beneath the electricity generated by the former Kentucky Derby winner is a dead battery. Local horsemen have offered a cool reception to Foolish Pleasure's scheduled arrival early this afternoon.

They aren't exactly overjoyed at the thought of an invader swooping in for the $75,000 paycheck out of the total prize of $125,000.

Horsemen feel the hastily-prepared race will seriously evaporate their purse structure and diminish the value of weekday races.

There are several avenues of recourse the horsemen — owners, trainers, and backstretch personnel — could take. The most obvious means of objection would be to boycott the entry box, failing to nominate enough horses to fill each race on Saturday.

Track management, however, has assured the horsemen that there is still $200,000 remaining in the stakes account and that the $125,000 Golden would not affect the normal purses.

The race itself is firming into a strong field for runnerup honors. Foolish Pleasure has all but practiced his expected appearance in the winner's circle and will be a ridiculously heavy favorite in the betting interests.

The four-year-old millionaire breezed six furlongs at Saratoga

Race Course Wednesday in 1:12.3 and will be asked to carry only 125 pounds, the lightweight in the field, but one pound lighter than he toled as a three-year-old in the Triple Crown races.

Shooting for second place honors and a $25,000 payoff are Washington Park Handicap champ Double Edge Sword (114 pounds), Festive Mood (115) and Dragset (113) who are scheduled to arrive with Foolish Pleasure today.

Festive Mood is best remembered for his victory in the $100,000 added John B. Campbell Memorial Handicap at Bowie Race Course last winter.

Dragset, who upset a field of stakes horses in the $110,000 Cornhusker at Ak-Sar-Ben on July 5th, earned the triumph by rallying from 20 lengths off the pace in a magnificent stretch run.

Local hopefuls will probably include Sr. Diplomat (110) Famed Comedian (112), Proponent (108), Zografos (110), Yaroo (106) and Pondell (107).

In addition to the Golden Invitational, Saturday's card will be co-headlined by the $75,000-added Round Table Handicap, the originally scheduled stake for Aug. 7.

Probable starters in the mile and one-sixteenth turf event include Play The Red, Bold Laddie, Romeo, Rule The Ridge and One Over Prime.

The double-feature should considerably pad Arlington's average daily attendance of 14,691 and handle of $1,689,964.

And most of it will be plunked on Foolish Pleasure's nose, even at Arlington Park, affectionately known as the "Graveyard of Favorites."

Final qualifying round opens for state amateur

The final of three qualifying rounds for the Illinois State Amateur golf championship will be conducted at Turnberry Country Club in Crystal Lake on Friday, Aug. 6 when 101 players vie for 20 places in the championship proper to be contested at Prestwick country club (Frankfort, Ill.), Aug. 24-25.

The other two qualifying rounds were held at Thorngate country club (Deerfield) and The Rail golf club (Springfield). Thorngate had 186 players competing for 38 places and the Rail had 149 players competing for 30 places. All qualifiers will join the 32 exempt players at Prestwick for the championship.

The State Amateur, sponsored by the Chicago District Golf Association, is open to any amateur with a USGA handicap. Exemptions are given to former champions who are still amateurs, and to the low 30 scorers and ties surviving the 36-hole cut in the previous championship. A record number of 468 entries have been received from exempt and non-exempt players.

Herald area players in the qualifying tournament are Tom Jacobsen, Del Jones, Dick Vandersande and Brent Inman of Schaumburg; Dirk Anderson and Raymond Schuler of Arlington Heights; Brian Brown, Jim Higley and J. Theodore Stone of Palatine; Larry Utley of Buffalo Grove; and Fred Fassnacht of Mount Prospect.

Leaders

Big Ten stars talk about their 1976 goals

by DON FRISKE

A strong connection exists in football between the running game and the passing game. When one works well, the other benefits from it.

It is the job of the quarterback to combine the two, mixing up the plays so that the defense is always guessing.

Northwestern's Scott Yelvington is a leader in the passing game. Ohio State's Pete Johnson is more than effective on the ground and Minnesota's Tony Dungy knows how to combine plays.

The three Big Ten offensive leaders were present at a football luncheon in Chicago and they talked about personal and team goals for the upcoming season.

"I've always been a quarterback," Dungy said. "At first I wanted to be a receiver so I could run with the ball, but I like quarterback now. I like the way our offensive system is set up at Minnesota. We're one of the few teams in the Big Ten that really passes a lot."

One big reason for that is the effectiveness of Dungy as the signal caller. Last season he led the conference with 1,577 passing yards and 1,801 total yards. He completed 123 of 225 attempts for a school record.

"I'm not so much concerned with personal stats," he said. "I used to be, but now I just want to win and try to go to a bowl game."

Dungy has been working extensively on improving the already strong Minnesota passing attack. He said he would like people to say "that guy can really throw the ball."

But he added that personal goals are secondary to the welfare of the team.

"If the team does well, you know you must be doing a good job," Dungy said.

Overall quickness is the strength

Tony Dungy

Pete Johnson

Scott Yelvington

Dungy has used to bring about his success.

"I can't really sit in the pocket so it helps to have quickness. I can run out of trouble pretty well," he said.

Dungy admits that, even though he enjoys passing the ball, the running game is still the most important. At Ohio State, known for its strong ground attack, Johnson provides excellent reason for the Buckeyes to stay away from the pass as much as possible.

He scored 26 touchdowns last season, a Big Ten record, and needs 21 more to set an NCAA career mark.

Johnson's strength is his size. With 247 pounds pressing into the turf, the Buckeyes' fullback is often as big as the defensive linemen he must confront.

"As long as I can keep my quickness, I think I'll do alright," Johnson said. "I think I'm one of the biggest fullbacks around — pro or college. This helps because you have to really heave the defensive linemen."

Johnson is hoping to be the best fullback in the country this year while Dungy hopes to repeat as a leading quarterback.

Being able to rely on a surprise pass at any time will be beneficial to Dungy's success. This is how the passing game is related to the total effort.

Yelvington at Northwestern is a bright spot on the Wildcats' roster. He hopes to be the Big Ten's leading receiver for the third straight season.

He has been working on his moves after catching the ball. He was pleased with his 50 catches last season, but dissatisfied that they only resulted in 686 yards and four touchdowns.

"Over the summer, I've been catching the ball and then running through an obstacle course I set up. This is mostly to strengthen my ankles and legs," Yelvington said.

The Wildcats' flanker admits he is not very fast and that he relies on a keen concentration to pull in passes.

"You have to set some goals for yourself," he said. "One is trying to catch anything I touch. But I wouldn't put any numbers on that. I would also like to lead the Big Ten again, whatever that would take."

Yelvington's ability to catch the football leads Dungy to believe that the two would be a fine combo if on the same team.

"Scott has great hands and I wouldn't have to throw the ball accurately for him to catch it," Dungy said. "Receivers are 65-70 per cent of the passing game. You have to work together with them."

Dungy also considered how another hypothetical situation might work — having Johnson in the same backfield.

"Having Pete would improve any passing game," Dungy said. "Faking to him would help because the defense would have to respect his running ability. This would give receivers more time to set up."

"He'll gain eight or nine yards on first down and then you can come back with a pass. If that doesn't work, Pete can also come back for short yardage on third down."

Yelvington agrees that a good running attack strengthens the passing game.

"Without a strong running game, the defense will key on the receivers," Yelvington said.

Johnson doesn't pay much attention to how he would fit in with any players other than those from Ohio State.

"I'm just concerned with what P. Johnson can do to help our team," he said.

Dungy has the key to the success of any football program. He said a team has to figure out who its aces are and then use their strengths to help the total effort.

At Minnesota, the coaches had to look no deeper than the quarterback position to find their ace.

LARRY BOWA of the Phillies is tagged out at the plate by Cubs' catcher George Mitterwald in eighth inning Wednesday. Bowa tried to score from third when Dave Cash hit to shortstop Mick Kelleher, who threw to Mitterwald. The Phillies won, 7-5.

Sox fall again; could slip into cellar tonight

Look out below. The basement beckons.

The slumping White Sox just may plunge into the cellar tonight without even playing.

If California wins again in Texas, the Sox, who are idle until meeting Kansas City Friday, will slide into sixth place of the American League West.

They moved within one-half game and three percentage points of that unenviable position Wednesday night with a 3-0 loss to Oakland in White Sox Park.

Shoddy fielding behind pitcher Ken Brett broke open a tight game in the seventh inning and sent the A's to a sweep of the two-game set in Chicago.

Oakland held a 2-0 lead in the seventh when an error on a double play grounder and misplayed fly ball helped chase three more runs across. Bill Stein bobbled the infield smash and Ralph Garr and Chet Lemon watched as a fly ball bounced between them in left-center.

This is nothing new for Brett, who has suffered behind poor support offensively and defensively since coming over from the Yankees. Brett has only pitched one sub-par game in 11 starts.

Right-hander Paul Mitchell, who will be 26 years old in a few days, went the route for Chuck Tanner's A's and picked up his first major league shutout. Mitchell yielded six hits in handing the White Sox their 15th shutout of the season.

It was Mitchell's fourth complete game in 20 starts and gave him an 8-5 record.

Bill North scored Oakland's first run, opening the game with a single and coming home on Joe Rudi's sacrifice fly, and batted in a run in the fifth with a double after Phil Garner doubled.

The A's then tallied three runs in the seventh when Gene Tenace singled. Garner was safe on Stein's error. Ken McMillen 'doubled' between Garr and Lemon and, after an intentional walk to North filled the bases. Bert Campaneris singled for two more.

The Sox, who have enough problems, were forced to put catcher Brian Downing on the disabled list Wednesday, retroactive to the injury itself in late July. The situation behind the plate has become so critical that Paul Richards tried outfielder Wayne Northen in that spot for an inning Wednesday night.

When the game was over, owner Bill Veech had the scoreboard explode anyway with a message, "You may never get to see it."

That just about sums up the struggles of the Sox lately, and there's no letup ahead.

Vehe records fastest U.S. mark

Bob Vehe of Mount Prospect pedaled his bicycle 1,000 meters in 1:08.83, the fastest U.S. time ever recorded, to win the one kilometer event in the National Bicycle Championships Wednesday night in Northbrook.

Fred Markham, Los Gatos, Calif., came in second with a time of 1:09.12.

Dale Bergauwan, Detroit, was third with a time of 1:10.33.

In the women's 3,000 meter pursuit, Jane Brennan, Detroit, came in first with a time of 4:23.05.

Susan Schaugg, Sinclair Shores, Mich., finished first in the junior girl's one mile race. Finishing times are not recorded in that race.

Smashes two more home runs

Schmidt powers Phillies to win

They say there's no place like home, but Mike Schmidt might disagree. He thoroughly enjoys Wrigley Field, thank you, and it's enough to drive the Cubs to drink.

Schmidt flexed his muscles for two more Wrigley Field home runs Wednesday afternoon — his sixth and seventh in the cozy confines and 28th and 29th of the summer — to power the Philadelphia Phillies to a 7-5 come-from-behind victory over the Cubs.

The Phillies showed their classy form in this one, methodically shaking off an early 4-0 deficit to gain a split in the four-game set with the Cubs. Chicago staked starter Steve Renko to a comfortable cushion early, but the Phillies squared things by the fifth.

After the Cubs had taken a 5-4 lead in the home half of the fifth, Philadelphia gained another deadlock and then rode Schmidt's seventh-inning homer into a lead it never relinquished.

Schmidt's second homer was a two-run shot after Garry Maddox singled. It came off losing pitcher Joe Coleman.

The Cubs jumped on Phillies starter Larry Christenson for three runs in the first inning. Doubles by Bill Madlock and George Mitterwald accounted for two runs and Madlock scored as Pete LaCock grounded out.

John Summers drove in the fourth run in the second, and Renko was helped in the third when catcher George Mitterwald picked Tony Taylor off second base.

Schmidt homered leading off the fourth and then Renko ran into serious control problems. He loaded the bases on walks and Bowa drove home two with a double. Ron Schuler's sacrifice suicide squeeze scored Tim McCarver to tie the game, 4-4.

Madlock's sacrifice fly put Chicago in front, 5-4, in the fifth, but McCarver picked on a 2-0 pitch for his first home run in the Phillies' half of the inning.

The Cubs wasted a leadoff double by LaCock in the sixth, and Schmidt unloaded in the seventh for Philadelphia.

Jerry Morales had an infield hit for Chicago in the eighth but was stranded, and relief pitcher Gene Garber, now 7-2, got past pinch hitters Rick Monday, Wayne Tyrone and Jose Cardenal in the ninth.

Darold Knowles and Bruce Sutter followed Renko and Coleman on the hill for the Cubs, and Sutter again was effective, allowing no hits and runs in 1 2/3 innings of work.

The Cubs hit the road today for a doubleheader in Montreal, starting at 5:00 p.m. The first game will be broadcast on WGN starting at 4:45 p.m. and television coverage will begin at 7:00 p.m. on Channel 9.

Chicago leaves Montreal Sunday and returns to Wrigley Field next Tuesday, Aug. 10 for a three-game set with powerful Cincinnati.

Chicago architect Rodney Wright wants to explode some myths about solar energy, and he believes a new course at Harper Junior College is one way to do it.

An elaborate technology is being developed around solar heating and cooling systems, but Wright said one of the best ways to harness the sun's energy is the build-it-yourself way.

And that is exactly what he is teaching architects, engineers, contractors and housewives to do in his four-session Harper seminar on solar energy.

For a grand total of $99.71 in materials, the seminar participants construct a solar collector. With 10 or 12 such collectors, the sun's rays could be used to heat a 12,000 square-foot thermally efficient house.

Wright said the collector is quite usable, but "a bottom line type thing." It took only about 2½ hours to construct.

THE COLLECTOR, used to trap the sun's heat, is the basic component of any solar system. Some collectors use water as a heating agent, but Wright said he prefers the hot air systems because they do not leak and require less maintenance.

Wright said most solar collectors can be hooked into existing heat systems, cutting back on the need for electricity of natural gas. He said a hot-air furnace provides the needed fan, ductwork and back-up heating for a solar system.

Wright said when he toured the country last September there were only 200 solar installations. Now there are about 1,000. The most popular use of solar energy is heating swimming pools. More than 10,000 pools are heated by the sun.

The solar energy field is wide open, and the rules of solar heating still are being written. For this reason, Wright said it is difficult to determine the cost of a solar system, although he estimated that it should amount to about $2 per square foot of space. A conventionally engineered heating system would cost about $5 per square foot.

"The simplest solar systems have the least amount of maintenance on them, operate the best and they are the least expensive," Wright said, noting that it is most economical to build your own system.

WITH ALL THESE advantages, solar energy still is not being used extensively in this country. Wright said one reason is the number of myths that continue to surround solar energy.

"The hardware is available," Wright said. "There are two basic problems, and one is exploding the myth about it, which is the climate."

Despite the cold weather in Chicago, Wright said solar heating can provide up to 60 per cent of heating needs in this area. "We get only 200 hours less sunshine than the east coast of Florida," he said, underscoring the feasibility of solar heating in Chicago.

A second problem is that most houses nationwide are not designed to save heat. "We are living with 75 million thermally inefficient buildings in this country," Wright said, noting that previously there had been no need to save heat.

Before a solar system is installed, Wright said every attempt should be made to "button up" the building. He said attic insulation is a must, along with storm windows and storm doors.

"ADDING INSULATION is one of the most reasonable things you can do," he said.

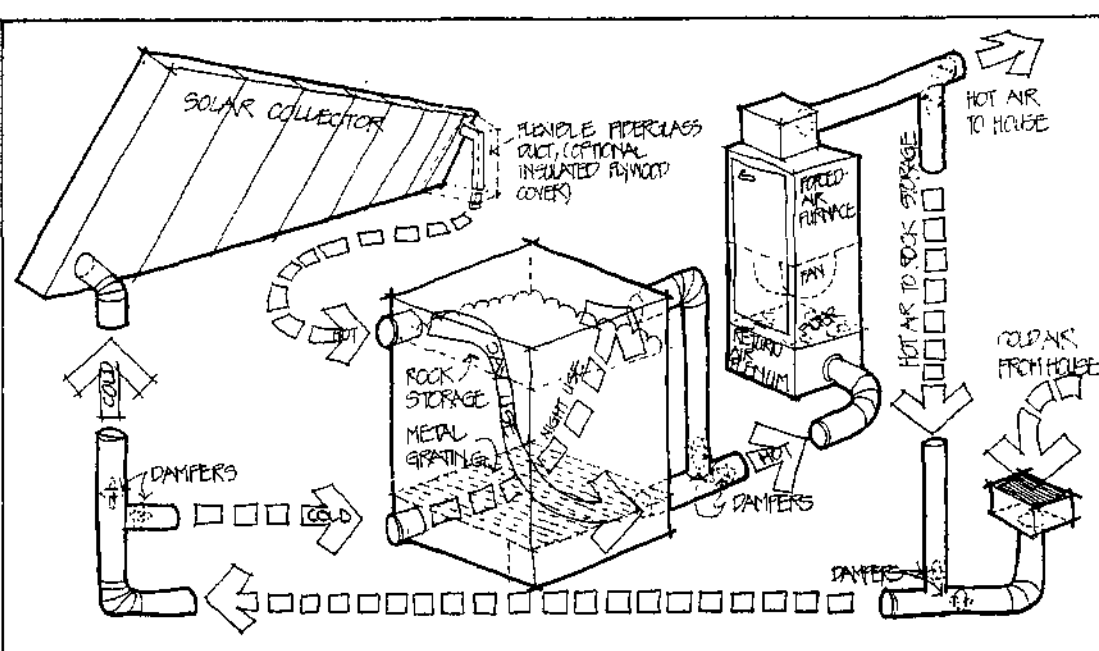

Although a solar heating system may not be less expensive than a conventional system today, Wright said the big advantage to solar energy is security. Noting rising fuel prices, he said, "You have a sense of security out of solar that you will never get out of any other system."

Wright said retirees and persons on fixed incomes are particularly interested in solar energy less and adding solar," he said.

Eventually, scientists say they will learn to convert the sun's rays to electrical energy efficiently. Until that time, Wright said he does not foresee any centralized efforts to harness the sun's energy.

He said each house equipped with its own collectors will be able to produce the heat needed on site. He said substantial amounts of heat are lost if it is transported from a central location.

THE HARPER course began as

A SOLAR heating system hooks into existing heating equipment, with only the collector and rock storage area being added. The rock storage area allows heat to be stored for use when the sun isn't shining.

an experiment in April when architecture students asked for more information on solar energy. A one-day seminar was planned and was so successful that the program was expanded. Two four-day seminars have been conducted since that time and a third is planned.

"The demand for it is there, despite what we say or do," said Joseph Yohanan, coordinator of architecture technology.

Yohanan said persons have become interested because fuel bills are increasing steadily. "It is starting to hit them in an area they understand," he said.

By providing information on solar energy, Yohanan said he hopes to create a market demand for solar heating systems. "You are influencing change, which is important," he said.

Harper already is thinking of expanding its solar energy program to include an advanced seminar conducted by Wright. William Howard, director of community services, said some thought also is being given to establishing a career program in solar heating and refrigeration.

Solar energy testing grant forms accepted by HUD

Applications for a second round of grants to install and test solar energy systems in single and multifamily homes are now being accepted by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development.

Charles J. Orlebeke, assistant secretary for policy development and research, said grants would be made only to builders and developers who marked the homes after they are completed. Funding will not be considered for presold units nor for individuals for their private homes.

The first round of grants for experimental systems to heat and cool homes by solar energy was awarded by HUD in January. There were 48 grants, totaling $963,848, divided among 136 units in 27 States. Winners in the first round are free to compete for this and succeeding rounds.

ORLEBEKE SAID winners will be judged according to criteria printed in the application material. The exact number of grants to be awarded will depend upon the number and quality of applications, available funding and program requirements. Deadline for receipt is Sept. 1. Winners are expected to be announced later in the fall.

Applicants are expected to have already arranged financing, secured land and selected and completed the basic engineering design for their solar system.

Conducted under the provisions of the Solar Heating and Cooling Demonstration Act of 1974, the program is designed to give the housing industry, HUD and the general public practical experience installing, operating and selling solar heating, cooling and hot water systems in many different climates and applications. The demonstration will run through 1979, with at least three more rounds of grant awards expected.

Some 3,000 copies of the grant application forms have already been mailed to those builders and developers who responded to HUD's preliminary announcement in May.

Insurance executive says:

'Mortgage funds readily available'

Mortgage funds are once again readily available — a positive sign for the ever-burgeoning numbers of home seekers, said Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Co., Boston.

According to Goss, "Lenders are now seeking to satisfy home loan demands — thrift institution offers are brimming over — a healthy economy's strong upswing is also a meaningful motivator."

"In fact, in the first half of the current year, cash inflow into the nation's savings and loans neared the $37 billion mark — nearly 22 per cent over totals at the same period in 1975."

Along with the growth of thrift institution funds, other significant indicators of interest to potential home buyers include:

• Savings levels are at a record high. A healthy percentage of this increase is attributed to funds derived from the growing disposable income sector. And, economists point to the growth of savings funds as a positive factor — both for the short and long-range housing industry.

• Market demand for new housing is at an all-time high — with a larger variety of home styles, sizes and price ranges available now than ever before.

Damaged landscape trees, shrubs deductible for IRS

Nonbusiness casualty loss to landscape trees and shrubs is an allowable deduction from personal federal income tax under Section 165 of the Internal Revenue Code, the same as if the taxpayer suffered a loss to personal or residential property.

Under treasury regulations, this allowable deduction is determined by the amount of loss suffered in the value of the property — measured by the difference in value immediately before and after the casualty. Best evidence for establishing this loss is competent appraisal, the regulations state.

The IRS, however, also provides that the cost of repairs is acceptable as evidence of loss, provided the taxpayer can show the repairs were necessary, reasonable in amount, did not go beyond the actual damage suffered, and did not raise the property value above its level before the loss.

Competent appraisal of the damage by a professional in the tree, landscape or nursery industries and "before and after" photos provide the best evidence for tax purposes. Industry representatives urge property owners to keep up-to-date photos of their landscaping for this purpose.

IN MOST CASES a casualty loss is defined as one resulting from an identifiable event of sudden, unexpected or unusual nature. This would include such natural causes as storms, lightning, floods and other "acts of God."

It also includes accidents, vandalism, air and soil pollution, construction accidents and other forms of sudden casualty.

Guidelines for evaluating trees, specimen shrubs and evergreens have been adopted by the major professional organizations in the tree and nursery industries, including the International Society of Arboriculture, American Society of Consulting Arborists, National Arborist Assn., Associated Landscape Contractors of America, and the American Assn. of Nurserymen. These guidelines and standards are widely accepted by insurance companies, the courts and, under certain conditions, by the IRS.

THE 50,000 SQUARE FT. Xonics Inc. facility is in Nardi and Company's Barrington Square Center for industry. The newest expansion brings Xonics occupancy to 72,000 sq. ft. in two buildings in third expansion in four years.

Xonics expansion doubles capacity

Marking its third expansion within four years, Xonics Inc., Hoffman Estates, has doubled its present capacity with the addition of 25,000 square feet of space to its plant in the Barrington Square Center for Industry.

Just one year ago, Xonics, Inc., developers of the Xonics Electron Radiography System (XERG) built a 25,000 square foot facility for the production of a new, revolutionary X-ray system that reduces radiation dosage, provides sharper, more revealing detail and costs less per print. The present expansion brings total capacity to 50,000 square feet of space.

Nardi and Company, Chicago-based industrial realtors and developers, which has handled all of Xonics location and expansion needs in the Center, said total consideration was in excess of $1 million.

Xonics, a multi-million dollar Van Nuys, Calif. firm, originally located in Barrington Square for Industry in 1973 when it moved into an 11,000 square foot portion of a 33,000 sq. ft. building on Stonington Avenue. One year later they took another 11,000 sq. ft. unit in this same building. Additional space was needed almost immediately and work began last June on a new plant that was completed last fall. Continued growth necessitated the need for yet another expansion to the present capacity. Xonics now occupies a total area of 72,000 sq. ft. in the two buildings.

Trees can be evaluated apart from other property

Landscape trees and shrubs can be evaluated in their own right — apart from the singular valuation of property and buildings, according to representatives for the tree, landscape and nursery industries.

Guidelines have been adopted by the professional organizations in the field, including the International Society of Arboriculture, American Society of Consulting Arborists, National Arborist Assn., Associated Landscape Contractors of America, and the American Assn. of Nurserymen.

These guidelines take into account the replacement value of the particular planting as well as its functional and aesthetic features. The basic evaluation formula considers four major factors: the kind of tree or shrub, size, location, and condition.

Professionals in the tree, landscape and nursery industries agree that not all of the same kinds of trees or shrubs have the same value everywhere. Regional differences must be considered along with the individual characteristics of the plant.

Highest value trees and shrubs are hardy, durable, widely adaptable, require little maintenance and are free of undesirable characteristics such as susceptibility to disease. A sturdy branching pattern and pleasant foliage are important as are the added features of flowers or fruit.

A professional plant appraiser familiar with the local plant material and growing conditions can make a competent appraisal of the tree or shrub within the context of the particular growing area.

The size of the tree can affect its value either way, depending on its location and functional benefits. A large shade tree, for example, well-placed within a definite landscape plan, without other trees, can have immense value. Older, large historic trees can become invaluable.

On the other hand, size can detract from value.

The location of the tree, also, is very important in determining its value. A lower-valued kind of tree can be placed in such a location that would enhance its value beyond its individual worth.

Trees growing in woods or in unimproved areas — regardless of their condition or type — tend to have lower values than those on improved properties. Values increased if the trees and shrubs are professionally planted and maintained as part of a landscape design. Trees on public property, such as parks and streets, have a totally different value than those on residential or commercial property.

Even the location of the plantings within a prescribed landscape setting can affect their value. For example, a tree planted close to a home or other focal point has a greater value than one planted further away.

Other factors in location are also considered aside from the aesthetic value. In evaluating various trees and shrubs the functional factors of shade, screening for privacy, noise abatement, reflection and climate control are also considered.

The shade value of a tree can be figured on the total number of square feet of shade it produces. In the event of loss, the cost of restoring this shade value can be estimated.

Also, the screening value for privacy, elimination of unsightly objects, reduction of glare from highways or lights, the effectiveness of wind-breaking action are considered in establishing values.

Balance and symmetry of the landscape design are very important factors in assessing individual plant valuations. The loss of a single plant could destroy an entire landscape plan.

Finally, the condition of the tree or shrub must be considered. Structural weaknesses, disease, crowding and other physical defects will detract from the value of the plant material. Survival conditions for the species as well as its life expectancy are important factors in tree value.

Evaluation of trees and shrubs, as well as appraisal of damage, can be performed by a qualified professional in the tree, landscape and nursery industries. This is especially true for supporting claims for damage or loss from insurance companies, or for tax deductions or for other claims that arise.

NPD expands Woodfield offices

NPD Research, Inc. has leased additional space at Woodfield Office Plaza, near Golf and Meacham Roads, Schaumburg, Illinois.

NPD Research, a tenant in J. Emil Anderson's III Plaza Drive office building since July, 1974, will relocate this August to larger quarters totaling approximately 6,500 sq. ft. in the same building.

NPD Research is a nationwide consumer marketing research organization headquartered in Long Island, New York. Its Chicago branch has been in operation for five years, and the current move is the branch's fifth expansion in that period.

Equal house buying defers capital gains

Everybody, sooner or later, runs across one of them: a "fool-proof" way of making money.

And it's characteristic of the field that a lot of these "surefire" gimmicks involve real estate.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My husband works for an agency whose employees move around a lot, selling homes and buying them at their new station. "All" have made fabulous profits in the past few years.

The prevailing opinion is that it is wise to buy an equal, or higher-priced house to avoid the capital gains taxes on the profit. At the same time, it is the prevailing practice to put the minimum down on this latest home, keeping the excess in the bank and collecting interest on it.

Since this raises their new mortgages tremendously — some as high as $200 more per month — this seems unrealistic to me. They claim the tax advantage of interest on the mortgage makes this practice worthwhile. However, as one wife said to me: "We'll be making payments 'til we are 80 years old."

I might add that we are all within a few years of retirement. In most cases these homes are much larger than these people now need since their children are grown. Which is wiser: staying in a too-large house until retirement and then switching over to one you can pay for in cash? Or, buying that size beforehand and having the amount you are not paying on a higher mortgage to put in the bank? At what point does the capital gains tax come home to roost? — Mrs. P.P. (Ex Paso, Tex.)

About real estate

by Don G. Campbell

ANSWER: You're right in your suspicion that this device (which basically is fairly sound), sooner or later "runs out." Suddenly you've hit retirement with a lower income, a massive mortgage commitment and — as you say — twice the house you need.

What your friends are doing makes good sense as long as they don't go ape in the process and keep buying progressively more and more expensive homes. The capital gains tax can be deferred for years simply by replacing the old house with a new one of equal value.

The best thing your friends can do is ride it out to retirement (age 65) and then take advantage of the once-in-a-lifetime capital gains break, settle up with Uncle Sam and buy a more modest home. There's one catch here: to take advantage of this you have to have lived in the home for five of the past eight years, and if they're as mobile as you suggest, they may not qualify.

Sooner or later, they're going to have to pay the capital gains tax. In the long run have they come out ahead, or would they have done better simply replacing their homes with homes of equal value and investing the difference? Every case is different, but probably they would have done better following the latter course.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

My husband and I recently sold our home which had an FHA mortgage to a cash-to-mortgage buyer. We found another home which we are temporarily renting until our new FHA loan is processed. The problem: FHA says because we are buying another FHA home within 12 months of the sale of the old house, they must run a credit check on the buyer of our home and if their credit is bad we cannot qualify for the new loan!

We realize that should our buyers default we would be responsible for their house payments, but since they did not have to qualify to assume our FHA loan, why should their credit affect our being approved or disapproved? In the event that we do not qualify because of their bad credit, do we have any recourse against our real estate broker for not informing us of this? — Mrs. R. J. D. (Tucson, Ariz.)

ANSWER: It should, indeed have been pointed out to you. In the event that the buyer doesn't qualify it seems to me that the broker should compensate you for the expenses you've incurred (the move to rented quarters). Running the credit check before you got this far would have been ridiculously simple and there's no excuse for the position you now find yourself in.

DEAR MR. CAMPBELL:

I am an elderly lady living alone and I depend on my dog, an eight-year-old German shepherd, for my safety as this neighborhood has gone down so badly. I have a two-year lease on my apartment which was recently sold and the new owner says I can't keep my dog. Can he do this? — Ms. T. G. V. (Buffalo, N.Y.)

ANSWER: No, unless the dog was prohibited in your lease (and apparently it wasn't), the new owner can't retroactively insert such a provision. Like it, or not, he's bound by the existing leases.

Club financing of $7 million set

IDC Real Estate has arranged long-term permanent financing of $7 million for the newly completed Meadow Club in Rolling Meadows. Funds for the project were provided by a national savings and loan institution.

As the most recent addition to the 500,000 sq. ft. Tower office complex, the Meadow Club offers corporate and individual members the finest in recreational and dining facilities. Owned by the Rolling Meadows/Philadelphia Joint Venture Ltd., the 100,000 sq. ft. structure, situated on a six acre site, was designed by the Chicago architectural firm of Holabird & Root.

It includes seven indoor tennis courts and eight lighted outdoor courts along with squash, racquetball and handball facilities. All indoor courts are fully air-conditioned and built to tournament specifications to provide optimum playing conditions. Additional facilities include an indoor/outdoor heated swimming pool, massage and exercise rooms, sauna, whirlpool, locker rooms, pro shop and nursery.

The club opened last month under the direction of Patrick McKenna, full time athletic director. McKenna, along with his professional staff, will oversee operations and offer instruction in conjunction with the club's athletic and health programs.

Dining facilities at the club are expected to open September 1st. They include the main dining room serving both lunch and dinner with live music for dancing each evening, the grill offering service throughout the day, and private dining rooms available for meetings and parties.

The Meadow Club is the fourth building to be completed in The Tower complex which already includes the 10-story Tower structure and two smaller research and development buildings. Located on Golf Road between Route 53 and the Northwest Tollway, The Tower houses the international headquarters or division headquarters for Gould, Inc., Arthur J. Gallagher & Co., Aluminum Corporation of America, CBS Records, Factory Mutual Engineering and Fairchild Semiconductor.

IDC Real Estate is a national service and marketing organization with offices in Chicago, Denver, El Paso and Houston.

In the news

CENTURY 21 ARLINGTON REALTY reported sales volume of $18.8 million in the first six months of 1976, up 47 per cent over 1975 which was a record year for the four-office firm.

The number of real estate transactions handled also increased sharply, from 228 to 337 for the six-month period ending June 30. Only residential sales were included with the average home sales price being $55,660.

Listing activity was just as dramatic with 251 homes listed during the first six months, an increase of 46 per cent over the same period of time.

According to Herb Carl, general sales manager for the 26-year-old company based in the Northwest suburbs, residential sales volume is projected to exceed $35 million for the full year. "This assumes a continuation of availability of mortgage money at attractive interest rates such as has been the case for the first six months," he said, "and at this level we will surpass last year's record sales volume sometime in early August."

CENTURY 21 Real Estate Corporation of Northern Illinois reported real estate sales volume of $329 million in the first six months of 1976, more than double the $141 million reported in the first half of 1975 and in excess of the $308 million reported for the full 12 months of the previous year.

The number of real estate transactions handled by all reporting Century 21 offices in northern Illinois increased at a somewhat faster rate. Transactions in the first half of 1976 rose to 7,080, up 170 per cent from 2,631 recorded in the first six months of 1975. This represented nearly a 25 per cent average increase in the number of transactions handled by reporting Century 21 offices over the period.

In the news

Reviewing the second quarter sales and dollar volume report, Ralph H. Martin, president of WM. L. KUNKEL & CO., Realtors said "although we've enjoyed success in the past I'm happy to report continued growth in the Northwest suburbs."

During the first half of 1976 the Kunkel Co. has totaled nearly $10.5 million in gross sales volume closed, as compared to $8.95 million during the same period of 1975.

Martin said "the addition of our recently formed Arlington Heights office surely has helped us."

Total residential transactions for both offices thus far in 1976 are running 10 per cent ahead of a year ago. Of this half-year total the new Arlington Heights office was responsible for much of the increase, as related by James R. Duncan, executive vice-president and director of the firm's Residential Division.

The combined total of commercial and investment transactions, which is based in the Des Plaines office, during the first half of 1976 has almost doubled after a slow 1975 due to lack of business expansion and the soaring interest rates last year.

ROGER H. EVANS, REALTORS, whose office is located at 309 East Palatine Road, at the corners of Wheeling and Palatine roads, has opened another facility in Wheeling. He is now also located at 925 North Milwaukee Avenue, just north of Dundee Road.

Evans, Realtors is a member of Lake County Multiple Listing Service in addition to MAP and Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors.

Top three sales associates are Evelyn Hines, Ed Joyce and Carol Grimm, all of whom have already surpassed the $1 million figure for 1976 residential sales. All three are with the North Arlington Heights office.

Other office leaders are Betty Kunzweiler (Palatine office), Cliff Johnson (Hoffman-Schaumburg office) and Arne Larson (South Arlington office).

Company listing leaders are Cliff Johnson, Ellen Kucera and Dolores Walz (Hoffman-Schaumburg office), Evelyn Hines, Ed Joyce and Carol Grimm (North Arlington), and Betty Kunzweiler (Palatine office).

THE COLONY APARTMENTS, located at Oakton and Elmhurst roads in Mount Prospect, recently arranged a "Las Vegas" night for its residents. The apartments are a Lincoln Property Co. community. Lincoln also handles the Gatehouse Apartments in Arlington Heights.

JOSEPH F. GEIGER, a resident of Arlington Heights, associated with Alfred A. Eppel & Associates, was among the more than 3,700 members of the Million Dollar Round Table (MDRT), who met in Boston last month for the life insurance sales organization's annual conference. With members gathering from 30 countries around the world, the MDRT meeting is the largest and most comprehensive sales forum in the life insurance industry.

The Million Dollar Round Table is an international association of approximately 12,000 life insurance agents from 33 countries. Recognized by the industry as the top echelon of life insurance salesmen, the MDRT agent must produce $1.25 million of annual sales and meet high professional, educational and business requirements to maintain his membership. It is estimated that less than 3 per cent of the world's life insurance sales force annually qualifies for the MDRT.

HOMEFINDING IS OUR BUSINESS

Fiberglas has many purposes

Fiberglass panels are versatile because of their unique qualities. They are tough, rot-and vermin-proof and light-weight, thus easy to handle. You can saw and drill holes into them. Though they transmit light, you can't see through them. For these reasons you can use them in a variety of ways in your landscape. Two of these ways are shown here.

It's your landscape

by George Creed

In the top sketch panels are used as a partial fence enclosing one corner of a paved area. You can also use them as a divider or windbreak.

Construction of the fence shown in the upper sketch is simple: you only need a saw, hammer and drill. The lumber consists of 2 x 4's and 1 x 1's. Redwood, cedar or some other rot-resistant materials are best since they are long-lasting. In selecting panels consider the color that will be most suitable for the use you have in mind.

If you use redwood or cedar for your framework, you can let them weather naturally or paint them. If you decide on paint, choose colors that will be compatible with those of the panels. It is advisable to paint the framework before fastening the fiberglass panels to it.

To construct: nail framework together and nail one 1 x 1 strip to 2 x 4 rail — upper and lower; place panels and nail remaining 1 x 1's, thus securing the panels. For longer life and greater stability of this structure, it is a good idea to set the uprights in concrete footings.

The lower sketch shows how you can use fiberglass panels to lighten and relieve the monotony of a board fence. In this case you simply nail the panels to the fence rails. Combining fiberglass panels with wood, you can make a variety of pleasing arrangements, alternating wood with panel sections of two or more different colors.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Q. What is the best soil for dahlias?
A. A light, well-drained one enriched, if possible, with well-rotted manure.

Q. Can you successfully grow grapevines in the shade?

A. You can but they probably won't do very well — certainly not as well as they would do in sunlight.

Mall construction on schedule

Downtown Des Plaines will have a new look by March 1977.

Construction of the Des Plaines Mall is the final phase of an intense 10-year community plan for development of the downtown shopping district. Completion is scheduled for late winter of next year.

The mall, part of Superblock, the $12-million project located in the heart of downtown Des Plaines, is on schedule. Phase one, the 10-story First National Bank Building with 185,000 square feet, recently was topped out and is scheduled for completion in November. The second phase of the project began June 29, when ground was broken for the 185,000-square-foot Des Plaines Mall.

An enclosed mall in the heart of the downtown shopping district will be within walking distance for 5,000 Des Plaines residents. The 3,188 commuters from the city and neighboring suburbs can use the 56 trains of the Chicago & North Western Ry. suburban service stopping daily in Des Plaines by crossing the street.

The mall has already acquired its first tenant and anchor store, occupying 22,000 square feet on three levels.

Remodeling cost check invaluable

Four million American homeowners will spend some $3.5 billion in 1976 remodeling their homes, nearly 40 per cent more than the $2.5 billion spent on home improvements just two years ago.

But, warns writer Hugh Hennessey in a new paperback book, "There's Money in Your House," it is by "no means assured that every dollar spent on an improvement program will be returned when it comes time to sell. A home improvement costing substantial sums should not... be done without careful thought."

More than 750,000 bathrooms, 900,000 family rooms/living rooms, and 1.2 million basement/recreation rooms are planned by American homeowners in 1976. For the 68 per cent of American homeowners who anticipate some home improvement project, Hennessey says, "Do your homework. The more you know about the work that is going to be done, the less it's going to cost you. There are three words you should keep uppermost in your mind as you approach a home improvement project: Keep it simple."

Unless you are rich and have a strong sense of philanthropy, it will serve you well to bone up on the work you plan to have done, whether it is electrical installation, painting, or laying masonry, Hennessey said.

"A homeowner improving his property primarily to increase its value should remember that the more visible the improvement, the more likely it is to return dollar-for-dollar on resale. Kitchen and bathroom remodeling, for example, often return even more than their costs, and as a general rule, improvements to the house itself are somewhat better investments than outdoor improvements such as patios, driveways, and barbecue pits."

Throughout "There's Money in Your House," Hennessey urges careful, deliberate planning by the homeowner. "It frequently proves unwise to be over ambitious in making major changes to your home. Most of us have had this impulse checked because it is just too expensive. Such plans as tearing out a structural wall, moving the location of the bathroom and kitchen, can cost substantial amounts of money. Be absolutely positive that you wish to undertake major structural changes and change the basic arrangement of your home."

"There's Money in Your House" was commissioned by Commercial Credit Corporation to assist homeowners contemplating home improvements in maximizing the return on their investment of time, energy, and money. Commercial Credit Corporation, the nationwide consumer finance subsidiary of Baltimore's Commercial Credit Company, provided about $158 million in homeowner loans and second mortgage financing in 1975.

Main street life not in danger of extinction: Goss

"Main Street, U.S.A., has refused to die."

So states Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group, Inc.

According to Goss, doomsayers of the early 1960s were predicting an end to the main street way of life.

But recent IMIC studies show the reverse is beginning to occur.

Some highlights from a nationwide survey include the following:

- Communities across the country are embarking on "recycling" schemes — directed at emphasizing main street color and design also the stylistic identity of older structures.

- Certain towns are placing their renovated main street buildings into a more competitive and convenient framework. Main street shopping malls and "combination" concepts with merged shopping, residential and parking facilities abound.

- Towns such as Williamsburg, Va., Muskegon, Mich., Salem, Mass., Paterson, N.J., Allentown, Pa., Columbus, Ind., Corning, N.Y., and New Orleans are experimenting with various restoration plans at different levels of complexity ranging from Williamsburg's "whole town" theme to Allentown's four-block long Hamilton Street project.

"Main Street is learning to trade on its assets," Goss said.

Of course, he notes, main street projects cannot compete with suburban shopping centers — but in a period of mass production, they offer a welcome change of pace.

"There is no gimmickry involved. Main Street boosters have made a genuine breakthrough with a profitable combination of art, history and business — uniting entrepreneurs and the public in a shared sense of place — and particularly the past," Goss said.

New loan types now can be sold

The Federal National Mortgage Assn. has announced a change in its program under which it will purchase three types of loans previously ineligible for sale to the corporation or eligible only on a limited basis.

Under the new rules, which become effective July 26, FNMA will consider offers from approved seller-servicers to sell both government-backed and conventionally financed single-family loans more than one-year old, loans previously owned by the Government National Mortgage Assn. (GNMA), and loans on which GNMA has paid a price differential.

Previous FNMA policy permitted the sale to the corporation of "old" (more than 12 months old) government-backed loans on a case by case basis, but did not allow the sale to FNMA of any "old" conventional loans. The new policy liberalizes the requirements governing both types of loans. However, statutory provisions limit the number of "old" loans FNMA can hold in its conventional mortgage portfolio to 20 per cent of such loans held.

Certain restrictions will be placed on the older home loans sold to the corporation. For instance, proof of a satisfactory payment history will be required as well as an updated title policy.

Condominium conversion tips offered by Realtor

A steady flow of conversions of apartment buildings from rental to condominium units for sale has many renters wondering how soon their building, or one they are thinking of moving to, will become a conversion statistic.

Although only each building owner can answer that question, there are clues to the potential for conversion.

According to William D. Sally, CPM, vice president and general manager of the property management division of Baird & Warner, Inc., not every building is a good candidate. In fact, conversion can be downright perilous in some instances, according to a recent article by Sally published in the "Journal of Property Management."

According to Sally, the reasons why owners opt for conversion are:

- Some find it difficult to raise rents to keep up with increasing operating expenses.

- Profits are generally larger from selling apartments one by one than they are from selling an entire building at once.

- Rental income can be preserved while selling off the units.

- There is a large market to draw from, especially present renters, and people in other buildings who are being squeezed out by conversions and high rents.

- The tax treatment may be more favorable for those who sell individual units over a period of a year or more than for those who sell the entire building all at once.

- Converting an existing building is generally faster than putting up a new building.

- Converting an existing building is also generally less expensive than new construction.

- Conversion will probably be looked upon favorably by the surrounding community since the more permanent nature of owners is thought to contribute to the stability of property values.

- One who converts an existing apartment building is in a better position than the developer of a new condominium to document operating expenses.

- It should also be easier to sell prospects in an existing building since the building is ready for inspection. A new building may be incomplete with many features only promises.

All of this may suggest to the building owner who is having trouble making ends meet that conversion is a sure way to solve his troubles. "Far are urged to consider carefully and tread lightly before undertaking a conversion."

The first thing Sally suggests is that the property owner determine if his property lends itself to conversion, where both legal and physical changes are necessary.

From a physical standpoint, the real estate management executive advises that buildings to be converted should require a minimum number of changes.

Competitive conditions may dictate having to go to the expense of building an outdoor or indoor swimming pool, tennis courts, and a health club, Sally warns readers.

When considering converting, the location of the building must also be taken into account. "Renters may put up with an inconvenient or poor location because they always can move on. Buyers will usually insist on more, he said.

Another thing building owners are advised to think about is the unit mix. "One, two, and three-bedroom apartments generally sell the best," he advises. Those owners who have large units, such as the old six-to-eight-room apartments and even larger, are advised to consider remodeling some of them into smaller apartments, providing the zoning laws permit this.

A careful look at the present tenant makeup and how likely they are to become owners also merits consideration.

According to Sally, turnover, age, and economic status should be considered. The higher the turnover, the because they cannot afford spiraling fuel costs. "They are building less likely tenants are to stay on as owners. Also, tenants under 30 and over 60 are not as likely to become buyers as are tenants between those ages.

"Economic status bears mainly on the ability to make the downpayment," Sally said. "Many people have incomes sufficiently large to meet the monthly mortgage, tax, and assessment payments, but not enough for the downpayment."

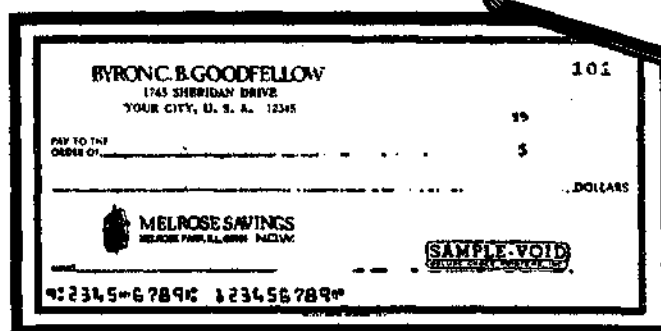

Next, the prospective converter must look into financing to see if he can obtain the mortgage financing for the conversion itself and for buyers.

While contemplating this information, the apartment renter should keep in mind that while condominium conversion has been a popular pastime of building owners, there are still many desirable apartment buildings staying in the rental field, but increased operating expenses are pushing rents upward.

Ask Andy

Sleek cheetah can run 70 m.p.h.

Andy sends the Encyclopaedia Britannica's 1976 Yearbook of Science and the Future to Kimberly Ann Black, 8, of Berlin N.J., for her question:

HOW FAST CAN A CHEETAH RUN?

Of the three big cats living on the plains in East Africa, the leopard is the most feared by man. He is a stealthy, silent predator who hunts at night and is rarely seen. The lion, often called King of the Beasts, is the heaviest and strongest of the cats. But he is also the laziest and relies on teamwork and numbers to bring home his dinner. The cheetah, the lightest of the trio, takes the prize as the swift runner of all land animals in the world. This beautiful, sleek cat can reach speeds of 70 miles per hour.

The cheetah is without question the swiftest runner of all land animals. He can sprint from a resting position to 70 miles per hour — faster than most cars. When he runs, only one paw at a time touches the ground, and his streamlined body and erect tail seem to glide through the air.

As beautiful and effortless as his charges are, however, they are very short. If he charges from more than 200 yards, a speedy prey has a very good chance of escaping. For the cheetah, bursts of speed rarely last more than 20 seconds. Then he must rest for half an hour.

Nearly extinct in Asia, the cheetah numbers only about 2,000 in Africa. The struggle to survive involves constant hunting for food. The female brings up the cubs, usually born in October or November, without the aid of her mate. She hunts for them, guards them and teaches them the lessons they must learn. As soon as they are old enough, they accompany her on hunting trips, following the white tip of her tail in the tall grasses like a beacon. She may force them into the water occasionally, even though they don't particularly like it.

When mother cheetah spots prey she charges while her youngsters watch. They see her trip the animal or knock its forelegs out from under it. Then she seizes its throat and strangles it. The mother and cubs will share the kill leisurely, gorging themselves on the fresh meat. Cheetahs seldom bicker over food like lions. In fact they live together peacefully until the cubs are full-grown and can establish territories of their own.

Unlike lions and leopards, cheetahs do not hunt at night nor do they hoard food. Their meat must be fresh, which is why they hunt so often. Although they are quite efficient bird killers, they never attempt to pull down such adult animals as giraffes, warthogs, hippos or elephants.

Even with his tremendous bursts of speed, the cheetah has far more misses than hits in his daily hunting efforts. If his prey is also fleet-footed, his best chance is to creep unobserved within 200 yards — then make a dash. To survive he must rely on his skill, patience and cunning. His diminishing numbers suggest that perhaps his survival is in danger. Hopefully this will change.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Roy De Benito, 9, of Portland Me., for his question:

WHAT IS A TUMBLEWEED?

Plants are not quite as lucky as animals. If an animal gets tired of the same old surroundings, it can just pack up and move on. Plants, on the other hand, are tied to the same location by their root systems. Not so with the footloose tumbleweed. At the end of its growing season, when the leaves have withered and died and its seeds are ripe, the tumbleweed breaks off at ground level and rolls across the countryside, scattering seeds wherever it goes — much to the chagrin of many farmers and ranchers.

Several plants that grow in the sandy regions of the Western United States are called tumbleweeds. They vary in size from a scant few inches to the bushy, rounded, three-foot giants, and all of them roll in the breeze like giant beach balls, traveling wherever the wind takes them. Their ability to scatter seeds is very important to the survival of the species. If all the seeds fell beneath the parent plant, their chance of germinating successfully would be small.

Hero returns partner's suit

There are two reasons why you should return your partner's suit. The first one is that it tends to keep him happy. The second is that it is usually the correct play.

South won the first trick with the queen of spades over East's jack. He led the 10 of diamonds and let it ride to East's queen.

East looked at his own five-card heart suit and decided to play it. He led the queen. South won and led a second diamond. West did the best he could by playing low, but South played dummy's eight. After that it was a simple matter to play and wind up with two overtricks.

Win at bridge

by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

It only amounted to 60 points in overtricks, since South always had nine tricks after the spade lead, but the game was match points and it meant the difference between a fair score and a bottom for the defenders.

East's play was bad. True, it would have worked if declarer held king-small or maybe ace-small of hearts but the spade return had to be better.

Families use their own rules in money matters

This may be the age of the computer, but the average American family still relies on its own rules of thumb when making most financial decisions.

"And this is especially true when it comes to buying a home," said Jackson W. Goss, president of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a subsidiary of Investors Mortgage Group Inc.

"These rules of thumb," Goss emphasizes, "have changed very little over the years, despite increased job security, unemployment compensation, pension plans, Social Security, insurance and other such benefits."

In fact, lenders today are considering the potential earning capabilities of the home seeker as well as the ability of the family involved to handle future budgetary requirements.

"It's a person-to-person rather than dollar and cents relationship."

"The average potential home buyer today," he adds, "continues to think in terms of paying no more than 2 1/2 times his annual income for a house, which means that the man earning $15,000 a year thinks of a house costing about $37,500."

However, constantly rising costs have thrown some rules of thumb out of whack. Thousands of families, Goss said, are having trouble finding houses whose prices fit their budgetary guidelines. In fact, he adds, the average conventionally financed house today costs from $40,500 to $42,000.

"This means that the $15,000-a-year man has to think more than 2 1/2 times his salary," Goss said.

"But, thousands of young families do not realize that they can actually afford more costly houses. A young family man with a good job and a promising future should be able to think in terms of paying more than 2 1/2 times his annual income for a house," Goss said.

"For most young families in this situation, though, the problem is not the monthly payment, but the initial cash down payment. Thousands of young families could easily afford a house if they once get past the down payment barrier," Goss noted.

He said the rapidly increasing number of new financing programs are helping families obtain conventional mortgage loans with as little as 10 per cent cash down payment.

The surest way to accumulate cash for a down payment is to save — and on a regular basis, Goss said.

"And when it comes to savings, there is another generally accepted rule of thumb. Most S&L executives have advised over the years that a family save 25 per cent of their net income... which would include cash, life insurance cash value, pension plan accounts and real estate equity. The cash portion, they say, should be equal to about six months of net income... a real feat in today's economy."

"However, it is encouraging to note that more and more young families in their first, formative years of marriage are learning to save. About 72 per cent of Americans between the ages of 25 and 34 currently have some form of savings account," Goss said.

About 61 per cent of those in the 35-to-44 age bracket have savings accounts. In the 45-to-54 bracket, the percentage is 57; it is 54 per cent in the 55-to-64 bracket; and 54 per cent in the 65 and over bracket.

Those in the 25-to-34 bracket, Goss said, are saving at a rate of about 1 per cent of net income. The total in the other brackets include: 3 per cent in the 35-to-44 bracket; 7 per cent in the 45-to-54 bracket; 12 per cent in the 55-to-64 bracket; and 15 per cent in the 65 and over category.

"Comparing actual figures and rules of thumb can be difficult because of constant changes in the economy and in family situations."

"But one thing is certain: no matter how the economy fluctuates, the old traditional rules of thumb, as applied to home buying and savings, will continue to be an integral part of the American scene," Goss said.

Detecting roof trouble signs

Learning how to detect the early trouble signs of a "dying" roof can help homeowners save money and aggravation.

According to Johns-Manville, one of the largest manufacturers of fiber glass and conventional organic roofing shingles, a damaged roof that's left uncared for can sometimes cause serious problems beneath the roof surface and also in the attic. This often means costly repairs and related inconvenience.

To help guard against such trouble, Johns-Manville provides a simple checklist to help homeowners tell if their roof needs repair or replacement.

Cracked, blistered or curled shingles may be an instant sign that a new roof is needed. But, never climb up on the roof. Inspect it from the ground or have a professional roofer give an on-the-roof inspection.

Check for a heavy loss of the roof's protective mineral granules. Look for evidence in gutters and downspouts.

If a leaking roof is suspected, inspect the attic the next time it rains. Minor leaks can usually be repaired, but often a leak means the roof must be replaced.

If a roof is relatively new and has suffered limited damage from a storm or falling objects, chances are it can be repaired easily. For example, individual shingles that are damaged or have blown away can be replaced. Loose shingles can be renailed, and leaks around flashing points can be patched.

Society says 'you're through' at 65

SHE LIKES PEOPLE. Eileen Friedrichs, 64, afternoon despite the fact that her husband retired 10 years ago. "I meet so many friendly, interesting people," she said.

"PEOPLE CONTACT" keeps Frank Cambora young; director of Wheeling Civil Defense. Now 67, he work keeps him healthy. As a bank security guard, did not find his own retirement in January 1975 he gives directions to James Nihei. Cambora's also traumatic.

Many oldsters prefer to work but employment opportunities limited

by ELEANOR RIVES

"Most older people have the desire and potential to be productive, contributing members of society. Frankly, they don't want to be put on the shelf. But we live in a society that kisses them off at 65 with a gold watch and a retirement dinner," said John Gianopolos, chairman of the Senior Citizen Commission of Arlington Heights.

Sixty-five. The magic number. One's status changes overnight.

"This year I'm in 'Who's Who,'" said one embittered 64-year-old. "Next year I'll be in 'Who's He.'"

Why 65?

Perhaps because a century ago the Prussian Army retired its officers at 65. But if U.S. industry followed that model, it missed an important feature. The Prussians were smart enough to keep their oldsters around for other active duty.

IN A 1971 statement to the White House Conference on Aging, the American Medical Association said, "Since compulsory retirement and artificial barriers to employment based on age can be prime factors in the deterioration of health, middle-aged and older workers should be afforded equal opportunities with others for gainful employment, based on their personal desires and capabilities."

Two main barriers exist when senior citizens seek full employment. One is the retirement policy of most companies, setting somewhere between 60 and 65 as the age for mandatory retirement. The second is the maximum yearly earnings allowed by the U.S. Government before Social Security payments begin to be reduced. That maximum is $2,760.

Consequently, most older people, if they work at all, either work part-time for minimum wages or work in a volunteer capacity without remuneration.

"SOCIETY SEEMS to think seniors should work for nothing," exclaimed Kathy Stoga, director of the Mount Prospect Senior Citizen Center. "But seniors are entitled to earn money the same as anyone else."

Kathy keeps an employment referral system at the center. On file at present are 42 seniors seeking employment. They include draftsmen, a tool and die maker, accountants, administrators, salesmen, sales promotion personnel, product developers and office workers.

What type of work will be offered them? "Mostly baby-sitting or companion sitting," said Kathy. "Maybe a little office work. Seniors have such good skills, but the type of jobs available fail to use them."

LOUISE ROBERTSON, director of the Palatine Senior Citizen Center, constantly receives requests for older women to work as babysitters, companions or homemakers. She has sent retired nurses to help out in homes where there is a new baby. A few senior men have gotten part-time jobs as cabinet workers, handymen, antique restorers, landscapers, painters and paperhangers.

Gianopolos foresees an umbrella agency assisting seniors in assessing their talents and desires, providing training, job placement and follow-up.

"It could be worked out here (Arlington Heights)," he said. "We could have group discussions, individual analysis, counseling — senior counseling is a neglected area. We could bring seniors back into the mainstream of life, even in brand new careers."

"After retirement — what? What are you going to do with 200 extra hours a month? Can you fish for 200 hours each month?"

IN DES PLAINES, Sam Tapson, senior citizen director, with 32 names on file, is actively pursuing the business community as a source of permanent part-time jobs for seniors. His letter to major employers in the area asks them to use his referral system to fill part-time jobs.

"We have only scratched the surface," he said. "Schools, libraries, the city itself could employ older people. I've faced too many people with incomes you wouldn't want to try to get along on. If they can perform the job adequately, they deserve to work."

In two instances, the village of Mount Prospect employs two senior citizens who alternate with each other to equal the time of one full-time employee. Bill Thoman and Wilford Papenthien each work 20 hours a week in the parts section of the Public Works Department. Thoman works mornings, Papenthien afternoons.

FOR 35 YEARS, Bill worked as a machinist and toolmaker for a large company, retiring at age 60. Then he worked five more years for a smaller outfit. "They didn't exactly ask me to retire, but they made it kind of tough for me," he said.

He left. But Bill isn't one to sit still. So he became a crossing guard. Now he's filling in his summer weeks in Public Works.

"I don't think anyone should be compelled to retire," he said. "It's really a rotten deal. I have seen my friends retire at 65. In six to eight months, they were gone. I buried three good friends before they were 66."

INCOME WAS another consideration. "At the rate things are going up today," he said, "you can't afford to live on Social Security plus the little bit you are allowed to earn."

Another team employed by the village is that of Eileen Friedrichs and Marie Bowler, who alternate half days with each other in the job of

If you're older

Where to look for jobs

The mature or older worker is more apt to find employment on a temporary or part-time basis, and so most temporary help agencies include older people in their listings.

About 10 per cent of the part-time workers registered with West Temporary Service at Woodfield in Schaumburg are past 60. Sharon Beauchamp reports that employers have been completely satisfied with them, with never a complaint. "Job success depends more on personality, no matter what age," she said. "Older people have the advantage of much past experience."

At Stivers Lifesavers at Randhurst in Mount Prospect, June Ross reports that temporary office jobs are available for women past 50, but the field is more limited for anyone past 60. "We have found that older people are so dependable," she said. "We have a 69-year-old secretary out on an assignment right now. The company called her back. We have a few older men registered, mostly with accounting backgrounds."

A PRIVATE TEMPORARY help service that deals with all ages but encourages older people to register is Mature Temps in downtown Chicago. Endorsed by the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP), it has a high percentage of workers in the over-50 category, and some over 65. Job placement is most likely to be in Chicago.

"People over 65 are fantastic workers," said Marilyn Diehl. "Clients call them back time after time."

At the State of Illinois Employment Service, 40 N. Main St., Mount Prospect, Ellen Cooper stated that age is not pertinent to job placement.

"If a person with a specific skill registers with us, we can usually find work for him," she said. "For example, we would have no trouble placing a woman past 60 looking for a clerical job."

She pointed out that there are advantages to hiring mature persons. They are not looking for new, glamorous situations, are more apt to stay on a long-term basis, contrary to what most people think.

"WE CANNOT discriminate because of age," she said. "We are not allowed to specify age on an employment order, only what the worker is qualified to do. Many companies are looking for part-time workers in the older bracket. And if they have certain skills, even full-time jobs may be available."

Senior citizens who desire to work might look into three federally-funded programs administered through suburban Cook County's Office of Manpower Service.

- One is the Skill Training program in which on-the-job or classroom training is given to suburban Cook County residents who have been out of work for seven days, or out of school and have no marketable skill or need retraining of a skill. Those accepted get paid $2.30 an hour while training. For more information, readers may call Mr. Winteringer or Mr. Sullivan at the Intake Center in Mount Prospect, 253-9623.

- A second program is the Manpower Assistance to Underutilized and Retired Employees (MATURE) which provides part-time work experience with non-profit agencies at minimum wages, $2.30 an hour. Persons 40 or older, classified as "low-income," and unemployed for 30 days or more are eligible. Those interested may call Jim Hickey, 296-7706.

- The third program is the Public Service program, which provides full-time jobs with such non-profit agencies as park districts, local governments, school districts, etc. Many of these jobs are taken by older people. To be eligible, one must be a suburban Cook County resident out of work for at least 30 days. More information is available from James Bal-lee at 253-9630.

Monopolies are target for reform

Should business be limited in how big it can grow, regardless of the way it gets there?

This is the issue behind legislation that was introduced in Congress earlier this summer by Sen. Philip Hart, D-Mich.

For several years Hart has been promoting legislation to strengthen the government's hand in curbing monopoly power. Chairman of the Senate Antitrust and Monopoly Subcommittee, Hart had previously written the Concentrated Industries Act of 1971 and the Industrial Reorganization Act of 1972.

These bills sought to break up large corporations that controlled high percentages of a particular market, such as in the cereal, drugs, auto and energy industries.

The legislation defined an oligopoly (a shared monopoly) as an industry in which four firms account for 70 per cent of the market. It would have set a 12 per cent ceiling on the market share any one company could have.

UNDER THE Monopolization Reform Act of 1976, the government would no longer have to prove that a company gained a monopoly through abusive practices and the company could no longer argue, as the cereal manufacturers are, that their monopoly is serving the best interests of the public.

Years of litigative haranguing could thus be saved, and continuing damage to competition in the marketplace be avoided, ac-

by Monica Wilch Perin

According to Hart, An antitrust case would simply and directly address the question of whether the defendant firm has a degree of economic power that "can no longer be tolerated in a competitive economy."

"Let each company strive legitimately to become as big as it can," Hart says, "and when one achieves monopoly power, let it be restructured quickly and its parts, in turn, strive to become big."

As Hart concedes, the whole notion goes against the grain of the American tradition of clawing one's way to the very top. And without this maverick Senator to plead its worth (Hart retires this year) the legislation may never see the light of day again.

MORE ON TRAVELING CONGRESSMEN: Congressional Quarterly has reported that the Illinois Congressional delegation leads the pack in junketing. Of three Congressmen who took six trips in 1975, one was Rep. John Anderson, R-Rockford. Republican Sen. Charles Percy took the most foreign trips of the Senate — five.

But one of the northwest suburbs' Congressmen, Rep. Abner Mikva, D-Evanston, took no trips abroad last year. And Illinois Democratic Sen. Adlai Stevenson took only one trip, to China, and it was paid for by the Chinese. Rep. Philip Crane, R-Arlington Heights, has not yet responded to queries about his travel record.

Meanwhile, Congress is embarrassedly working on some reforms, like publishing its travel log in the Congressional Record for public inspection. In addition the Pentagon has announced it will dry up a little-known source of spending mon-

Cause of Hodgkins disease is puzzling

I would like to know if Hodgkin's disease or cancer of the lymph nodes is contagious? A few magazine articles say it is and it starts with a sore throat that persists even after treatment.

There are a lot of scientists who would like a definite answer to that question. The truth is the cause of Hodgkin's disease has not been definitely established. From time to time it has been thought to be caused by a virus, bacteria or other infectious agent, but further studies have never proved this to be the case.

There are some puzzling features, including the occasional cases of involvement of more than one family member (but who is to say whether that is from some environmental factor or an hereditary predisposition) and more recently a chain of close contacts. Despite these widely reported medical mysteries, none of these interesting observations permit the type of statistical analysis that gives a definite answer.

The problem is more difficult because infectious agents may appear as secondary invaders of the person who already has Hodgkin's disease.

The magazine articles you have read are no doubt interesting but either the articles or your interpretation of them is out of focus with the facts. Hodgkin's disease does not start with a sore throat. Many cases have no symptoms at all and are first found because of the enlarging lymph nodes. Others have a much more typical infectious presentation with fever and night sweats. Since diseases that compromise the body's natural defenses make people susceptible to infectious diseases, of course some do have sore throats and other infections. That does not prove the cause of the Hodgkin's disease or whether or not it, not the sore throat, is contagious.

There are other interesting features of the disease. In the United States the frequency of Hodgkin's disease is greatest between ages 15 and 34 and then again in the over 50 age group. It affects males more than females. About 85 per cent of the children aged 10 or less with Hodgkin's disease are males.

What would you consider the optimum temperature for a whirlpool bath? The athletic club to which I belong recently installed a large one but I find it too hot to be comfortable. Upon inquiry, I was told that the temperature of the bath was 105. I find myself wondering if there is any medical value in subjecting oneself to such a high temperature.

The optimum temperature depends on who it is optimum for. Some discreet inquiry unearths the point that other people find such high temperatures used in many health clubs uncomfortable. But the club benefits as people don't stay in them too long and the whirlpool can then service more people. So it is an optimal temperature for the club — not its members.

While heat relaxes muscles, surface heat before it penetrates merely warms the skin or may even burn it. Wet bulb temperatures of more than 85 degrees Fahrenheit are uncomfortable and even unsafe for sustained physical activity. When you are in water, you cannot get any benefit from vaporization to cool the body. As a result internal heat will build up fast if the water temperature is high. I see no reason for a whirlpool bath with a temperature in excess of body temperature, specifically above 98 degrees.

For information on effects of bed rest, send for The Health Letter 6-6, Effects of Inactivity Including Bed Rest. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with 50 cents for it. Send your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

Coating in dishwasher may be lime deposits

Dear Dorothy: When one of the children failed to clean food from the dishes properly before putting them in the dishwasher, I decided to wipe out the interior of the dishwasher. The entire area was covered with a chalky material. It wiped off with soap and water. Will this material harm dishes, glasses and so forth? Could it be paint and possibly a health hazard? — Nancy Ewing

Most likely it's a lime deposit. It's tricky trying to offer advice on this type of thing because all dishwashers vary to some degree and water often varies in hardness even in one area. Generally, deposits form because the water is hard and one needs a rinse conditioner. You should have the people who service your machine check the water temperature. To operate properly, the temperature should be in the 140-160 range. In hand washing, the hottest people can tolerate is between 110 and 120. Hot water alone may solve the problem. If not, the rinse conditioner could be the next step.

Dear Dorothy: How can I keep ants off my clothesline? They come every year at this time. — Mrs. W. O. Zant

Look for an ant hill in the area and pour boiling water over it. If you can't locate the hill, try some of the remedies used inside homes. At the base of the poles sprinkle any one of the following: red pepper, table salt, oil of sassafras, powdered cloves, borax, crushed mothballs — even cucumber peel.

Dear Dorothy: Can I use potato starch to thicken meat gravy? — Joyce Rankin Absolutely. Some people like it better than flour for gravy.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 230, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Meet Claude, coleus king

An eminent plant explorer stopped in Chicago over the weekend. If you've never met a plant hunter, perhaps you might visualize an Errol Flynn-type who hangs over cliffs in the Himalayas to lift botanical gems or trudges through rainforests in hip boots.

Claude Hope, of Cartago, Costa Rica, says that the early plant developers were indeed daring men who did that sort of thing and often contracted jungle diseases, eating plant kernels to keep alive.

But the modern-day plant explorer does his hunting in the laboratory and the greenhouse. Finding and developing new plant varieties is a matter of plant breeding, not glamour and high adventure. Hope has found few goodies in the rainforest suitable for his purposes: survivable and productive.

CLAUDE HOPE considers his most important contributions to the horticultural world to be the development of the red petunia and the modern-day coleus and impatiens.

The evolution of Hope from a Sweetwater, Tex., farm boy to the owner of a 40-acre Latin-American greenhouse spread called Linda Vista, and the supplier of the lion's share of the hybrid petunia, coleus and impatiens seeds to this country is an interesting one.

One of 12 children, Hope was 10 or 11 years old when he planted his first package of flower seeds — of which a single plant survived. But it was enough to spark an interest in growing plants, and the boy soon was scanning the Burpee catalog in between milking cows and hauling manure. Before long, he scraped up the money to buy more packets of zinnia seeds.

by Mary B. Good

GRADUATING FROM Texas Tech with a degree in horticulture, young Hope landed his first job at a cotton experimental station in Arizona, doing all sorts of things there, including digging ditches when the occasion prompted. Later, he went to Michigan State on a scholarship to study plant exploration and introduction, but never got his master's degree because another job offer, this time with the U.S. Department of Agriculture, lured him away.

He first laid eyes on Costa Rica when sent to that country by the War Department as a first lieutenant to take charge of a nursery for the production of quinine.

Thirty-six years old, with no family ties and free to take a chance, Hope elected to stay in Costa Rica after he completed his service stint and with one acre of land lent him by an American couple, launched a modest endeavor which was one day to become the famous Pan-American Seed Co.

HOPE FORMED a partnership with an old classmate, Charles Weddle, today acknowledged as the originator of the Peter Pan zinnia. Weddle sent Hope seeds to work on. But the seeds were not productive, and Hope began trying substitutes that he thought might be as good or better than the ones Weddle was shipping him. Eventually he developed our present-day red petunias and two yellow petunia varieties.

"Petunias were not a remarkable plant in the '30s," Hope said. "They were not my favorite flowers, but I learned to like them."

A very modest and patient man, Hope credits timing and luck for his own astounding success. He says he owes the development of the Saber coleus, for example, to a fortunate cross, which was preceded by disappointments and followed, too, by frustrations.

IT HAS TAKEN 11 years for Hope to develop the latest, and in my opinion, the most exotic coleus ever to be introduced. Before very long, probably next year, gardeners will be able to buy and grow this stunningly unusual coleus in their flower beds.

Next time you take a stroll in your garden and look at the impatiens there, think of Claude Hope. Chances are — unless it is the "Imp" series of impatiens — these seeds, too, probably originated with Claude Hope. The still-unmarried Claude Hope, a happy and fulfilled man, he says, having achieved what he set out to do: improve petunias, impatiens and coleus. But there is always more to do and he is working on the development of bet-

Donation dropoff station information may be obtained by calling the chairman, Margaret Moehling, 634-3836 or the co-chairman, Gloria Giesel, 824-2506.

The auction will be held at 841 Lee St. beginning at 10 a.m. Tuesday, Aug. 31.

Monopolies are target for reform

by for traveling Congressmen.

DESPITE THE fact that Congressmen get a $75 a day allowance in foreign currencies from the State Department, they have tapped their military escorts for thousands of dollars to pay for hotels, restaurants, liquor and even golf green fees, and pocketed their per diem.

This arrangement grew out of a 1953 Congressional authorization for the Defense Department to provide Congressmen with transportation and "other assistance."

But under new regulations the Defense Department says it will pay expenses only beyond the $75 per diem, and will audit and make public these expense records. The department will also no longer pay for entertainment and other non-travel expenses.

The Washington Post reported that three staff members of the House Post Office and Civil Service Committee who were planning their fourth trip abroad in five years canceled it upon learning their military escort officer would pay none of their expenses.

Jobs for seniors limited

switchboard operator and receptionist.

"I believe anyone who is capable and wants to should be able to keep on working," said Eileen, a former secretary with some switchboard experience. She loves being busy, meeting so many people each day.

And though her husband retired 10 years ago, Eileen, at 64, intends to go on working as long as she can.

THE RECENTLY appointed director of civil defense in Wheeling, Frank J. Cambora, 67, felt no resentment about leaving a large Chicago corporation after working there 42 years. He recalls with pleasure the huge dinner with 200 people present that heralded his Jan. 1, 1975 retirement.

By August, he was working as a security guard at the Wheeling Trust and Savings Bank.

"Retirees and senior citizens must remain active, must keep their minds busy to maintain good health," he said. "I like being busy. I enjoy life."

"The minute I sit down in a rocking chair, I might as well call the undertaker."

HAROLD WOLLENHAUPT of Schaumburg says he has retired at least 20 times in the last 20 years. He was in the automotive electrical business, in hardware, in electrical appliances and in real estate sales.

Now, at 78, he holds down two jobs, putting in about 37 hours a week. Since he is past 72, he doesn't have to limit his annual income to $2,760 to keep his Social Security check from being reduced.

As one of 30 Outreach workers employed by the Suburban Cook County Area Agency on Aging, he puts in 15 hours a week at the Northwest Opportunity Center in Arlington Heights. The rest of his working hours are spent at a custodial job in a condominium complex.

"Retirement to me is a drag and a bore," he said. "If my time is not occupied, I get lazy, sloppy, fat. When you have no exercise, no schedule, moral decay sets in. I'm opposed to mandatory retirement for anybody — man or woman. Besides, I like the jingle of that cash register."

He thought a moment. "Everyone needs to be needed by someone else," he said, "even if the pay is peanuts."

THE NATIONAL Council of Senior Citizens is opposed to mandatory retirement, as are the American Association of Retired Persons and the Amalgamated Clothing Workers Union.

But perhaps the people most vehement in their objections are the Gray Panthers, a national network of activists who seek an end to ageism — discrimination against persons because of their chronological age. They have pledged their efforts to end all forms of age discrimination in employment and to restore to the older worker the right to decide when to work and when to cease working.

A person, then, could be barred or removed from his job only for demonstrated incapacity to perform the duties required.

Law changes being sought

Proposals affecting mandatory retirement and earnings restrictions are being considered both at federal and state levels of government.

The Age Discrimination Act of 1960 prohibited dismissing a person between the ages of 40 and 60 from his job because of age. U. S. Rep. Paul R. Findley, R-20th, introduced an amendment to that act, knocking out all age limits and eliminating mandatory retirement. The bill is in committee.

U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, has introduced a bill asking that restrictions on Social Security earnings be removed.

House Bill 128, banning mandatory retirement in the State of Illinois, was introduced by State Rep. Alan J. Greiman, D-Skokie. Passed the house, it was defeated in the senate. Greiman will re-introduce the bill at the fall session.

ter philodendron, gerberas, kalanchoe, polka-dot plant, (browallia) ornamental peppers and a cross between an asparagus sprengeri and an asparagus meyeri. He has already invested three or four years in the gerbera breeding, which he considers a very important garden plant of the future — exceeding petunias in popularity, perhaps. He sees at least five more years of work in the gerbera project. At 69, Hope is beginning to look for a geneticist-plant breeder-horticulturist successor to take over his sprawling 40 acres under glass, along with its 800 employees.

After reveling in the hundreds of thousands of seedlings and flowering plants surrounding Claude Hope in his visit to one of the Chicago area wholesale seed firms to which he supplies the seeds, one can't help but comment: Imagine what God could do if he had money!

PORK: perfect for perking up your outdoor menu

By the time midsummer rolls around, outdoor menus may be a bit monotonous. All that's needed is a fresh approach — and pork can provide it.

Pork offers a variety of grill choices — blade steaks, kabobs, ham slices, sausages and rotisserie roasts, as well as chops and ribs. All cuts are especially delicious when served with fruits.

For a meal with pizzazz, feature stuffed pork chops and curried peaches. A tasty bread-cream cheese-olive mixture fills the pockets in the thick chops, while curry sauce glazes them as they broil over the coals.

A variation is provided with meaty country style ribs and a spicy fruit cocktail sauce. A hot potato salad goes well with this outdoor meal.

Super Stuffed Pork Chops

- | | |
|--|-------------------------------------|
| 6 pork rib chops, cut 1 1/2 inches thick | 2 teaspoons lemon juice |
| 1 small onion, chopped | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 3 tablespoons butter or margarine | 1/4 teaspoon pepper |
| 1 package (3 ounces) cream cheese | 2 cups toasted 1/4-inch bread cubes |
| 1 can (2 1/4 ounces) sliced ripe olives, chopped | Salt and pepper |
| | Country Curried Peaches* |

Make a pocket in each chop by cutting into the chop with a small, sharp knife on rib side parallel to the surface of the chop. Be careful not to cut through the opposite side. Lightly brown onion in butter or margarine. Remove from heat. Add cream cheese, olives, lemon juice, salt and pepper, stirring to combine. Stir in bread cubes. Fill pocket in each chop with approximately 1/4 cup stuffing, distributing evenly. Place chops on rack in broiler pan (or on outdoor grill over ash-covered coals) so surface of meat is 5 to 7 inches from heat and broil 10 minutes; turn and broil 10 minutes. Season chops on both sides with salt and pepper. Brush top side with the syrup from curried peaches and continue broiling 10 to 15 minutes or until done, brushing with the syrup and turning occasionally. 6 servings.

Jamaican Pork Ribs

- | | |
|--|----------------------------|
| 4 to 5 pounds pork country style ribs* | 1/2 cup brown sugar |
| 1 can (30 ounces) fruit cocktail | 1 teaspoon salt |
| 2 tablespoons rum | 1/2 teaspoon garlic powder |
| 2 tablespoons lime juice | 1/2 teaspoon ginger |
| 1/2 teaspoon grated lime peel | 1/2 teaspoon cloves |
| | 1/4 teaspoon pepper |
| | 1 bay leaf |
| | Salt and pepper |

*Have retailer cut meat into single rib portions or crack the back bone so ribs can be cut apart. Drain fruit cocktail; reserve syrup. Add rum, lime juice and peel to syrup. Combine brown sugar, salt, garlic powder, ginger, cloves and pepper in small saucepan. Stir in reserved syrup and bay leaf; bring to boil and cook slowly 10 minutes. Remove bay leaf and add 1/2 cup sauce to the fruit cocktail. Place meat on grill, 5 to 7 inches above ash-covered coals, and broil at low to moderate temperature 30 minutes. Turn meat, season with salt and pepper and broil 30 minutes; turn and season. Brush ribs with sauce and continue broiling 30 to 50 minutes, or until meat is done, turning and brushing with sauce occasionally. Heat fruit cocktail 5 minutes, stirring occasionally; serve with meat. 6 to 8 servings.

Note: 1 can (30 ounces) sliced cling peaches may be substituted for the fruit cocktail, if desired.

*Country Curried Peaches

- | | |
|--------------------------------------|------------------------------|
| 1 can (29 ounces) cling peach halves | 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon |
| 2 teaspoons tarragon vinegar | 1/4 teaspoon poppy seed |
| 1 teaspoon curry powder | 1/4 teaspoon salt |
| | 1 teaspoon grated lemon peel |

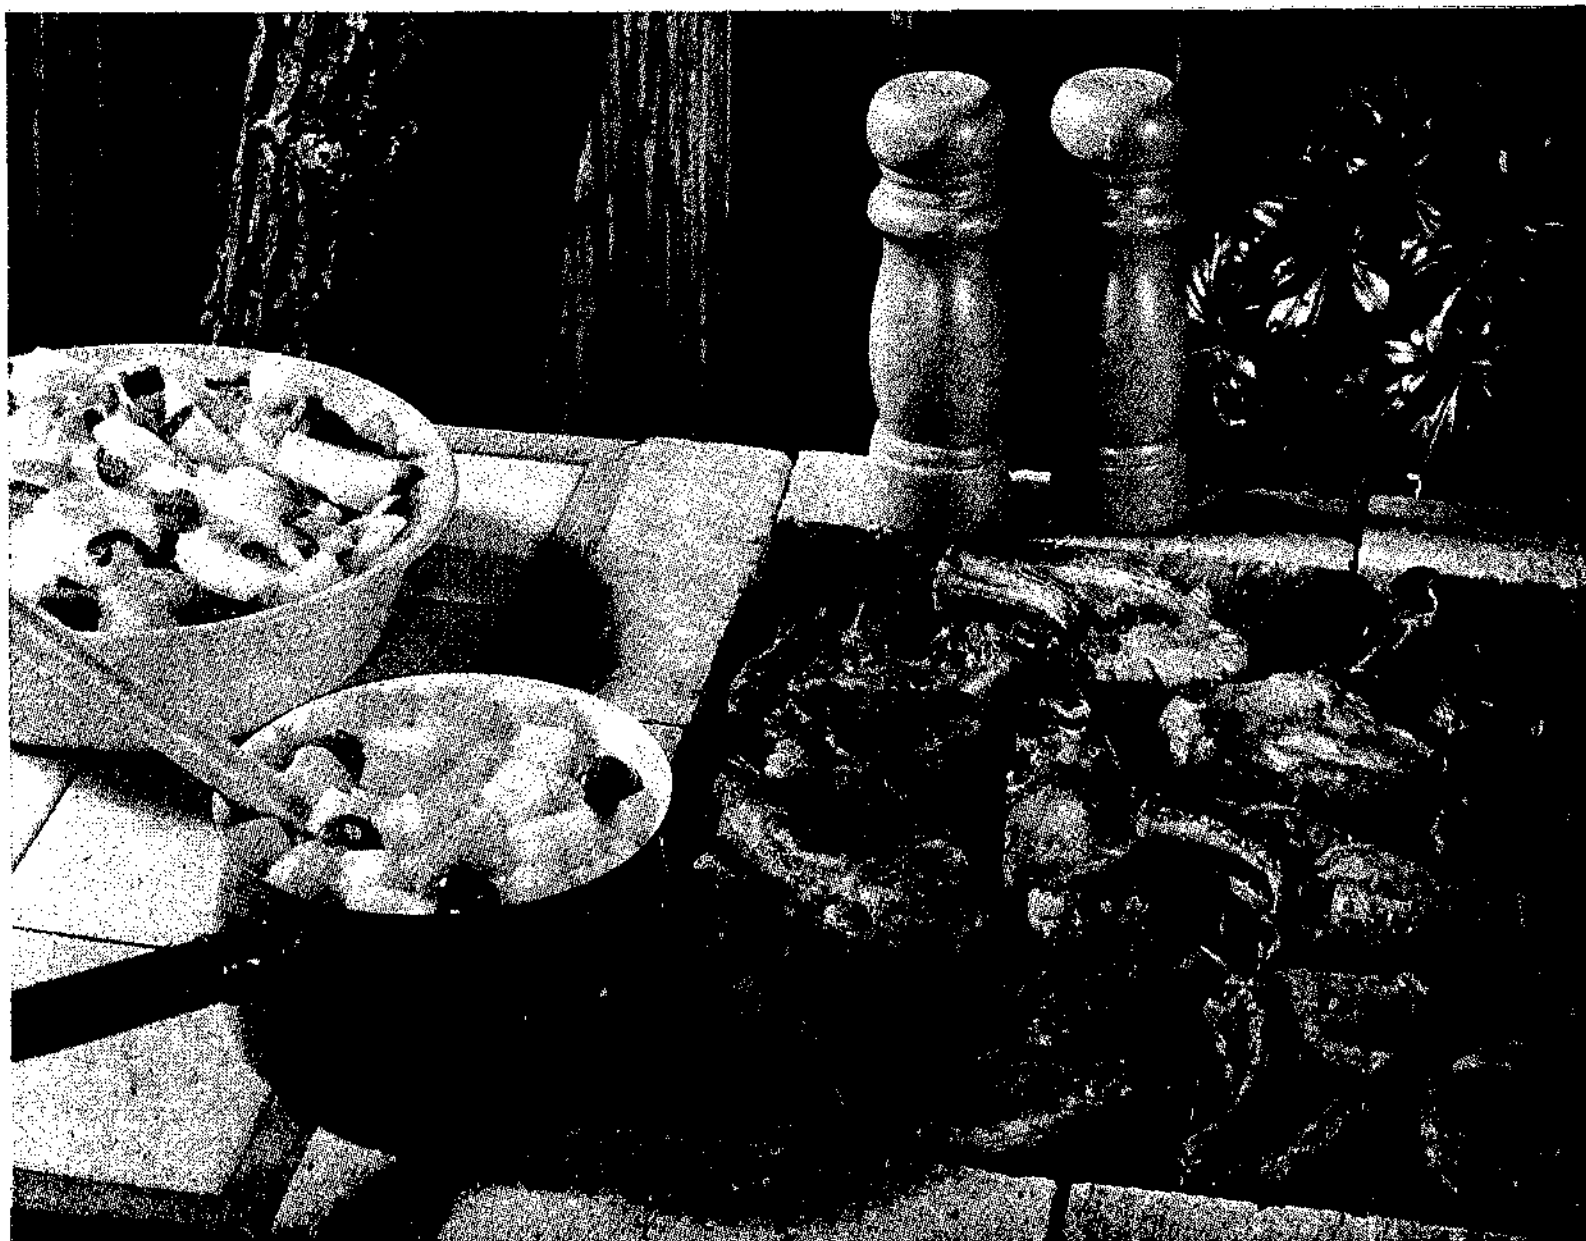

Drain peaches; reserve syrup. In saucepan combine syrup, vinegar, curry powder, cinnamon, poppy seed, salt and grated lemon peel; heat to boiling, stirring to combine. Add peach halves, heat to simmering.

Serve hot, or place peaches and syrup in covered container in refrigerator overnight. Serve cold or reheated.

Hot Potato Salad

- | | |
|---|--|
| 6 medium-sized red potatoes (2 pounds) | 1/4 cup sliced green onions (including green tops) |
| 4 to 6 slices bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces | 3 tablespoons diced green pepper |
| 1/2 cup white vinegar | 2 tablespoons pimiento strips |
| 1/4 cup sugar | 1/4 teaspoon paprika |
| 1 teaspoon salt | 2 hard cooked eggs, sliced |
| 1/4 teaspoon pepper | |
| 1/2 cup thinly sliced celery | |

Cook potatoes in skins until tender. Panfry bacon until crisp; drain on absorbent paper. Reserve 2 tablespoons drippings in frying-pan. Add vinegar, sugar, salt and pepper and heat, stirring to dissolve sugar. Pare and slice hot potatoes; add bacon, celery, green onions, green pepper and pimiento. Pour hot sauce over vegetables and mix lightly until ingredients are evenly distributed. Turn into heated serving dish, sprinkle with paprika and garnish with egg slices. Serve warm. Makes 6 to 8 servings.

Arleen Grossman

She cooks up winning desserts

A chocolate mousse and Key Lime Pie, specialties of Arleen Grossman, Palatine, are winning recipes for elegant summer desserts. Her mousse received a blue ribbon at Aviva Pioneer Women's Taste and Tell luncheon, and the pie has always won accolades from guests.

The winning ingredient in the rich chocolate mousse is rum. A plain cookie goes well with the light, creamy mixture, and Arleen sometimes spoons the mousse over slices of pound cake.

Another creamy favorite is one Arleen, a native of Miami, Fla., grew up with. Her Key Lime Pie, made from a recipe handed down from her mother, is comparable to pies served in the Florida Keys. It's yellow with a pudding-like texture.

THERE ARE ONLY three ingredients in the filling and Arleen saves time by using a prepared graham cracker crust.

Ideal for this Bicentennial Year is Arleen's Red, White and Blue Gelatin Salad. Made in an oblong pan, it has a red raspberry layer spread with a creamy white middle layer and topped by blueberries molded in black raspberry gelatin.

Pretty in appearance, it's a favorite of Arleen's to serve for luncheons or backyard cookouts. Because it is not too rich or sweet, it goes well with barbecued chicken, spareribs or hamburgers.

Arleen and her husband, Ken, have two young daughters, Good and Welfare chairman for Aviva Pioneer Women, Arleen bowls with the club's league and takes golf lessons.

CHOCOLATE MOUSSE

1/2 pint whipping cream
5 eggs, separated
2 tablespoons water
1 (6-ounce) package semi-sweet chocolate bits
1/3 cup sugar
1/2 teaspoon vanilla
2 tablespoons dark rum
In a small bowl, beat cream until stiff, refrigerate.

Beat egg yolks slightly and set aside.

Combine water, chocolate bits and sugar. Stir together over low heat until chocolate is melted. Beat chocolate mixture, vanilla and rum into egg yolks gradually with an electric mixer. Mix thoroughly.

With clean beater, beat egg whites until stiff. Fold into chocolate mixture until all whites disappear. Fold in whipped cream.

Turn into a 1 1/2 to 2-quart bowl or into parfait glasses. Makes 6 cups or 12 servings. Garnish with a whipped topping, if desired. Refrigerate 6 hours or overnight.

KEY LIME PIE

2 (14-ounce) cans sweetened condensed milk
2/3 cup fresh lime juice
4 egg yolks
1 9-inch prepared graham cracker crust

In a small bowl, combine all ingredients, mixing well with electric beater. Pour into crust and chill overnight. Garnish with a non-dairy whipped topping or whipped cream. Serves 6 to 8.

Got a question? Get an answer.
Ask Andy every day in The Herald.

A CHOCOLATE MOUSSE, delicately laced with rum, is an elegant summer dessert specialty of Arleen Grossman, Palatine. She sometimes serves the mousse over pound cake for less formal gatherings.

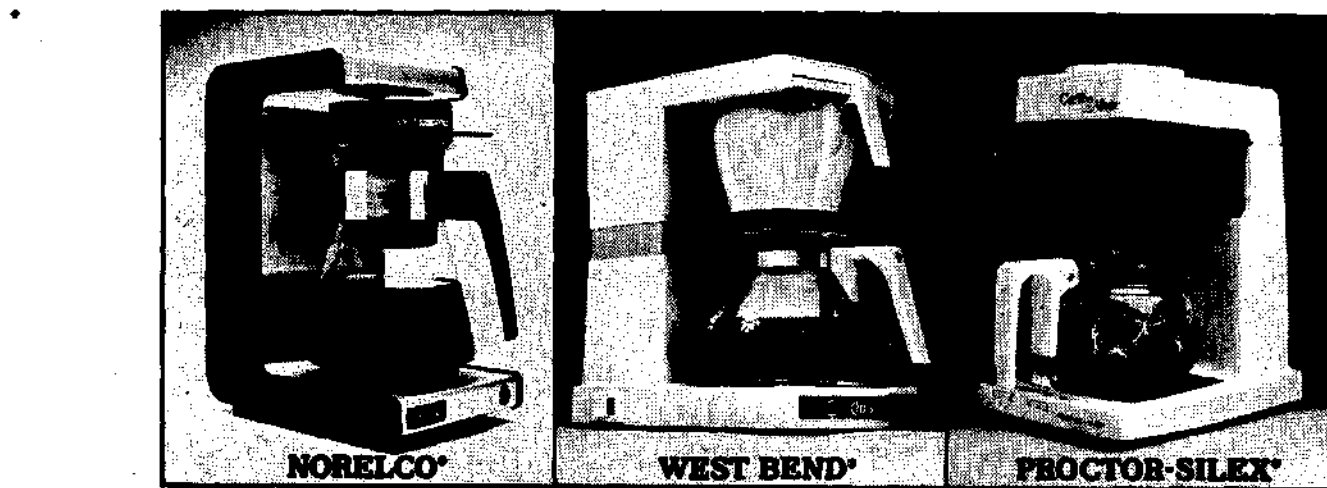

Summertime fruit sandwiches

Summer fruits, just plain good for out-of-hand eating, also make terrific sandwich fillers. Blend diced fresh peaches into cream cheese, spread on whole wheat bread, top with a layer of sliced strawberries and a second bread slice and you've got a sandwich elegant enough for any luncheon.

Chop fresh cherries and stir into sour cream with bits of candied ginger to spread over raisin or white toast.

Or try mustard-spread white bread, topped with thin slices of ham and juicy nectarines. Close sandwich with another bread slice spread lightly with celery seed dressing.

Make a feast fit for gourmets

The usual picnic and ballpark fare, sandwiches, need not be boring or usual. A little extra time and some decorative care make a sandwich into a feast.

Remember to keep the sandwiches cold until ready to pop into an ice chest or some other cold-food container. Meats and mayonnaise should not be left at room temperature for more than an hour or so since they spoil easily.

CUT THE DECK SANDWICH

- 2/3 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon lemon juice
- 1 tablespoon horseradish
- 1/2 pound lean ground beef
- 1 clove garlic, minced
- 4 ounces feta or blue cheese crumbled (about 1 cup)
- 1/4 cup cooked artichoke hearts, quartered
- 1/2 cup sliced pimiento stuffed olives
- 1/2 cup diagonally sliced celery
- 1/4 cup sliced red onion
- 1 round loaf firm type bread (1 lb.)

In large bowl stir together mayonnaise, lemon juice and horseradish.

In a small skillet crumble ground beef, add garlic. Cook over medium heat, stirring occasionally, until beef is cooked. Drain. In a medium bowl stir together cooked beef, cheese and 1/3 cup of the mayonnaise mixture. To the remaining mayonnaise mixture add the artichokes, olives, celery and onion, toss to mix.

Slice the bread in half horizontally; then slice each half again horizontally. Spread the vegetable filling on the bottom slice, top with the next slice. Spread the meat mixture on the third slice, cover with remaining slice of bread. Place meat sandwich on salad sandwich to reassemble loaf of bread. Use 4 skewers to secure loaf. Cut loaf into six wedges. To serve, take loaf apart making 1 meat and 1 salad sandwich per serving. Makes 6 servings.

CHEF SALAD SANDWICH

- 1 cup mayonnaise
- 3 tablespoons finely chopped onion
- 1 tablespoon chili sauce
- 1 tablespoon sweet pickle relish
- 1 hard cooked egg, chopped

- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 pound sliced, cooked roast beef, cut in julienne strips (1 cup)
- 1/2 pound sliced Muenster cheese, cut in julienne strips (1 cup)
- 2 cups torn spinach leaves
- 4 large onion rolls, split
- 4 green pepper rings

In large bowl stir together mayonnaise, onion, chili sauce, relish, egg and salt. Add roast beef, cheese and spinach, tossing to coat. Place 2/3 cup filling on each roll. Garnish with green pepper ring. Makes 4 sandwiches.

BALL PARK HERO

- 1/2 cup mayonnaise
- 1 tablespoon dried oregano leaves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/4 teaspoon pepper
- 1 (3-foot) loaf French or Italian bread, split lengthwise
- Lettuce
- 1/2 pound thinly sliced boiled ham
- 1/2 pound thinly sliced Swiss cheese

- 1/2 pound thinly sliced bologna
- 1/2 pound process American cheese slices
- 1/2 pound thinly sliced Genoa salami
- 2 medium tomatoes, thinly sliced
- 1 medium onion, thinly sliced
- 2 tablespoons red wine vinegar

Stir together mayonnaise, oregano, salt and pepper. Spread on bottom half of loaf; line with lettuce. Arrange in layers ham, Swiss cheese, bologna, American cheese, salami, tomato and onion. Sprinkle with vinegar. Cover with top half of loaf. Cut into desired lengths for serving. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Note: If desired substitute 2 (18-inch) loaves French or Italian bread. Cut one end off each loaf; split lengthwise. Prepare as directed above, making sandwich on 2 bottom halves joined together.

History traced by food

In the constant search for ideas for this column I come across some fascinating books. One is "Food In History" by Reay Tannahill (Stein and Day). It is a short history of the world from prehistoric days to the present times, not from war to war, which is the way we're used to getting our history, but from the development of one food to another.

It is a story of primitive attempts to eat grain and bake bread. It attributes the fall of Greece, not to war, but to bad farming practices.

I didn't know the fall of the Roman Empire was due partly to the crushing welfare th-system that, at time, had one-third of the population of the city of Rome (320,000 people) living on free bread. I wonder if Phil Crane has read this book?

THE ROMANS suffered from severe lead poisoning since they had an unfortunate habit of cooking their food in lead-lined or pewter pots. They also clarified their wine with a syrup boiled in lead pots. This poisoning gave off a strong metallic taste that caused a never-ending search for more spices and stronger sauces.

They used a sauce, Liquamen, on almost everything. It was made by layering mackerel and salt in a barrel and placing the barrel in the sun long enough to ferment the raw fish. They drained the resulting liquid from the bottom and poured it over the fish again. The result was a thick, pasty sauce.

Ms. Tannahill observes, "Clearly, it was an acquired taste." Well yes, I guess it was.

She also tells of droughts, plagues and famines that hit Europe between 800 and 900 A.D. Cannibalism was rampant, giving rise to legends of vampires.

The working woman cooks

by Joyce Zeller

THE BOOK, rich in information about early cooking techniques, ranges from medieval "frumenty" (a grain soaked overnight and eaten uncooked) to the elaborate banquets of Victorian England.

Salting preserved most meat and the biggest problem early cooks had was to get rid of the salt. Thick cream sauces became popular because of their salt-absorbing properties.

Middle age cooks pounded everything, it seems. Often there was a serf in the kitchen whose job was to pound things. One recipe calls for pounded dates, figs, almonds and fish.

There was one recipe for chicken that I thought might be fun to adapt to modern cooking. The directions read something like "pound ye fine as ye may almonds and cook ye with shreds of chicken in milk."

NOW, I DON'T know about you, but I have precious little time for shredding a chicken, so I threw the whole thing in the slow cooker. If you're going to go in for pounding almonds, do it in a plastic bag so you don't get them all over the place. I suppose you could chop them, but pounding is kind of fun. It certainly gets the family away from the TV set and out into the kitchen to see what's going on.

What you will end up with is a cramed chicken with a rich sauce flavored by toasted almonds. Delicious! Just the thing for summer's tired appetites.

Ye Olde Chicken
5 ounces unblanched almonds
1 chicken fryer, cut up
1 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon pepper
1 chicken bouillon cube
1 1/2 cups milk
Water
2 tablespoons enriched flour
1/4 teaspoon curry powder
Vegetable oil

Pound half of the almonds finely. Place chicken, pounded almonds, salt, pepper, bouillon cube and 1/2 cup milk in a slow cooker. Cook on low at least 4 hours, or up to 8 hours.

Remove chicken and separate meat from bones. Measure sauce in pot and add water to make 1 cup. Thicken with flour; add curry powder, deboned chicken and remaining 1 cup milk. Cook until smooth. Taste for salt and add more, if desired.

Chop remaining almonds and saute in a little oil until golden brown. Drain and stir into chicken mixture. Serve. It can be made a day in advance, refrigerated and reheated. Serves 6.

Carrots aren't just for nibbling

If your garden is busting its boundaries with a bumper crop of carrots, ease the problem with some surprise dishes for family eating. Carrots are great nibbles, and when shredded make a flavorful fresh carrot pudding. Just add some fresh orange juice and rind and a touch of dill.

Carrots also add a pleasing taste and texture to corn muffins and potato pancakes. Once you savor this plentiful vegetable in new combinations, you'll invent a few of your own recipes using carrots.

FRESH CARROT PUDDING

3 eggs, separated
1/4 cup sugar
1/4 cup fresh orange juice
1/4 teaspoon salt
1 teaspoon grated fresh orange rind
1/4 teaspoon dried dill weed or 1 teaspoon snipped fresh dill
3 cups shredded raw carrots (6 large)

Beat egg yolks with sugar until light and fluffy. Gradually add orange juice. Stir in salt, orange rind, dill and carrots. Beat egg whites until stiff but not dry; fold in. Turn into a buttered one and one-half quart casserole. Bake in 350 degree oven for 30 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

CARROT CORN MUFFINS

1 cup shredded raw carrots (2 large)
1 cup yellow cornmeal
1 cup milk
2 eggs, slightly beaten
2 tablespoons salad oil
1 cup unsifted all-purpose flour

2 1/2 teaspoons baking powder

1 teaspoon salt

In medium bowl combine carrots and cornmeal. Heat milk to boiling and add to bowl. Let mixture cool to room temperature. Add eggs and oil. Mix together flour, baking powder and salt. Blend into carrot mixture. Fill greased muffin cups three-fourths full, and bake in 400 degree oven for 20 minutes.

Makes 12 muffins.

FRESH CARROT-POTATO PANCAKES

1 cup shredded raw carrots (2 large)
1 cup shredded pared raw potato (1 large)
1/3 cup finely chopped fresh onion
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup unsifted all-purpose flour
2 eggs, slightly beaten
1 teaspoon salt

In medium bowl combine shredded carrots, potato and onion. Add remaining ingredients and mix well. Drop by tablespoon on hot greased griddle or skillet. Spread to form a 3-inch circle. Cook until golden brown, about 3 minutes on each side, turning once.

Makes 18 pancakes. Top with favorite syrup.

Food lore is garbled

Many stories of how foods originated are lost in antiquity. Others get garbled — or embellished — over the centuries. As a result, two, three and even more versions of the same story spring up, and we can only guess which is the right one.

Reuben Kay doesn't have that problem. He will be remembered correctly for having created the first Reuben sandwich for his poker-playing pals in Nebraska sometime between 1920 and 1935. It's interesting to note that the word sandwich got its name from another card player, the English Earl of Sandwich, who hated to interrupt his game for dinner.

Recently, we talked about "sitting above the salt," an old English custom. Salt cellars were placed in the center of the dining table, and VIPs sat on the side toward the head of the table (where the best foods were set) and the rest of the diners took the other side. The salt was sodium chloride: simple, white granules of common salt. It wasn't the iodized kind we use today, nor Rochelle salt, kosher, French sea or rock salt. There are many different salt sizes, shapes and purposes — also much folklore and superstitions about it. I've got much to tell you about this famous food seasoning in forthcoming articles. You can take it all with a grain of salt.

Sprinkle some on this next story about how the potato chip originated. We said it happened in Saratoga, N.Y. Someone else claims it was Saratoga Springs. We said it was an accident that a thin shaving of potato fell into some oil a chef was boiling; someone else claims it was done by the chef in

Cooking with metrics

Take me along cake flavored with rum

This delicious cake filled with chocolate pieces is excellent as a take-me-along, whether it be an outing, boating or any occasion. Measurements are given in both metric and American Standard units. Usually dry ingredients are measured in grams in the metric system. But food and utensil manufacturers have developed cups and spoons for both liquid and dry ingredients to make conversion easier for cooks.

TAKE ME ALONG CAKE

340 grams or 12 ounces semi-sweet chocolate morsels
500 milliliters or 2 cups chopped nuts
560 milliliters or 2 1/4 cups unsifted flour
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon baking soda
5 milliliters or 1 teaspoon salt
250 milliliters or 1 cup butter, softened
375 milliliters or 1 1/2 cups firmly packed brown sugar
3 eggs
250 milliliters or 1 cup orange juice
30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons rum

Preheat oven to 150 degrees Celsius (300 degrees Fahrenheit). In small bowl, combine chocolate morsels, nuts and 250 milliliters (1 cup) of flour; set aside. Combine remaining flour, baking soda and salt; set aside. In large bowl, combine butter and brown sugar; beat until creamy. Add eggs, one at a time, beating well after each addition. Alternately add flour-baking soda mixture with orange juice. Stir in rum. Gradually blend in flour-morsel mixture. Spread into greased 23 by 35 centimeter (9 by 14 inch) baking pan. Bake for about one hour or until cake tests done. While still warm drizzle with a rum glaze made from 125 milliliters (1/2 cup) sifted confectioners' sugar and 20 milliliters (4 teaspoons) rum. Makes one cake.

Conserves get zing from brandy

Flavoring of fruits with brandy goes back to early Rome and Greece when Lucullan feasts called for "spirits" in almost everything served. On a much less lavish scale, early colonists and westward-bound settlers continued to indulge themselves in the seasonal luxury of "putting down fruits in brandy."

Peach Amber Conserve is reminiscent of old-fashioned brandied peaches. Ginger brandy gives this conserve a special zing. Or the brandy may be omitted and ground ginger substituted.

Conserves are jam-like mixtures of at least two fruits, with nuts added and sometimes raisins. Bits of fruit are cooked to a translucent state in heavy syrup. The consistency of conserves depends on the fruit pulp rather than on the pectin in the juice. Conserves may be served like jam or as a meat or casserole accompaniment.

Peaches and oranges provide a sprightly fruit combination in this recipe. Unsulphured or light molasses is used for some of the sweetness and for the rich amber hue of this specialty.

PEACH AMBER CONSERVE

8 cups peeled, chopped peaches (about 10 large)
2 oranges
5 cups granulated sugar
1 cup unsulphured or light molasses
3 tablespoons lemon juice

2 teaspoons grated lemon rind
1/2 cup chopped blanched almonds
1/4 cup ginger brandy or 1/2 teaspoon ground ginger

First prepare the fruit. Peel pit, and chop peaches. Wash oranges, cut into quarters; remove seeds but do not peel. Chop oranges or put through medium blade of food grinder. Grate lemon rind and squeeze juice. Combine the fruits, juice, and lemon rind in large heavy saucepan. Simmer about 15 minutes, stirring occasionally.

Add sugar, molasses, and ground ginger, if used. Rapidly bring to boil, stirring until sugar dissolves. Cook rapidly until thick, about 20 minutes. As mixture thickens, stir frequently to prevent sticking or scorching. Add nuts the last five minutes of cooking. When mixture "rounds up" in the spoon or flakes from the spoon as in a jelly test, remove from heat. Add ginger brandy, if desired.

Ladle the hot conserve into clean, sterilized jars. Seal with standard canning lids or cover with 1/8 inch hot paraffin.

For added keeping assurance, conserves in jars with canning lids may be processed in a simmering water bath (180-185 degrees) for 10 minutes, with the water covering the jars 1 to 2 inches.

Makes 8 half-pints.

Gingerly Peach Conserve

Seasonings enhance seafood

It's difficult to imagine a single spice, herb, aromatic seed or spice blend which might not enhance the flavor of fish and seafood generally. For pungency one would use black, white or red pepper; ginger or mustard.

Add shrimp or crab boil, or whole mixed pickling spice to water in which you simmer seafood. When using mixed pickling spice, however, it is best to pick out the sweet spices — cinnamon bark, cloves, all-spice berries — unless a sweet-spicy flavor is desired.

Dust a fish to be broiled with garlic or onion salt and a liberal amount of paprika. Seasoned salt or seafood seasoning may also be used. Large fish are extra good if stuffed with a well-seasoned mixture. Celery salt, dill, fennel, thyme, curry powder or poultry seasoning are delicious flavorings for this purpose.

IN PARTS of the world where fish cookery is one of the fine arts, each housewife has her little fish-seasoning secrets and her battery of herbs and spices. In New England, where a great variety of fish and seafood has been available for generations, thyme is a favorite aromatic. It seems to bring out all the possible flavor a fish has to give.

THE WILLIAMSBURG WING.

A place of pride for those in need of nursing care.

When Americana created the Williamsburg Wing, they did it to add a further dimension to health care: elegance.

The Williamsburg Wing is so beautiful it's hard to believe it's in a health care center. But it is. It's special, even spectacular, but it is unquestionably a part of a health care center.

In the Williamsburg Wing, patients receive fine food served in a private dining room. Each room is magnificently decorated and furnished. The sitting room is pleasantly opulent. All over, the atmosphere is quietly, devotedly luxurious.

THE WILLIAMSBURG WING—for people who are accustomed to more. The Williamsburg Wing is not for everyone. It is for those with an appreciation of more tasteful living. It provides the best of two worlds—privacy, elegance and the special services of its staff—and the ready availability of the professional and therapeutic services of the adjoining Americana Healthcare Center.

Call us for an appointment to visit and inspect our accommodations, services and professional staff.

In Maine Township

U.S. money to finance extra police protection

Maine Township Clerk Philip Raffie said the township is planning to use federal revenue-sharing funds to provide increased police protection to unincorporated areas of the township.

The unincorporated area is served by the Cook County Sheriff's Police, but the township has been considering additional protection because of complaints by residents about rising crime.

Although the township's board of auditors has not taken action, Raffie said, officials are reviewing the budget to determine how much money is available in the revenue-sharing fund.

HE SAID township officials were concerned about the legality of using revenue-sharing funds to provide police protection, but were told recently that the funds could be used for that purpose. State law prohibits the township from levying taxes for police and fire service.

The township plans to contract for the increased police protection either with one of the municipalities bordering the unincorporated area or with off-duty policemen from the area, township officials said.

Des Plaines officials are considering the feasibility of providing police protection and other municipal services to parts of the unincorporated area on a contractual basis. There have been no meetings, however, between city and township officials.

Fred Braun, community relations officer for the county police, said at a recent meeting on township problems that the county does not have enough funds to assign more than two or three cars to patrol the unincorporated areas.

IN ADDITION to police protection, residents and area officials in recent years have expressed concern about housing deterioration and zoning problems in the unincorporated areas of the township.

Raffie said the township has established an advisory council to identify and help solve problems in the unincorporated area. He said he also has talked to County Comr. Harold Tyrell about possible changes in county zoning and building ordinances that he believes would be beneficial to the area.

U.S. Rep. Abner J. Mikva, D-10th, also has appointed a task force to look into township problems.

The unincorporated area of the township has an estimated population of 25,000 to 35,000 residents. The area is bounded on the east by Washington Street, on the south by Dempster Street, on the north by Central Road and on the west by the Tri-State Tollway.

Swine flu scare fading; 'mystery' probe goes on

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will never find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water.

"We still do not know what it is," he said. "We have been working quite diligently, but we still do not have all the answers."

He said that with the elimination of bacteria-related diseases, the possibilities still to be checked out include the viruses, fungus-type diseases called mycoplasma, and toxic chemicals.

Sencer said some tests have been conducted to determine if viruses such as those that cause influenza were involved. "We have no positive information on the virus connection at this time," he said.

THE VIRUS research was continuing in Atlanta and at the state's laboratories in Philadelphia and Sencer said Wednesday it may take another 24 to 48 hours before any conclusions (Continued on Page 3)

Open house Sunday at St. Mary School

by PAM BIGFORD

Despite numerous efforts to hold down spending in 1976-77, River Trails Dist. 26 will face a budget deficit in 1977-78 that could hit $250,000.

This prediction was made to the board of education in a statement Tuesday.

Sylvia Laue, finance committee chairman, said budget cutbacks, including increasing class size from 20 to 26 and closing Park View School, helped "enormously" in reducing the district's deficit. However, the budget still will be $145,000 in the red by the end of the year.

That deficit can be covered by using almost all the money in the working cash fund, a type of internal bank account built up by the district, she said. However, there won't be enough money in 1977-78 to cover a $250,000 projected deficit for that year.

MRS. LURIE said the committee recommended that a citizen's committee be formed this winter to decide whether financial conditions have improved or whether the district should look into making more cutbacks or holding a tax referendum.

Business Mgr. Ralph Beaudoin said that by raising the district's tax rate to the state-allowed maximum, the district would come very close to breaking even in 1978-79.

The district's present total tax rate is $2.03 per $100 equalized assessed valuation, he said. Voters by referendum could raise that to $2.65.

The committee explained that the district will do all it can to hold down expenditures, but that the district has little control over revenue, particularly state aid.

THE STATEMENT listed ways in which the district's revenue is affected:

- Assessed valuation. This should continue to grow because of "inflation and the gradual development of open-space areas." The committee said, however, that "economy and politics" will have an effect on this prediction.

- State aid. Committee members said this is difficult to predict because of "political and financial conditions Downstate." Last year the state gave school districts only 95 per cent of what they were promised. The Illinois Office of Education is predicting districts will receive 90 per cent of the aid originally expected for 1976-77. The committee said a 5 per cent difference means $75,000 to the district.

- Declining enrollment. This "remains the major threat to district revenues," because the method of determining state aid "causes our income to drop much faster than our expenses as our enrollment falls," committee members said.

The committee said the rate of decline has been 5.5 per cent of the student population, but this may be slowed if there are major new housing developments in the next few years.

The finance committee said expenditures will be kept to a minimum this year in several areas, including:

- Building and equipment improvements. Heating and lighting systems will be improved to use energy more efficiently. Some improvements are (Continued on Page 5)

Fast-acting gates add 'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM IS designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

This pair muscles the path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filippino of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs

many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filippino, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filippino said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPINO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Cowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filippino were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

$14 million lawsuit filed by Teamsters

The Central States Teamsters Pension Fund filed a $14 million damage suit in Chicago Wednesday charging five firms tried to defraud it of more than $7 million in life insurance premiums. The federal court suit charged a complicated scheme among the defendants to guarantee life insurance coverage for 180,000 union members and then use the premiums as "high venture capital" instead of investing it safely. The $14 billion pension fund has been under fire for years, accused of making reckless real estate investments, often with reputed crime syndicate figures.

'Bomber' robs bank

A woman who said she had a bomb in her purse robbed the Chicago Federal Savings and Loan Assn in the city's Loop Wednesday of between $1,500 and $2,000, bank officials said. Martin Paltzer, senior vice president of the association, said the woman gave a teller a note at about 12:30 p.m., saying: "I have a bomb in my purse. Give me your hundreds and fifties." The teller handed over the money and the woman walked quickly from the office, Paltzer said. Police said they are looking for a woman in her 20s and two men in connection with the robbery.

'Daley aided racial woes'

Cops want 'dead' broker

Chicago police said Wednesday they would like to talk to former stock broker Estell Blevins about his identification of a corpse in April as that of himself, but because local officials said they have no reason to look for him, he comes and goes here freely. Blevins granted an interview Monday to Clearwater Sun reporter Linda Parker at his Clearwater Beach condominium apartment, but refused to discuss the circumstances surrounding his disappearance last March. "To talk about (the events) would highly jeopardize the lives of myself and my wife," he said. Blevins has made no great effort to disguise himself and still drives a flashy orange-red sports car with Tennessee license plates registered in his name with an address in Newport, Tenn.

Flu shot program delayed 7 weeks

Swine flu immunization will start at least seven or eight weeks behind schedule in Illinois, the Illinois Public Health Dept. said Wednesday. The program was to have begun this month for persons categorized as high-risk individuals, Director Joyce Lashof said. But problems in the testing program and debates over the question of liability for any injury caused by the vaccine have delayed distribution. It now appears the vaccine will not be available from the U.S. Public Health Service until September and that administration will not begin before early October, Mrs. Lashof said.

Millionaire drawing Aug. 20

One of 66 contestants will walk away from the Illinois State Fair Aug. 20 with a patriotic sum of $1,001,776 — courtesy of the Illinois State Lottery. Ten finalists will be chosen by drawing from among the 66 persons who won previous state lottery Bicentennial contests. Those 10 will be assigned a post position in a previously run horse race. The finalist with a post position matching that of the race winner will win at least $50,000 a year for the next 20 years. Second place will win $101,776 while third place wins $21,776, fourth, $11,776 and fifth, $1,776.

3 escapees recaptured

Three prisoners using a saw blade apparently smuggled to them escaped from the Champaign County Jail during the night Tuesday and all were recaptured about four hours after their flight was discovered. Robert Freeman, 21, held for Clinton County on theft charges, and David Dorsey, 23, Champaign, charged with attempted rape, were captured while they were walking along a railroad track where they were spotted by a suspicious citizen. Kenneth Laws, held for return to Tennessee where he had escaped from a state prison at Nashville, was found walking along a county road. Investigators indicated the men had sawed through the bars of their second floor cell and lowered themselves from a window on a rope made of blankets. Their escape was discovered about 7 a.m.

Ticket-writing slowdown rapped

Officials of Troopers Lodge 41 of the Fraternal Order of Police Wednesday urged state policemen to end their ticket-writing slowdown. A representative for the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement, however, said the slowdown had virtually ended even before the FOP statement was issued. Troopers in some areas of the state nearly a month ago began writing fewer than normal speeding tickets in an effort to draw attention to wage increases they said were inadequate. State police officials say the fiscal 1977 appropriation bill signed recently by Gov. Daniel Walker will permit raises of about 4 per cent for experienced troopers.

Grade-crossing panel formed

The Illinois Commerce Commission and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation established a grade-crossing council Wednesday to educate Illinois residents on the dangers of not obeying warning signs at railroad crossings. The council is part of a $13.3 million grade-crossing safety program announced by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday. The council will institute Operation Lifesaver — a program of engineering, education and enforcement designed to reduce train-automobile accidents at Illinois' 16,000 grade crossings. About 65 per cent of Illinois' railroad crossing accidents occur at crossings with automatic warning devices.

$250,000 deficit likely in Dist. 26

required to meet state safety standards.

The district will institute a 5-cent tax levy to finance the safety improvements. The tax money will go into the operations, building and maintenance fund. No referendum is required for the levy.

• Building and equipment maintenance. The committee, however, urged the administration to watch for danger signs that minimum maintenance is leading to more expensive major repairs.

• Instruction. Tighter controls have been placed on supplies, requiring teachers to use existing supplies instead of new ones.

The committee recommends developing "a more ambitious volunteer program" in the schools "to maintain some of the instructional gains of past years." The committee said personnel cuts made earlier for 1976-77 were extensive and that it "means more work for those who remain."

DESPITE STAFF CUTS, the committee maintains that the instructional program will continue intact in 1976-77, except for summer school, which will be run on a tuition basis rather than free.

Some spending increases are required by the state, which mandates increasingly expensive programs in special education, career education and pupil support personnel, the committee stated. The state pays less than half the bill so Dist. 26 has "no choice but to pay the rest," it said.

The 1976-77 budget projects salary increases of 5 per cent for all personnel, including teachers. Teacher contract negotiations still are in progress, however, so the exact percentage has not been decided.

The committee report states that because personnel costs make up a large part of the budget, "salary changes of only one or two percentage points have a significant impact on the budget. If we are to make our plan work, we must keep salary increases to an absolute minimum in the coming year."

This office telephone works and looks like ours.

To the salesman who wants to sell it to you, there is no difference. Except he'll claim his office telephone system is cheaper than ours.

When your company is approached by a telephone salesman who isn't from the telephone company, he will want to install and hook-up his office telephones to our system.

And then sell it to you.

But before you buy, you might want to ask some questions that get right to the heart of the differences between his and ours.

What are the initial costs? What kind of maintenance back-up is there, and how is it charged? What kind of insurance coverage is there? What taxes apply and who pays for them? And do they guarantee to modify this equipment to meet future telephone company system changes?

Then, call in your Centel Communications Consultant and ask the same questions. We'll even do a free cost analysis for you.

If you decide to stay with the modern equipment we provide and service, you'll be agreeing with virtually all of the businessmen in town.

Maybe one good reason is that we're part of an established company that has assets of over a billion dollars. Central Telephone & Utilities.

Or maybe it's simply because nobody knows more about telephones than the telephone company.

Owner to ask county to buy Pal-Waukee

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester will ask Cook County to purchase and maintain the facility as a public airport because he can no longer afford the spiraling cost of operations.

Revenues generated from airport services are not enough to pay for maintenance of equipment and runways, salary increases for employees or safety improvements, Priester said.

As a privately-owned airfield, Pal-Waukee is ineligible to receive government subsidies although Priester and airport users pay "enormous annual taxes" to the federal government, he said.

THE 69-YEAR-OLD airport owner said he has no choice but to urge state and county officials to purchase the airport so that it may survive. He said he hopes to begin talks this week, although no date has been set.

The federal government may pay 75 per cent and the state will pay the remaining 25 per cent of the purchase price if the county is willing to take over Pal-Waukee, Priester said.

Priester said he wants the purchase agreement to allow him and his son, Charles, to continue to manage the airport for the next 20 years.

The county could impose a minimal tax to support airport operations but, more important, Pal-Waukee then would be a public airport and could receive government funding, he said.

"Only the public airports get government funding. I've tried to get the people in Washington to change their minds about private airports, but they won't. So, Pal-Waukee isn't going to survive unless it's a public facility," Priester said.

PRIESTER SAID HE has refused to sell the 260-acre site for the construction of a shopping center or homes even though he is under constant pressure from local developers.

"This must remain an airport because it's a major reliever of air traffic for O'Hare Field. The planes would be backed up across the sky if it weren't for Pal-Waukee, and I'm the only one who seems to care," he said. Priester said it's difficult to champion his cause when he's barely breaking even.

'Village, fire unit disannex not possible'

The Village of Wheeling cannot disannex from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District because of a 1965 court order, according to the district's attorney.

James Ryan, fire district attorney, said the court order specifically excludes Wheeling and the fire district from a 1965 state law allowing an area annexed to a municipality with its own fire protection services to be automatically disannexed from a fire district.

"As a legal point of view, there is a court order in effect. It specifically states that the 1965 law has no application to the fire district or the village of Wheeling," he said.

Wheeling Village Atty. John Burke had sent a letter to the fire district stating village officials believe Wheeling is not part of the fire district. Burke said that when the district was originally created in 1950 it didn't include the village of Wheeling. He said when the village did begin annexing land in the fire district, the land was not automatically disannexed from the fire district as required by state law.

WHEELING OFFICIALS are asking fire district trustees to acknowledge that the village is no longer under its jurisdiction and provide assurances of cooperation so the village can levy its own tax and operate its own department.

Ryan said he will notify Wheeling officials that the fire district cannot legally disannex the village.

Wheeling has a municipal fire department but does not levy a municipal fire tax. Fire tax revenues are collected by the fire district and returned to Wheeling on a contractual basis. A portion of the village is not in the fire district and does not pay fire taxes.

Wheeling officials are attempting to disannex from the district in an effort to increase fire tax revenues to the village. Wheeling Trustee William Hein has said tax revenues could be increased by at least $55,000 annually if the area of the village not in the district could be taxed.

black-belt karate expert, are a duo ready to protect any famous person visiting Chicago.

They admit they'd do almost anything to ensure their client's safety.

Big, bad bruisers

Pair muscles path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filipponio of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filipponio, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filipponio said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPONIO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take rides too well," Cowan said.

Fast-acting gates add 'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM IS designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

Swine flu scare fading: doctor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will never find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water.

"We still do not know what it is," he said. "We have been working quite diligently, but we still do not have all the answers."

He said that with the elimination of bacteria-related diseases, the possibilities still to be checked out include the viruses, fungus-type diseases called mycoplasma, and toxic chemicals.

Sencer said some tests have been conducted to determine if viruses such as those that cause influenza were involved. "We have no positive information on the virus connection at this time," he said.

THE VIRUS research was continuing in Atlanta and at the state's laboratories in Philadelphia and Sencer said Wednesday it may take another 24 to 48 hours before any conclusions (Continued on Page 3)

Rush-hour wreck nets 4-car pileup

Four cars were involved in a rush-hour collision Wednesday in front of the Wheeling Municipal Building, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Traffic on Dundee Road was tied up for more than 45 minutes as police guided automobiles on a detour through the municipal hall parking lot.

Police reported an eastbound automobile driven by 17-year-old Valerie L. Davidson, 38 Rohlwing Rd., Pala-line, flipped over after striking the rear of a car driven by Moshe Levy, 42, of 369 Temple St., Highland Park.

The Davidson car also struck an automobile driven by Anna M. DeViron, 34, of 721 Lakeside Circle, Wheeling, which was pushed into the rear of a car driven by a Buffalo Grove resident, 29-year-old JoAnne S. Lawrence, 1379 Larchmont Ln.

Miss Davidson was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and driving with an expired driver's license, Wheeling police reported.

She will appear at 9 a.m. Aug. 27 in the Wheeling branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Miss Davidson received minor bruises in the accident. No serious injuries were reported.

The Davidson car was destroyed. The Levy vehicle received about $600 worth of damage. Damage to the other vehicles was minimal, police said.

$14 million lawsuit filed by Teamsters

The Central States Teamsters Pension Fund filed a $14 million damage suit in Chicago Wednesday charging five firms tried to defraud it of more than $7 million in life insurance premiums. The federal court suit charged a complicated scheme among the defendants to guarantee life insurance coverage for 180,000 union members and then use the premiums as "high venture capital" instead of investing it safely. The $1.4 billion pension fund has been under fire for years, accused of making reckless real estate investments, often with reputed crime syndicate figures.

'Bomber' robs bank

A woman who said she had a bomb in her purse robbed the Chicago Federal Savings and Loan Assn. in the city's Loop Wednesday of between $1,500 and $2,000, bank officials said. Martin Paltzer, senior vice president of the association, said the woman gave a teller a note at about 12:30 p.m., saying: "I have a bomb in my purse. Give me your hundreds and fifties." The teller handed over the money and the woman walked quickly from the office, Paltzer said. Police said they are looking for a woman in her 20s and two men in connection with the robbery.

'Daley aided racial woes'

Cops want 'dead' broker

Chicago police said Wednesday they would like to talk to former stock broker Estell Blevins about his identification of a corpse in April as that of himself, but because local officials said they have no reason to look for him, he comes and goes here freely. Blevins granted an interview Monday to Clearwater Sun reporter Linda Parker at his Clearwater Beach condominium apartment, but refused to discuss the circumstances surrounding his disappearance last March. "To talk about (the events) would highly jeopardize the lives of myself and my wife," he said. Blevins has made no great effort to disguise himself and still drives a flashy orange-red sports car with Tennessee license plates registered in his name with an address in Newport, Tenn.

Swine flu immunization will start at least seven or eight weeks behind schedule in Illinois, the Illinois Public Health Dept. said Wednesday. Millionaire drawing Aug. 20

One of 66 contestants will walk away from the Illinois State Fair Aug. 20 with a patriotic sum of $1,001,776 — courtesy of the Illinois State Lottery. Ten finalists will be chosen by drawing from among the 66 persons who won previous state lottery Bicentennial contests. Those 10 will be assigned a post position in a previously run horse race. The finalist with a post position matching that of the race winner will win at least $50,000 a year for the next 20 years. Second place will win $101,776 while third place wins $21,776, fourth, $11,776 and fifth, $1,776.

3 escapees recaptured

Three prisoners using a saw blade apparently smuggled to them escaped from the Champaign County Jail during the night Tuesday and all were recaptured about four hours after their flight was discovered. Robert Freeman, 21, held for Clinton County on theft charges, and David Dorsey, 23, Champaign, charged with attempted rape, were captured while they were walking along a railroad track where they were spotted by a suspicious citizen. Kenneth Laws, held for return to Tennessee where he had escaped from a state prison at Nashville, was found walking along a county road. Investigators indicated the men had sawed through the bars of their second floor cell and lowered themselves from a window on a rope made of blankets. Their escape was discovered about 7 a.m.

Ticket-writing slowdown rapped

Officials of Troopers Lodge 41 of the Fraternal Order of Police Wednesday urged state policemen to end their ticket-writing slowdown. A representative for the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement, however, said the slowdown had virtually ended even before the FOP statement was issued. Troopers in some areas of the state nearly a month ago began writing fewer than normal speeding tickets in an effort to draw attention to wage increases they said were inadequate. State police officials say the fiscal 1977 appropriation bill signed recently by Gov. Daniel Walker will permit raises of about 4 per cent for experienced troopers.

Grade-crossing panel formed

The Illinois Commerce Commission and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation established a grade-crossing council Wednesday to educate Illinois residents on the dangers of not obeying warning signs at railroad crossings. The council is part of a $13.3 million grade-crossing safety program announced by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday. The council will institute Operation Lifesaver — a program of engineering, education and enforcement designed to reduce train-automobile accidents at Illinois' 26,000 grade crossings. About 65 per cent of Illinois' railroad crossing accidents occur at crossings with automatic warning devices.

Study group calls for conversion to public airfield

A report by the Chicago Area Transportation Study group calls for the immediate conversion of Pal-Waukee Airport from a privately owned to a public airfield.

"The possibility of the closure of Pal-Waukee Airport must be taken very seriously, especially considering the large number of aircraft based at the airport and its role as a primary general aviation reliever for Chicago-O'Hare International," states the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

"Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned and, therefore, not exempt from real estate taxes or eligible for state and federal grants-in-aid, it is in a difficult financial situation... land values and real estate taxes soar to levels that make it increasingly difficult to maintain and operate a privately owned airport at a profitable level," the report states.

THE REPORT recommends that until Pal-Waukee becomes a public airfield that the following be done:

- A master plan and financial feasibility study for future operation of Pal-Waukee Airport should be made to increase the possibility of obtaining federal and state funding. A local sponsor would be required to conduct the study and partially fund it.

- Municipalities bordering the airport (Wheeling, Prospect Heights and unincorporated Cook County) should consider more compatible land use adjacent to Pal-Waukee. Many homes, apartments and businesses currently adjoin the airport.

- That public funding for privately owned airports be considered in the future by state and federal governments. There are 15 privately owned airports for every public airport, and their continued operation is vital to air safety and traffic, the report states.

The study group, which is an agency of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, outlines the size and significance of Pal-Waukee Airport operation in the 90-page report.

The George J. Priester Aviation Service, Inc., provides aircraft storage, aircraft maintenance, fuel sales, flight training, aircraft rental and a charter service. There are five privately owned aviation businesses also located on the airport grounds.

THERE ARE 400 aircraft based at the airport, and more than 2,000 aircraft land and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

Patrons of the airport say they prefer Pal-Waukee over other nearby airports because of its proximity to Chicago and O'Hare Airport. The airport has a control tower, 5,000-foot runway and an instrument approach landing system for pilots, the study states.

The study states that northeastern Illinois airports, including DuPage County, Chicagoland and O'Hare, could not jointly absorb the current services provided by Pal-Waukee if the airport were forced to close down.

Owner to ask county to buy airport

year from fuel sales, hangar rentals, flight instruction and other airport services. The annual expenses of operating the airport amounts to at least that much money, he said.

Like most businessmen, Priester is coping with the inflationary cost of labor, equipment and utilities, increasing taxes and insurance rates.

HE HAS SECURED what loans he can from the Small Business Administration and Chicago banks, "but bank officials lend me the money reluctantly, not because our credit isn't good, but because they think I'm nuts for not wanting to sell the airport for other land use," Priester said.

Priester has asked federal and state governments to absorb the airport's electric bill and runway maintenance expenses. He has asked that real estate taxes be applied only to revenue-producing portions of the airport.

"If the government did that for us, they would be providing us with financial relief in the form of about a quarter of a million dollars each year," Priester said.

"That would be peanuts to them, but to us, it would be the difference between going broke and staying alive," he said.

Owners of the 400 aircraft based at Pal-Waukee and of the more than 2,000 planes that fly in and out of the airport each year pay a Federal Aviation Airport Use Tax, he said.

THE TAX APPLIES to the sale of fuel and the licensing of aircraft. It amounts to about 7 cents per gallon of fuel and a varying percentage on the licensing depending on the gross weight of the aircraft.

"We've paid more than a million dollars in that one federal tax alone during the past four years and have received no funding in return. It's taxation without representation and benefit, and it's killing us," Priester said.

A steady increase in airport business "has not begun to cover the raises that more than 150 employees here deserve," he said.

Repeated trips to Washington, D.C., and pleas to government and Federal Aviation Administration officials for financial relief have not paid off, he said.

ENTANGLED IN A web of concerns, Priester said he has done all he can and is turning to the county as a last resort.

"It saddens me to think about this, I've just been at this too long," says Priester who bought the airport in 1953.

"There's just no light at the end of the tunnel anymore and I feel like I've been beating my brains out for nothing," he said.

Street take-over task force urged

Wheeling Trustee John Cole has asked for the formation of a citizens' task force to discuss plans for village take-over of private streets in town-house and condominium apartment developments.

Cole asked for a meeting with representatives of condominium owners' associations "so we can get together and work out these problems." The meeting was scheduled for 7:15 p.m. Monday at the village hall, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

Village trustees last week met with about 75 residents of the developments to discuss street maintenance problems in the planned unit developments. Condominium associations represented included Harmony Village, Lakeside Villa, Tahoe Village, Cedar Run and Chelsea Cove.

The trustees agreed to begin negotiations for village takeover of private streets, including placing an assessment on homeowners in the developments.

Condominium owners have said they pay taxes at the same rate as other residents, but receive no snow plowing service, no street maintenance and no street repairs.

Wheeling village officials have recommended against village takeover of the private drives, saying the advantages outweigh the disadvantages. They said the village would have to hire additional men and purchase additional equipment to maintain the private drives.

Boys' Club lease OK'd by planners

A request by the Countryside Boys Club Inc., to lease one acre behind the village hall for use as a club site was unanimously approved Wednesday by the Buffalo Grove Plan Commission.

The commission added a clause to its recommendation to the village board, however, suggesting the village try to find another site before approving the proposal.

'Village, fire unit disannex not possible'

The Village of Wheeling cannot disannex from the Wheeling Rural Fire Protection District because of a 1965 court order, according to the district's attorney.

James Ryan, fire district attorney, said the court order specifically excludes Wheeling and the fire district from a 1965 state law allowing an area annexed to a municipality with its own fire protection services to be automatically disannexed from a fire district.

"As a legal point of view, there is a court order in effect. It specifically states that the 1965 law has no application to the fire district or the village of Wheeling," he said.

Wheeling Village Atty. John Burke had sent a letter to the fire district stating village officials believe Wheeling is not part of the fire district. Burke said that when the district was originally created in 1950 it didn't include the village of Wheeling. He said when the village did begin annexing land in the fire district, the land was not automatically disannexed from the fire district as required by state law.

WHEELING OFFICIALS are asking fire district trustees to acknowledge that the village is no longer under its jurisdiction and provide assurances of cooperation so the village can levy its own tax and operate its own department.

Ryan said he will notify Wheeling officials that the fire district cannot legally disannex the village.

Wheeling has a municipal fire department but does not levy a municipal fire tax. Fire tax revenues are collected by the fire district and returned to Wheeling on a contractual basis. A portion of the village is not in the fire district and does not pay fire taxes.

Wheeling officials are attempting to disannex from the district in an effort to increase fire tax revenues to the village. Wheeling Trustee William Hein has said tax revenues could be increased by at least $55,000 annually if the area of the village not in the district could be taxed.

"The need is so great for something like this in Buffalo Grove that for lack of anything else we should go ahead," said Comr. Howard Keister.

"It's a worthwhile venture, but it's a bad place for a worthwhile venture," said Comr. Burton Harris.

THE PROPOSED club site is behind the Emergency Disaster Service Agency's helicopter pad. It is located at the intersection of Lake-Cook Road and the proposed extension of Lake-Cook Road.

Commissioners said traffic from the future intersection would pose a problem for using the facilities and would prevent further expansion of the club.

"You're sticking yourself in this little dinky place on a major highway," Harris told Countryside president Norman Katz. "There's got to be a better place to put this thing."

Katz told commissioners he had looked at all possible sites in the village and found the village hall location the only one that could be leased at a reasonable price.

"WE'VE BEEN to the park district. We got down on our hands and knees with the park district," he said. "We would have been done with this thing eight months ago if the park district was a reasonable organization."

Katz said he tried to negotiate use of a farm building near The Crossings development, Arlington Heights and Mundelein roads. He was turned down, he said, because the park district wanted to use the building as a cultural arts facility.

The boys club has acquired the office building of the Cambridge-on-the-Lake condominium apartments for use as a club building. The club will pay $30,000 to have the building dismantled and moved to a new site. Moving expenses and leasing of the village property will be paid through fund-raising events and private donations, Katz said.

He said a site must be found before funds are sought.

Big, bad bruisers

Pair muscles path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filipponio of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filipponio, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filipponio said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPONIO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Cowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filipponio were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

Fast-acting gates add 'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM is designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will never find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water.

The Buffalo Grove Civil Defense Dept. has been replaced by an Emergency Services Disaster Agency that will be oriented more toward natural disasters than nuclear attack.

The village ordinance making the change is patterned after a 1975 Illinois law amending the scope of Civil Defense services.

The ordinance defines the purpose of the disaster agency as:

• Minimizing the effects caused by an attack or disaster on the United States or the State of Illinois, or both.

• Solving the immediate survival problems resulting from such attack or disaster.

• Making emergency repairs to utilities and facilities destroyed or damaged by such attack or disaster when authorized by either the village president or village manager.

• Conducting recovery actions including emergency management of resources and economic stabilization when authorized by the village president or village manager.

TRUSTEES AMENDED the ordinance to give full authority over the disaster agency to village Pres. Edward Fabish. Fabish objected last week to handing authority over to Village Mgr. Daniel Larson.

Larson said he thought the authority should be given to the village manager because he is at village hall daily and more readily available than the village president in case of emergency.

Costs burden Pal-Waukee owner

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester will ask Cook County to purchase and maintain the facility as a public airfield because he can no longer afford the spiraling cost of operations.

Revenues generated from airport services are not enough to pay for maintenance of equipment and runways, salary increases for employees or safety improvements, Priester said.

As a privately-owned airfield, Pal-Waukee is ineligible to receive government subsidies although Priester and airport users pay "enormous annual taxes" to the federal government, he said.

THE 60-YEAR-OLD airport owner said he has no choice but to urge state and county officials to purchase the airport so that it may survive. He said he hopes to begin talks this week, although no date has been set.

The federal government may pay 75 per cent and the state will pay the remaining 25 per cent of the purchase price if the county is willing to take over Pal-Waukee, Priester said.

Priester said he wants the purchase agreement to allow him and his son, Charles, to continue to manage the airport for the next 20 years.

The county could impose a minimal tax to support airport operations but, more important, Pal-Waukee then would be a public airport and could receive government funding, he said.

"Only the public airports get government funding. I've tried to get the people in Washington to change their minds about private airports, but they won't. So, Pal-Waukee isn't going to survive unless it's a public facility," Priester said.

PRIESTER SAID HE has refused to sell the 260-acre site for the construction of a shopping center or homes even though he is under constant pressure from local developers.

"This must remain an airport because it's a major reliever of air traffic for O'Hare Field. The planes would be backed up across the sky if it weren't for Pal-Waukee, and I'm the only one who seems to care," he said.

Priester said it's difficult to champion his cause when he's barely breaking even.

George Priester

About $5 million is generated each year from fuel sales, hangar rentals, flight instruction and other airport services. The annual expenses of operating the airport amounts to at least that much money, he said.

Like most businessmen, Priester is coping with the inflationary cost of labor, equipment and utilities, increasing taxes and insurance rates.

HE HAS SECURED what loans he can from the Small Business Administration and Chicago banks, "but bank officials lend us the money reluctantly, not because our credit isn't good, but because they think I'm nuts for not wanting to sell the airport for other land use," Priester said.

Priester has asked federal and state governments to absorb the airport's electric bill and runway maintenance expenses. He has asked that real estate taxes be applied only to revenue-producing portions of the airport.

"If the government did that for us, they would be providing us with financial relief in the form of about a quarter of a million dollars each year," Priester said.

"That would be peanuts to them, but to us, it would be the difference between going broke and staying alive," he said.

Owners of the 400 aircraft based at Pal-Waukee and of the more than 2,000 planes that fly in and out of the airport each year pay a Federal Aviation Airport Use Tax, he said.

THE TAX APPLIES to the sale of fuel and the licensing of aircraft. It amounts to about 7 cents per gallon of fuel and a varying percentage on the licensing depending on the gross weight of the aircraft.

"We've paid more than a million

Change to public airfield urged

A report by the Chicago Area Transportation Study group calls for the immediate conversion of Pal-Waukee Airport from a privately owned to a public airfield.

"The possibility of the closure of Pal-Waukee Airport must be taken very seriously, especially considering the large number of aircraft based at the airport and its role as a primary general aviation reliever for Chicago-O'Hare International," states the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

"Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned and, therefore, not exempt from real estate taxes or eligible for state and federal grants-in-aid, it is in a difficult financial situation... land values and real estate taxes soar to levels that make it increasingly difficult to maintain and operate a privately owned airport at a profitable level," the report states.

THE REPORT recommends that until Pal-Waukee becomes a public airfield that the following be done:

- A master plan and financial feasibility study for future operation of Pal-Waukee Airport should be made to increase the possibility of obtaining federal and state funding. A local sponsor would be required to conduct the study and partially fund it.

- Municipalities bordering the airport (Wheeling, Prospect Heights and unincorporated Cook County) should consider more compatible land use adjacent to Pal-Waukee. Many homes, apartments and businesses currently adjoin the airport.

- That public funding for privately owned airports be considered in the future by state and federal governments. There are 15 privately owned airports for every public airport, and their continued operation is vital to air safety and traffic, the report states.

The study group, which is an agency of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, outlines the size and significance of Pal-Waukee Airport operation in the 90-page report.

The George J. Priester Aviation Service, Inc., provides aircraft storage, aircraft maintenance, fuel sales, flight training, aircraft rental and a charter service. There are five privately owned aviation businesses also located on the airport grounds.

THERE ARE 400 aircraft based at the airport, and more than 2,000 aircraft land and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

Patrons of the airport say they prefer Pal-Waukee over other nearby airports because of its proximity to Chicago and O'Hare Airport. The airport has a control tower, 5,000-foot runway and an instrument approach landing system for pilots, the study states.

The study states that northeastern Illinois airports, including DuPage County, Chicagoland and O'Hare, could not jointly absorb the current services provided by Pal-Waukee if the airport were forced to close down.

Approval seen of low bid for Lake youth home

The low bid for a new Lake County Youth Home is expected to be approved by the Lake County Board Tuesday.

Joseph T. Henderson and Sons of Gurnee submitted the low bid of $785,897. for the facility.

The new youth home will be an 18-bed facility that will include a recreation area, school room, kitchen and offices. It will be built at the location of the current youth home, 3004 Grand Ave., Waukegan.

The youth home is a temporary holding facility for juveniles awaiting court appearances. The current home was built in 1956. An Illinois Department of Corrections report has labeled the building inadequate for detention.

Money for the new building has been accumulated over the past several years from surplus funds from the youth home tax levy, according to Millicent Berliant, chairman of the county's law and judicial committee.

Drawings of the new building will be displayed at the Tuesday county board meeting, Mrs. Berliant said.

Appointments made to commission posts

Howard Mendenhall and Burton Harris have been reappointed to three-year terms on the plan commission by the Buffalo Grove Village Board.

Mendenhall has been on the commission since September 1969, and Harris was first appointed in October 1971.

A new village ordinance passed in May grants three-year terms. Previous terms had been one year.

The board also appointed Jack Litz chairman and Marie Weber secretary of the environmental control commission. Herb Dorn's term on that commission also was renewed. The board accepted Joan Douce's resignation from the environmental commission. She has moved to California.

Barons win first in baton corps contest

The Buffalo Grove Barons won first place recently in baton corps competition in Hoffman Estates.

Winners in the solo competition were: Danny Sturniolo, first place; Lisa Smith, second place; Donna Fenney, third place; Diane Sturniolo, fourth place; Gina Mitchell, fifth place.

Sheryl Mitchell placed second and Gina Mitchell placed fourth in the fancy strutting contest and Diane Sturniolo placed fifth in basic strutting. Gina Mitchell placed second in modeling.

The corps is now at Notre Dame University in South Bend, Ind., for the national baton competition.

The $34 course fee includes basic drafting materials and instruction. For registration information call 223-6601.

Annex request sent to plan commission

A request for Buffalo Grove to annex 5.5 acres on the northwest corner of Arlington Heights and Mundelein roads and zone it for commercial development has been referred to the plan commission over the objections of two trustees.

James Otis, developer of The Crossings development at that intersection, plans to build offices, a service station and a restaurant on the site.

Trustee Clarice Rech said she opposes the proposal to build the gas station at that location. Trustee Dorothy Carroll said she opposes the plan because the village "should be careful" about zoning for commercial property along Mundelein Road since it will be a major road leading to the proposed village center.

Otis, of Otis Associates Architects, Northbrook, also is planning to build a 12-acre shopping center along Arlington Heights Road near the Alden Lane intersection.

New film, literature classes scheduled

The College of Lake County communication arts division is providing two new courses among its fall semester electives.

Rush-hour wreck nets 4-car pileup

Four cars were involved in a rush-hour collision Wednesday in front of the Wheeling Municipal Building, 255 W. Dundee Rd.

Traffic on Dundee Road was tied up for more than 45 minutes as police guided automobiles on a detour through the municipal hall parking lot.

Police reported an eastbound automobile driven by 17-year-old Valerie L. Davidson, 38 Rohlwing Rd., Palatine, flipped over after striking the rear of a car driven by Moshe Levy, 42, of 369 Temple St., Highland Park.

The Davidson car also struck an automobile driven by Anna M. DeVirion, 34, of 721 Lakeside Circle, Wheeling, which was pushed into the rear of a car driven by a Buffalo Grove resident, 29-year-old JoAnne S. Lawrence, 1379 Larchmont Ln.

Miss Davidson was charged with failure to reduce speed to avoid an accident and driving with an expired driver's license, Wheeling police reported.

She will appear at 9 a.m. Aug. 27 in the Wheeling branch of the Cook County Circuit Court.

Miss Davidson received minor bruises in the accident. No serious injuries were reported.

The Davidson car was destroyed. The Levy vehicle received about $600 worth of damage. Damage to the other vehicles was minimal, police said.

2 charged in 3 burglaries, linked to 35 others in area

A personal inscription on a coin collection was responsible for the arrest Wednesday of two men in connection with three burglaries Tuesday in Buffalo Grove. The men have also been linked to 35 other area burglaries, police said.

Buffalo Grove police reported that when Cook County Sheriff's police stopped a car Wednesday, the occupants carried a coin collection containing writing by Tamir Menachen, 680 Woodholow Ln., Buffalo Grove, whose house was burglarized Tuesday.

Arrested were Randall Silger, 19, and John Coleman, 18. Det. Robert Quin said Wednesday no addresses were available on the men, who "apparently have been living out of their car for the past two weeks."

The last address for Silger was 538 Woodfield Terrace, Roselle.

Quin said one of the men "was very talkative" and admitted to not only the Menachen burglary, but two others in the Buffalo Grove area Tuesday.

The two also are accused of burglarizing the residences of James Kelly, 956 Croftan Ln., and Humphrey Hoken Sit, 594 St. Mary's Parkway, Hoffman Estates.

The men also have provided investigators with information linking them with the other 35 area burglaries, police reported.

Quin said the men will be charged today on three counts of burglary.

Both Silger and Coleman are still in custody of the Cook County Sheriff's Police each on a $10,000 bond.

They will appear in the Buffalo Grove Branch of the Cook County Circuit Court at 11 a.m. Aug. 24.

Correction

Developers Albert Frank and Salvatore Blasamo will seek approval to construct a single-family or townhouse development on 32 acres in Buffalo Grove and not 5.5 acres as reported in Wednesday's Herald.

'Fees discriminatory'

New trash rates rapped by seniors

by TOM VON MALDER

Some Elk Grove Village senior citizens have charged that the new village garbage pickup rates discriminate against them.

The senior citizens, who all live in their own houses, want the same price break given to senior citizens in the Village Grove apartments, 1071 Cheekwood Ln.

"We feel the seniors who live in homes are being discriminated against," said Milton Barndt, 40 Woodcrest Ln. "We want equal treatment."

The 25-cent increase in the garbage pickup rates, which went into effect last month, will not apply for at least one year to the Village Grove senior citizen apartments, which still will be charged $2.25 a month per apartment. The exemption was requested by Village Pres. Charles J. Zetek. The new rates are $3.75 a month for homes and from $2.50 to $3.75 a month for apartments.

"PEOPLE HAVE come to me and asked how come the price break applies to them (at Village Grove) and not to us," said Barndt, who represents about 50 families.

Barndt, who is president of the Elk Grove Park District seniors club, said the Village Grove complex, not its residents, is billed for garbage pickup.

The village picks up less garbage from houses occupied by senior citizens than it does from family homes, Barndt said, therefore elderly homeowners should receive the same price break as apartment dwellers.

When he suggested holding the line on pickup costs for the Village Grove residents, Zetek said his plan would help an easily recognizable group of seniors.

BUT THE administrative cost of identifying other elderly customers would be too high, he said, denying that the price break was "prejudiced."

Trustee Nanci L. Vanderweel said this week she still is critical of the Village Grove plan. She said all senior citizens should be given the same chance at the cost savings.

Barndt, who is writing a letter of protest to the village board, said the senior citizens would be willing to help the village identify elderly customers who should receive lower garbage rates. He estimated there are three senior citizen families to a block — about every fifth home in the village.

Although it did not specify the ages of Elk Grove Village's homeowners, a 1974 special census showed that the ratio of elderly to the total population is about one to 25. The census listed 983 residents 60 years of age or older and a total population of 25,303.

Swine flu scare fading;
'mystery' probe goes on

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will never find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water.

"We still do not know what it is," he said. "We have been working quite diligently, but we still do not have all the answers."

He said that with the elimination of bacteria-related diseases, the possibilities still to be checked out include the viruses, fungus-type diseases called mycoplasma, and toxic chemicals.

Sencer said some tests have been conducted to determine if viruses such as those that cause influenza were involved. "We have no positive information on the virus connection at this time," he said.

THE VIRUS research was continuing in Atlanta and at the state's laboratories in Philadelphia and Sencer said Wednesday it may take another 24 to 48 hours before any conclusions

Owner to ask county to buy airport

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester will ask Cook County to purchase and maintain the facility as a public airfield because he can no longer afford the spiraling cost of operations.

Revenues generated from airport services are not enough to pay for maintenance of equipment and runways, salary increases for employees or safety improvements, Priester said.

As a privately-owned airfield, Pal-Waukee is ineligible to receive government subsidies although Priester and airport users pay "enormous annual taxes" to the federal government, he said.

THE 60-YEAR-OLD airport owner said he has no choice but to urge state and county officials to purchase the airport so that it may survive. He said he hopes to begin talks this week, although no date has been set.

The federal government may pay 75 per cent and the state will pay the remaining 25 per cent of the purchase price if the county is willing to take over Pal-Waukee, Priester said.

Priester said he wants the purchase

Fast-acting gates add
'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM IS designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

This pair muscles the path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filipponio of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs

many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filipponio, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

erent," Filipponio said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPONIO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Cowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filipponio were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

"WE WERE STANDING at the bottom of the stage during his concerts at the Chicago Stadium. We slept on

Change to public airfield urged

A study by the Cook County Area Transportation Authority calls for the transfer of ownership of Pal-Waukee Airport from a privately owned to a public airfield.

The possibility of the closure of Pal-Waukee Airport must be taken very seriously, a report considering the future of the airport and the role of the airport in the area as a primary general aviation field for Chicago-O'Hare International. It is the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned and therefore not exempt from real estate taxes on eligible for state and federal grants and it is in a difficult financial situation. By its taxes and real estate taxes, it is not able to maintain and operate a privately owned airport at a profitable level, the report states.

THE REPORT recommends that Pal-Waukee Airport become a public airport and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

Patrons of the airport say they prefer Pal-Waukee over other nearby airports because of its proximity to Chicago and O'Hare Airport. The airport has a control tower, 5,000-foot runway and an instrument approach landing system for pilots, the study states.

The study states that northeastern Illinois airports, including DuPage County, Cook County and O'Hare, could not jointly absorb the current services provided by Pal-Waukee if the airport were forced to close down.

homes, apartments and businesses currently adjoin the airport.

That public funding for privately owned airports be considered in the future by state and federal governments. There are 15 privately owned airports for every public airport, and their continued operation is vital to air safety and traffic, the report states.

The study group, which is an agency of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, outlines the size and significance of Pal-Waukee Airport operation in the 90-page report.

The George J. Priester Aviation Service Inc., provides aircraft storage, aircraft maintenance, fuel sales, flight training, aircraft rental and a charter service. There are five privately owned aviation businesses also located on the airport grounds.

THERE ARE 400 aircraft based at the airport and more than 2,000 aircraft land and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

agreement to allow him and his son, Charles, to continue to manage the airport for the next 20 years.

The county could impose a minimal tax to support airport operations but, more important, Pal-Waukee then would be a public airport and could receive government funding, he said.

"Only the public airports get government funding. I've tried to get the people in Washington to change their minds about private airports, but they won't. So, Pal-Waukee isn't going to survive unless it's a public facility," Priester said.

PRIESTER SAID HE has refused to sell the 260-acre site for the construction of a shopping center or homes even though he is under constant pressure from local developers.

"This must remain an airport because it's a major reliever of air traffic for O'Hare Field. The planes would be backed up across the sky if it weren't for Pal-Waukee, and I'm the only one who seems to care," he said.

Priester said it's difficult to champion his cause when he's barely breaking even.

About $5 million is generated each year from fuel sales, hangar rentals, flight instruction and other airport services. The annual expenses of operating the airport amounts to at least that much money, he said.

Like most businessmen, Priester is coping with the inflationary cost of labor, equipment and utilities, increasing taxes and insurance rates.

HE HAS SECURED what loans he can from the Small Business Administration and Chicago banks, "but bank officials lend us the money reluctantly, not because our credit isn't good, but because they think I'm nuts for not wanting to sell the airport for other land use," Priester said.

Priester has asked federal and state governments to absorb the airport's electric bill and runway maintenance expenses. He has asked that real estate taxes be applied only to revenue-producing portions of the airport.

"If the government did that for us, they would be providing us with financial relief in the form of about a quarter of a million dollars each year," Priester said.

"That would be peanuts to them, but to us, it would be the difference between going broke and staying alive," he said.

Owners of the 400 aircraft based at Pal-Waukee and of the more than 2,000 planes that fly in and out of the airport each year pay a Federal Aviation Airport Use Tax, he said.

THE TAX APPLIES to the sale of fuel and the licensing of aircraft. It amounts to about 7 cents per gallon of fuel and a varying percentage on the gross weight of the aircraft.

"We've paid more than a million dollars in that one federal tax alone during the past four years and have received no funding in return. It's taxation without representation and benefit, and it's killing us," Priester said.

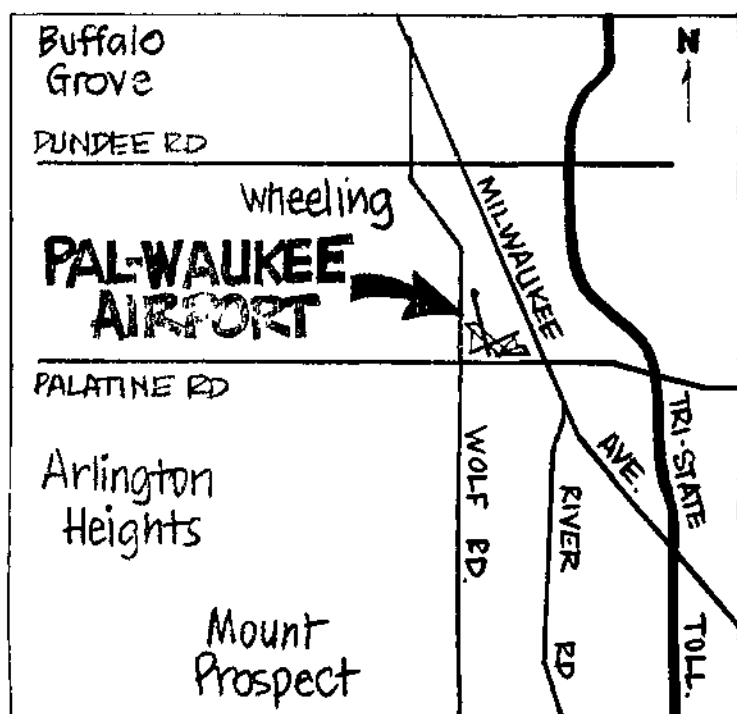

A steady increase in airport business "has not begun to cover he raises that more than 150 employees here deserve," he said.

Repeated trips to Washington, D.C., and pleas to government and Federal Aviation Administration officials for financial relief have not paid off, he said.

ENTANGLED IN A web of concerns, Priester said he has done all he can and is turning to the county as a last resort.

"It saddens me to think about this, I've just been at this too long," says Priester who bought the airport in 1953.

"There's just no light at the end of the tunnel anymore and I feel like I've been beating my brains out for nothing," he said.

Wife has coronary. man suffers stroke

A Des Plaines woman suffered a heart attack shortly after reporting to paramedics her husband had a stroke. Josephine Signore, 1431 S. Susan Dr., called authorities Tuesday night to report that her husband, Anthony, 79, was suffering a stroke.

But when paramedics arrived, Mrs. Signore, 72, apparently suffered a heart attack and a second paramedic unit was called to the scene.

Both were taken to Holy Family Hospital, 100 N. River Rd., Des Plaines. A hospital representative said Wednesday night that Signore is in stable condition and Mrs. Signore is improving, but is still in a coronary care unit.

Season tickets for the group's three productions are on sale for $7, a savings of $2 over the $9 total price for individual tickets to all three performances. Student and senior-citizen season tickets are available for $3.50.

The productions will be "Barefoot In the Park," Sept. 24, 25 and Oct. 1, 2; "Dr. Cook's Garden," Jan. 21, 22, 28 and 29; and "Play It Again, Sam," April 22, 23, 24, 29, 30 and May 1. The latter will be a dinner play.

All patrons will receive Masque & Staff newsletters and will be able to participate in all the group's activities.

Tickets can be ordered by writing Masque & Staff Inc., 523 Ridgewood Rd., Elk Grove Village 60007.

Auditions for "Barefoot In the Park" will be Sunday and Monday at the Elk Grove Village Public Library, 101 Kennedy Blvd. Additional information is available by calling 437-0679.

Wrobleski raps parks decision on wage hikes

by DAVE GALANTI

Hoffman Estates Park Board Comr. Nancy Wrobleski said Wednesday that she was "very angry" that a decision to raise salaries for Park Director Allen Binder and Recreational Supt. Edward Haag was not postponed until the full board could take part.

The salary increases were approved Tuesday by a 2-to-1 margin when Mrs. Wrobleski and Comr. Thomas Barber were unable to attend the meeting. Barber had previously notified board members that he would be on vacation this week and requested salary talks be postponed.

Mrs. Wrobleski said she was unable to attend the meeting because she was being treated at Northwest Community Hospital for a bleeding ulcer. She added she had asked Comr. Thomas McGuire to try to postpone discussion on the salaries.

SHE SAID McGuire told her he would walk out of the meeting if a vote came on the salary raises and was "really upset" that McGuire stayed at the meeting.

McGuire declined to comment Wednesday on whether he had agreed to walk out on the meeting. He said he cast the lone vote against the pay raises because he favored postponement of salary discussions.

During a 90-minute executive session before Tuesday's vote, McGuire said, he argued for a postponement but eventually agreed to continue because "the board has to continue to function" even with some members absent.

He added he was not sure whether the results of the vote would have changed had the other two commissioners been at the meeting.

THE COMMISSIONERS approved a 14 per cent raise, from $18,500 to $21,000 per year, for Binder and a 25 per cent increase, from $12,500 to $15,600 per year, for Haag.

Comr. George Rush said later the raises would bring the two salaries in line with those of other communities and recognize the work Binder and Haag had performed for the park district.

A sample contract for Binder is now before the board for discussion. The contract would be Binder's first and would continue current benefits like use of a park automobile for business purposes, use of a $600 administrative office expense allowance and free use of a district-owned house in the Winston Knolls subdivision.

The house was purchased by the district in 1972 at a cost of $31,000.

All clear issued on Knolls water

Residents of the Winston Knolls subdivision in Hoffman Estates were told this morning that they no longer must boil their water.

The notice came after village health officials tested the water Wednesday and found it free of contamination.

The residents had been warned to boil their water after a subcontractor of Allister Construction Co. broke a water main Tuesday morning. The company is building the Westbury project north of Freeman Boulevard.

Village crews notified the 750 families affected by the break early Tuesday, while other crews worked for about three hours to repair the water main.

Finance Director Keith Wendland said the order to boil water was a normal precaution taken whenever water pressure drops low enough to allow seepage from outside the water line.

Village Pres. Virginia M. Hayter said Tuesday's break was the ninth time that Allister Construction's work had interrupted water or sewer service to Winston Knolls. The company will be billed for the repairs, but an exact figure had not been calculated.

better idea. He beat the throw, and the Garibaldis won the men's softball finals

Mystery illness probe narrows

Swine flu scare fading: doctor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

Parks decline hockey center purchase

Hoffman Estates Park District officials have decided not to purchase the Woodfield Hockey Center, but say they will offer to play an advisory role in its management.

Park Comr. Bill Holmes said the district will offer members of its staff on a part-time basis to help the center owners establish recreational programs for Hoffman Estates residents. He said the center, 1130 E. Remington Rd., Schaumburg, could be used for hockey games and other activities during the off season.

But the district is not making a financial commitment to the center, Holmes said, and district supervisors will devote only "a minor amount of their time" to the project.

Comr. George Rush said the board now will await a decision from the hockey center owners. He said one partner present at Tuesday's meeting will approach the other two owners with the idea and report back to the park district by Friday.

HOLMES SAID the plan would provide recreation at "no cost to taxpayers." He said it is "nice that we can go in there and run a hockey program. It's like getting a baseball field for nothing."

Rush also supported the plan, but said he is uncertain of the extent the park district could use the facility.

"We don't know what the potential is for the center, but we do feel there's some potential," he said.

If some organization does not get involved in the hockey center soon, there is "always a possibility" that the center would have to shut down, Rush said.

The buildings and grounds committee of the district has met in closed session several times to discuss purchase of the center. A feasibility study was prepared and studied during the closed sessions.

Park officials did not say what the study recommended.

Center owners were not available for comment Wednesday.

Meet set for blood program aides

Volunteer workers for the Schaumburg community blood program will meet at 7:30 p.m. Wednesday in the Washington Room, Schaumburg Civic Center, 101 S. Schaumburg Ct.

The meeting has been scheduled to prepare for the community blood drive from 4 to 9 p.m. Aug. 25 at the Church of the Holy Spirit, 504 Iverson Ln.

Village residents' blood needs are ensured under the American Red Cross Community Blood Replacement Plan provided at least 4 per cent of the population makes annual blood donations.

Schaumburg has been a member of the community blood replacement plan since 1973.

This pair muscles the path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filipponio of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs

many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filipponio, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filipponio said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPONIO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Cowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filipponio were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

"WE WERE STANDING at the bottom of the stage during his concerts at the Chicago Stadium. We slept on

$14 million lawsuit filed by Teamsters

The Central States Teamsters Pension Fund filed a $14 million damage suit in Chicago Wednesday charging five firms tried to defraud it of more than $7 million in life insurance premiums. The federal court suit charged a complicated scheme among the defendants to guarantee life insurance coverage for 180,000 union members and then use the premiums as "high venture capital" instead of investing it safely. The $1.4 billion pension fund has been under fire for years, accused of making reckless real estate investments often with reputed crime syndicate figures.

'Bomber' robs bank

A woman who said she had a bomb in her purse robbed the Chicago Federal Savings and Loan Assn in the city's Loop Wednesday of between $1,500 and $2,000, bank officials said. Martin Paltzer, senior vice president of the association, said the woman gave a teller a note at about 12:30 p.m., saying "I have a bomb in my purse. Give me your hundreds and fifties." The teller handed over the money and the woman walked quickly from the office, Paltzer said. Police said they are looking for a woman in her 20s and two men in connection with the robbery.

'Daley aided racial woes'

Cops want 'dead' broker

Chicago police said Wednesday they would like to talk to former stock broker Estel Blevins about his identification of a corpse in April as that of himself, but because local officials said they have no reason to look for him, he comes and goes here freely. Blevins granted an interview Monday to Clearwater Sun reporter Linda Parker at his Clearwater Beach condominium apartment, but refused to discuss the circumstances surrounding his disappearance last March. "To talk about (the events) would highly jeopardize the lives of myself and my wife," he said. Blevins has made no great effort to disguise himself and still drives a flashy orange-red sports car with Tennessee license plates registered in his name with an address in Newport, Tenn.

Illinois briefs

Flu shot program delayed 7 weeks

Swine flu immunization will start at least seven or eight weeks behind schedule in Illinois, the Illinois Public Health Dept. said Wednesday. The program was to have begun this month for persons categorized as high-risk individuals. Director Joyce Lashof said. But problems in the testing program and debates over the question of liability for any injury caused by the vaccine have delayed distribution. It now appears the vaccine will not be available from the U.S. Public Health Service until September and that administration will not begin before early October, Mrs. Lashof said.

Millionaire drawing Aug. 20

One of 60 contestants will walk away from the Illinois State Fair Aug. 20 with a patriotic sum of $1,001,776 — courtesy of the Illinois State Lottery. Ten finalists will be chosen by drawing from among the 60 persons who won previous state lottery Bicentennial contests. Those 10 will be assigned a post position in a previously run horse race. The finalist with a post position matching that of the race winner will win at least $50,000 a year for the next 20 years. Second place will win $101,776 while third place wins $21,776, fourth $11,776 and fifth, $1,776.

3 escapees recaptured

Three prisoners using a saw blade apparently smuggled to them escaped from the Champaign County Jail during the night Tuesday and all were recaptured about four hours after their flight was discovered. Robert Freeman, 21, held for Clinton County on theft charges, and David Dorsey, 23, Champaign, charged with attempted rape, were captured while they were walking along a railroad track where they were spotted by a suspicious citizen. Kenneth Laws, held for return to Tennessee where he had escaped from a state prison at Nashville, was found walking along a county road. Investigators indicated the men had sawed through the bars of their second floor cell and lowered themselves from a window on a rope made of blankets. Their escape was discovered about 7 a.m.

Ticket-writing slowdown rapped

Officials of Troopers Lodge 41 of the Fraternal Order of Police Wednesday urged state policemen to end their ticket-writing slowdown. A representative for the Illinois Dept. of Law Enforcement, however, said the slowdown had virtually ended even before the FOP statement was issued. Troopers in some areas of the state nearly a month ago began writing fewer than normal speeding tickets in an effort to draw attention to wage increases they said were inadequate. State police officials say the fiscal 1977 appropriation bill signed recently by Gov. Daniel Walker will permit raises of about 4 per cent for experienced troopers.

Grade-crossing panel formed

The Illinois Commerce Commission and the Illinois Dept. of Transportation established a grade-crossing council Wednesday to educate Illinois residents on the dangers of not obeying warning signs at railroad crossings. The council is part of a $13.3 million grade-crossing safety program announced by Gov. Daniel Walker Monday. The council will institute Operation Lifesaver — a program of engineering, education and enforcement designed to reduce train-automobile accidents at Illinois' 16,000 grade crossings. About 65 per cent of Illinois' railroad crossing accidents occur at crossings with automatic warning devices.

Plat paperwork inaccurate

Errors stall Westbury disannex

Paperwork errors will cause a further delay in the disannexation of the Westbury subdivision, Hoffman Estates, from the Palatine Park District.

Roger Bjorvik, Palatine Park District attorney, has told the Palatine Park Board the proposed plat of the area to be disannexed does not include two small parcels along Algonquin Road as well as all of Algonquin Road between Barrington and Elia roads.

Without those properties the area to be disannexed would be split in two and half could not be disannexed.

Bjorvik said there may be another error in the plat because he can find no record that a 20-acre site along Algonquin Road south of Westbury was disannexed from the Palatine Park District earlier.

BJORVIK SAID he was not sure how long the errors will delay the disannexation. Both the proposed plat and the petitions signed by residents of the area will be returned to Hoffman Estates Park District officials for redrafting.

Hoffman Estates park officials have been organizing the disannexation because the area lies within Hoffman Estates' village boundaries.

Bjorvik said if the matter is delayed too long and more residents move into the area, it could mean additional names will be required on the petitions because the law requires that a majority of the area's residents sign the petition.

Allen Binder, Hoffman Estates park director, said the requirement only applies when the disannexation petition is filed in court. Subsequent increases in the area's population would not affect the number of required signatures unless the petition is refilled.

The Palatine Park Board, after meetings with the Hoffman Estates Park Board, adopted a policy more than a year ago that it would approve of disannexations of areas that are within the boundaries of other villages, if those areas seek to annex to another park district.

Park board members to increase to 7

Voters in the Hoffman Estates Park District will add two commissioners to the district board next April.

With barely enough commissioners present to take the action, the board voted 2-1 Tuesday night to increase its size from five to seven.

Comr. William Holmes has said extra board members are needed to conduct district business at the sparsely attended meetings. Only three commissioners — barely a quorum — have attended recent park board sessions.

Only three were present for Tuesday night's vote — Comr. Thomas Barber was on vacation and Comr. Nancy Wroblewski in the hospital. Holmes and Comr. Thomas McGuire formed the majority, and Comr. George Rush cast the dissenting vote.

Although the commissioners voted for the expansion, they said details of Coffee with council scheduled Aug. 14

Schaumburg trustees' monthly Coffee with the Council will be at 9:30 a.m. Aug. 14 in the courtroom of the public safety building, 1000 W. Schaumburg Rd.

Members of the village board of trustees are available the second Saturday of each month to discuss problems or suggestions with citizens.

Village Pres. Raymond Kessell will resume 8:30 a.m. to noon office hours in early September. Kessell does not attend the coffee sessions.

911 coordinator to address panel of businessmen

Jeff Rogerson, Illinois Bell Telephone Co. 911 coordinator, will be the featured speaker at the Aug. 12 luncheon meeting of the Northwest Suburban Assn. of Commerce and Industry.

Rogerson will discuss the 911 emergency telephone service expected to be in operation throughout Illinois by 1985.

Feasibility studies on the system were recently authorized by Schaumburg and Hoffman Estates village officials.

The Northwest Suburban Assn. of Commerce and Industry was formed by the April merger of the Schaumburg Assn. of Commerce and Industry with Hoffman Estates Chamber of Commerce.

The meeting will be at noon at the Lancer Steak House restaurant, 50 E. Algonquin Rd., Schaumburg.

It is open to association members and others interested in the local business community.

Schaumburg's annual Labor Day Septemberfest parade will include U.S. Rep. Philip M. Crane, R-12th, State Sen. David Regner, R-Mount Prospect, and State Representatives Virginia Macdonald, R-Arlington Heights, and Donald L. Totten, R-Hoffman Estates.

The Conant, Hoffman Estates and Schaumburg high school bands, the Guardsmen Drum and Bugle Corps and the Stockyard Kitty Band also are expected to march the one-mile parade route.

The parade theme is "Heritage Horizons," and will include floats and marching units depicting both the past and the future.

The parade will begin at noon at Campanelli Park, Weathersfield Way and Braintree Drive, and head west on Weathersfield Way to Spring-insguth Road, then south on Spring-insguth to Atcher Park.

Local organizations will staff game and refreshment booths at the park until dusk when a fireworks display will conclude the celebration.

Special events planned include a male beauty contest and the traditional dunk tank for local officials.

The Septemberfest committee is seeking parade entries from area organizations and businesses.

Interested persons are asked to contact Dave Duncan, Septemberfest chairman, 311 Timbercrest Ct., 804-5106.

Near double tax hike OK'd for library

Rolling Meadows taxpayers face an almost doubled library tax rate for next year, despite earlier promises to the contrary from library board members.

The board Tuesday approved a $276,500 budget for fiscal 1977-78, a 66 per cent increase over the current year.

Library officials estimated the new budget would increase taxes from 15 cents to 27 or 28 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

A successful referendum in February gave the board the authority to increase the tax rate to a maximum of 29 cents per $100 assessed valuation.

BEFORE FEBRUARY'S vote, board members had said they would not levy the full increase during the first year.

On Tuesday, library officials stressed that 17 per cent of the proposed increase would cover the one-shot payment of $49,000 for more land and library improvements and would not affect future tax levies. The rest of the increase, they said, is needed to hire four new employees, offer longer library hours and new services, purchase more books and cover higher operating costs.

The board Tuesday bought a 1.75-acre lot west of the library for immediate use as a 20-car parking lot and as the future site of a library addition.

The land was purchased for $37,000 from Kimball Hill, Hill Homes Inc. of Illinois, a major developer in Rolling Meadows. Another $12,000 is earmarked to construct the parking lot.

RODNEY DAHLIN, board president Tuesday said the total purchase and improvement cost would be paid in October 1977 when the library receives its tax revenue.

The four new staff members will enable the library to stay open Friday evenings and Sundays and also meet present needs and demands for new services, according to the officials.

A children's section assistant and adult services librarian will be hired in September 1977, and a library technical assistant and librarian will be hired the following January to expand extension services.

The $115,000 salary fund accounts for the largest proposed expenditure.

The budget shows a 5 per cent salary increase for present employees with an additional $27,000 estimated for the new salaries.

THE LIBRARY plans to purchase $49,000 in new books during the 1977-78 fiscal year.

Although $43,000 was budgeted for book purchases this year, the library spent only $9,000 of it because tax revenues fell short of the estimate.

Dahlin said the new budget also will allow the library to spend an estimated $5,000 on new equipment and

Mystery illness probe narrows

Swine flu scare fading: doctor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water.

"We still do not know what it is," he said. "We have been working quite diligently, but we still do not have all the answers."

He said that with the elimination of bacteria-related diseases, the possibilities still to be checked out include the viruses, fungus-type diseases called mycoplasma, and toxic chemicals.

Sencer said some tests have been conducted to determine if viruses such as those that cause influenza were involved. "We have no positive information on the virus connection at this time," he said.

THE VIRUS research was continuing in Atlanta and at the state's laboratories in Philadelphia and Sencer said Wednesday it may take another 24 to 48 hours before any conclusions

Owner to ask county to buy airport

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester will ask Cook County to purchase and maintain the facility as a public airport because he can no longer afford the spiraling cost of operations.

Revenues generated from airport services are not enough to pay for maintenance of equipment and runways, salary increases for employees or safety improvements, Priester said.

As a privately-owned airfield, Pal-Waukee is ineligible to receive government subsidies although Priester and airport users pay "enormous annual taxes" to the federal government, he said.

THE 60-YEAR-OLD airport owner said he has no choice but to urge state and county officials to purchase the

Fast-acting gates add 'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM IS designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

This pair muscles the path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filippino of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs

many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filippino, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filippino said.

Today

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPINO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Cowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filippino were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

Costs burden Pal-Waukee owner

Sale of airport to county sought airport so that it may survive. He said he hopes to begin talks this week, although no date has been set.

The federal government may pay 75 per cent and the state will pay the remaining 25 per cent of the purchase price if the county is willing to take over Pal-Waukee, Priester said.

Priester said he wants the purchase agreement to allow him and his son, Charles, to continue to manage the airport for the next 20 years.

The county could impose a minimal tax to support airport operations but, more important, Pal-Waukee then would be a public airport and could receive government funding, he said.

"Only the public airports get government funding. I've tried to get the people in Washington to change their minds about private airports, but they won't. So, Pal-Waukee isn't going to survive unless it's a public facility," Priester said.

PRIESTER SAID HE has refused to sell the 260-acre site for the construction of a shopping center or homes even though he is under constant pressure from local developers.

"This must remain an airport because it's a major reliever of air traffic for O'Hare Field. The planes would be backed up across the sky if it weren't for Pal-Waukee, and I'm the only one who seems to care," he said.

Priester said it's difficult to champion his cause when he's barely breaking even.

About $5 million is generated each year from fuel sales, hangar rentals, flight instruction and other airport services. The annual expenses of operating the airport amounts to at least that much money, he said.

Like most businessmen, Priester is coping with the inflationary cost of labor, equipment and utilities, increasing taxes and insurance rates.

HE HAS SECURED what loans he can from the Small Business Administration and Chicago banks, "but bank officials lend us the money reluctantly, not because our credit isn't good, but because they think I'm nuts for not wanting to sell the airport for other land use," Priester said.

Priester has asked federal and state governments to absorb the airport's electric bill and runway maintenance expenses. He has asked that real estate taxes be applied only to revenue-producing portions of the airport.

"If the government did that for us, they would be providing us with financial relief in the form of about a quarter of a million dollars each year," Priester said.

"That would be peanuts to them, but to us, it would be the difference between going broke and staying alive," he said.

Owners of the 400 aircraft based at Pal-Waukee and of the more than 2,000 planes that fly in and out of the airport each year pay a Federal Aviation Airport Use Tax, he said.

Pvt. Denis A. McGovern has completed Marine Corps recruit training at San Diego, Ca. . . . Airman Clarence J. Troop 280 camp out earns merit badges

An 18 mile canoe trip on the Namekagon River, in Spooner, Wis., and other outdoor activities earned members of Rolling Meadows Boy Scout Troop 280 merit badges and service awards.

Those who attended the recent week-long camp out at Camp Namekagon were Mark Langkan, Brad Carlson, Bill Henning, Tom Banker, Ed Goldacker, George Murray, John Kellerher, Paul Smith, Randy Pabich and Joe Zarembo.

Scout Leader Wally Zarembo said the boys who participated in the campout did their own cooking.

They also studied birds and wildlife and competed in archery and swimming. A water carnival ended the campout.

THE TAX APPLIES to the sale of fuel and the licensing of aircraft. It amounts to about 7 cents per gallon of fuel and a varying percentage on the licensing depending on the gross weight of the aircraft.

"We've paid more than a million dollars in that one federal tax alone during the past four years and have received no funding in return. It's taxation without representation and benefit, and it's killing us," Priester said.

A steady increase in airport business "has not begun to cover he raises that more than 150 employees here deserve," he said.

Repeated trips to Washington, D.C., and pleas to government and Federal Aviation Administration officials for financial relief have not paid off, he said.

ENTANGLED IN A web of concerns, Priester said he has done all he can and is turning to the county as a last resort.

"It saddens me to think about this, I've just been at this too long," says Priester who bought the airport in 1953.

"There's just no light at the end of the tunnel anymore and I feel like I've been beating my brains out for nothing," he said.

Jump in rate necessary: Dahlin

"We had to do it," Rodney Dahlin Rolling Meadows library board president said Tuesday.

Dahlin made the comment when asked why the board, after pledging a gradual increase, approved a budget expected to double the library tax rate.

Board members estimated that their $276,500 budget would require a tax increase from 15 cents per $100 assessed valuation to within a penny or two of the 29-cent limit approved by voters in February.

"Frankly, I was surprised at the total budget figures," Dahlin said.

"HOWEVER, WE need the $276,500 and that's what we must tell the city council. The money will allow us to provide the kind of services patrons are requesting," he added.

"The board has not reneged on its referendum pledge not to impose the maximum tax rate of 29 cents per $100 assessed valuation," Dahlin said.

"The figures are misleading," he added. Dahlin said the hike in the operational portion of the budget should account for an increase in the rate from 15 to approximately 21 cents per

Change to public airfield urged

A report by the Chicago Area Transportation Study group calls for the immediate conversion of Pal-Waukee Airport from a privately owned to a public airfield.

"The possibility of the closure of Pal-Waukee Airport must be taken very seriously, especially considering the large number of aircraft based at the airport and its role as a primary general aviation reliever for Chicago-O'Hare International," states the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

"Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned and, therefore, not exempt from real estate taxes or eligible for state and federal grants-in-aid, it is in a difficult financial situation . . . land values and real estate taxes soar to levels that make it increasingly difficult to maintain and operate a privately owned airport at a profitable level," the report states.

THE REPORT recommends that until Pal-Waukee becomes a public airfield that the following be done:

- A master plan and financial feasibility study for future operation of Pal-Waukee Airport should be made to increase the possibility of obtaining federal and state funding. A local sponsor would be required to conduct the study and partially fund it.

- Municipalities bordering the airport (Wheeling, Prospect Heights and unincorporated Cook County) should consider more compatible land use adjacent to Pal-Waukee. Many homes, apartments and businesses currently adjoin the airport.

- That public funding for privately owned airports be considered in the future by state and federal governments. There are 15 privately owned airports for every public airport, and their continued operation is vital to air safety and traffic, the report states.

The study group, which is an agency of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, outlines the size and significance of Pal-Waukee Airport operation in the 90-page report.

The George J. Priester Aviation Service, Inc., provides aircraft storage, aircraft maintenance, fuel sales, flight training, aircraft rental and a charter service. There are five privately owned aviation businesses also located on the airport grounds.

THERE ARE 400 aircraft based at the airport, and more than 2,000 aircraft land and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

Patrons of the airport say they prefer Pal-Waukee over other nearby airports because of its proximity to Chicago and O'Hare Airport. The airport has a control tower, 5,000-foot runway and an instrument approach landing system for pilots, the study states.

The study states that northeastern Illinois airports, including DuPage County, Chicagoland and O'Hare, could not jointly absorb the current services provided by Pal-Waukee if the airport were forced to close down.

Library board wrapup

Meadows Herald to be put on index

The Rolling Meadows Library will begin in September to index the Rolling Meadows Herald.

Within six months the library should have the beginning of an index, copies of the newspapers and perhaps microfilm, Librarian Judith Drescher said Tuesday.

Suburban Libraries United for Regional Planning is coordinating the project and conducting indexing workshops for the local libraries like Rolling Meadows that intend to take part in the new program.

Julia Bunn, reference librarian, will attend the workshops and start the indexing.

Circulation of kid's books up

Circulation in the children's room is at an all time high, according to Leslie Edmonds, children's librarian.

In the month of July, children took out 6,920 books, records, films, cassettes, slides, kits and periodicals. This is an increase over last year's July circulation total of 6,515.

The daily reading club in the children's room has 250 participants. The children have been reading and reviewing books and will be honored at an Aug. 21 awards party.

Wisconsin librarian visits

As part of an Illinois Regional Library council program during the recent American Library Assn. conference, the Rolling Meadows Library had a guest librarian work in its children's section.

She is Mary Jane Wiseman, head of the children's department in Neenah, Wis., who shared ideas on programming, selection and children's services.

Services brochure planned

The library is preparing a brochure describing the library's services for junior high and senior high school students. It is to be distributed in October.

Book sale scheduled

The Friends of the Library will sponsor a book sale Aug. 19-21 at the library.

Residents who wish to donate paperback or hardbound books may call the library, 259-6050, for pickup or deliver books to the library, 3110 Martin Ln.

Student poster contest

The library's Junior High Committee is conducting a poster contest. Students are making 50 posters to advertise the upcoming book sale, and the winner of the poster contest may choose $2 worth of books before the sale opens to the public.

Revised flood plain maps to be challenged by officials

Revised flood plain maps used to determine eligibility for federal flood insurance will be challenged by Arlington Heights officials as "defying common sense."

Trustee Frank Palmatier said the maps show that no buildings in Arlington Heights are affected by creek flooding.

"According to these maps, nobody with a building in Arlington Heights would be eligible for federal flood insurance. It completely wipes out the eligibility for the flood insurance," Palmatier said.

Palmatier, chairman of the Citizens Action Committee Against Flooding, said the new federal maps are not compatible with village-prepared maps of local flooding areas.

"THE NEW MAPS are based entirely upon computations. Ours are based upon actual experience dating back quite a few years. The new maps don't make sense, especially in the McDonald Creek area. They seem to have ignored it entirely," he said. The maps determine areas that qualify for the federal flood insurance program, which replaces the granting of federal Small Business Administration loans to cover flood damages. Many village residents received the low interest loans following flooding spawned by the "100 year storm" of 1972.

Before the maps are adopted as official documents by the U.S. Dept. of Housing and Urban Development, they must be the subject of a public hearing.

PALMATIER SAID the maps will be challenged at the administrative level before the public hearing, scheduled for Aug. 31 at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

He said he was hopeful the maps could be "corrected" before the meeting.

If the maps cannot be changed before the meeting, he said, "then we'll go the public hearing route."

Radio owner sues over antenna law

A ham radio operator in Des Plaines has filed a lawsuit in an attempt to prevent the city from requiring him to lower his 72-foot antenna.

The suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court by Walter Weber, 2555 Rusty Dr., asks for an injunction to prevent the city from requiring him to lower the antenna to the 35-foot limit outlined in the city's building code.

The suit also asks the court to find the height limitation in the building code unconstitutional, or to rule that it is not applicable to radio antennas.

The radio antenna was erected in April 1975, but Weber said city officials did not notify him until this year that the antenna's height violated a city ordinance. Weber said he was told he must obtain a variation from the city in order to keep the antenna at its present height.

Although the city's zoning board of appeals recently recommended the variation be granted, the city council turned down the request June 21.

City officials, in turning down the request, said they had received complaints from residents that the tower's height has caused interference and had reception on television sets in the area.

The Rolling Meadows Park District is accepting registration for swimming lessons Aug. 16-27 in the sports complex pool, 3900 Owl Dr.

The classes will be taught by Phillip Pardun, Rolling Meadows High School swim coach.

Classes will meet daily for 45 minutes, Monday through Friday.

Class times are:

- Tots, beginners and advanced beginners, 9:45 a.m.
- Tots, beginners, advanced beginners, intermediate and swimmers, 10:30 a.m.

Kid costume contest Aug. 12 at library

A costume contest for youngsters dressed as they believe fashion will dictate in 20, 30 or 40 years will be held Aug. 12 in the Rolling Meadows library.

In addition to the costume contest, Leslie Edmonds, children's librarian, has planned games and refreshments. The "Future You" party is planned from 1:30 to 2:30 p.m. at the library, 3110 Martin Ln.

Family pool passes available at complex

Family pool passes at $6 for the rest of the swimming season are available to Plum Grove Countryside Park District residents at the Kings Walk apartment complex.

The park district has arranged for residents to use the Kings Walk Pool at Euclid Avenue and Plum Grove Road now until Sept. 1. Residents may obtain the passes at the pool office.

The final session of swim lessons is scheduled for Monday through Aug. 20. Parents who wish to register their children may contact Park Commissioner Pam Dahl at 991-0827. The fee is $7 and lessons will be held at Kings Walk pool.

Arlington growth lagging behind estimates: census

by JOE SWICKARD

A preliminary census report indicates that Arlington Heights' growth rate is lagging far behind village predictions.

The preliminary report, filed Monday with the village, places the village population at 70,997, an increase of 1,794 persons since the last special census in 1972. Village officials had projected an increase of 4,600 residents, based on birth rates, construction of new housing units and annexations.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan said the figures "seem out of whack" and called for the village administration to double check the count through water bills, polling lists and school enrollment figures.

Ryan said the village population projections of between 74,000 and 75,000 residents had been in line with projections of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for water allocations.

"I AM VERY, very surprised at the figures," Ryan said. "It flies in the face of what I thought the development of the village had been."

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the central part of the village has been losing population as children leave home and the older families are not replaced with younger couples with growing families, according to information supplied by the census takers.

Although there have been more than 1,000 single-family homes and 730 apartment units added to the village since 1972, Asst. Village Mgr. Frank Charlton said the census has revealed the density is not as great as had been estimated by village officials.

CHARLTON SAID the village projected 3.9 persons per apartment house and 2.2 persons per apartment unit. The census indicates the rates are actually 2.2 persons per single-family house and 1.5 persons per apartment, he said.

The village has the right to challenge the census figures in writing by Aug. 20. Charlton said a preliminary oral challenge has been filed.

He said the "double checking" through village records is now under way.

"First we find out if the figures are right. If they are, then we see what they mean," he said.

The most immediate impact from the census will be the village's share of state motor fuel and income taxes. The village receives $10 per person from each tax.

THE ADDITIONAL funds will cover the cost of the census — $33,964 — with $2,000 left over this year. The village will get an additional $36,000 annually until the next regular census in 1980.

At least one trustee, Richard Durava, said the preliminary census figures indicate the village should reconsider some of its long range plans.

"We might be able to pull in our horns a little bit," Durava said.

Ryan said it is "premature" to start rethinking long range plans at this point.

"It doesn't represent a tremendous change," he said. "If the figures are accurate — and at this point I'm not ready to accept them as accurate — and are not just a temporary situation, then we might have to start thinking slightly differently."

The slower growth rate is not unique to Arlington Heights or the Northwest suburbs, Hanson said, but is part of a general trend of northern Illinois and Indiana, based on findings of the Census Bureau.

Wife has coronary, man suffers stroke

A Des Plaines woman suffered a heart attack shortly after reporting to paramedics her husband had a stroke.

Josephine Signore, 1431 S. Susan Dr., called authorities Tuesday night to report that her husband, Anthony, 79, was suffering a stroke.

But when paramedics arrived, Mrs. Signore, 72, apparently suffered a heart attack and a second paramedic unit was called to the scene.

Both were taken to Holy Family Hospital, 100 N. River Rd., Des Plaines. A hospital representative said Wednesday night that Signore is in stable condition and Mrs. Signore is improving, but is still in a coronary care unit.

Donkey baseball game set Sunday

When the umpire hollers "play ball" at 1:30 p.m. Sunday in the Rolling Meadows Whispering Glen apartments recreation area, it will be the signal for players to mount their donkeys.

Residents of Whispering Glen and the Mallard Lake apartments of Wheeling will compete in a donkey baseball game planned by recreation directors of both complexes.

The game is open to the community and will be held at Algonquin Road and Arbor Drive in Rolling Meadows. Admission is $1.

A first for village: Jones

Major electrical firm seeks annex, rezoning

by LUISA GINETTI

A major international corporation that specializes in manufacturing electrical supplies and printed circuits has applied to Palatine for annexation and rezoning of 38 acres at Roselle and Euclid roads, Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones said Wednesday.

Square D. Inc., Park Ridge, is planning to locate its international headquarters on the site, which was formerly a part of the defunct 365-acre Plum Grove Hills development, Jones said.

The plan commission has scheduled a public hearing on the request Aug. 31. Village officials also plan to hold a press conference next Thursday to announce more information about the office complex plans.

Company officials contacted Wednesday declined to elaborate on their plans and said the information would be released at the Thursday press conference.

"THIS IS OBVIOUSLY a first for Palatine and one in which we are very interested," Jones said. "It sounds like a good thing for Palatine. It's the kind of development you look forward to having because it will be a benefit to the tax base and it should stimulate the kind of growth we are looking for."

Jones said he does not expect opposition from the Village of Inverness over the proposed plans. He said constraints to be placed on the development if it is approved should prove satisfactory to Inverness officials.

The proposed area to be annexed was formerly the low density, commercial site for the Plum Grove Hills development. Plans for the commercial-residential complex were scrapped in February because of financial problems.

LEW DRAPER, developer of the site, instead proposed to the board and has received preliminary approval to build single-family homes on 70 of the 365 acres.

Village officials have received no other requests for annexation of the remainder of the Plum Grove Hills site, which is across from Harper College near the Hunting Ridge subdivision.

If the company gets approval to annex to the village, it will be the first international headquarters of a major corporation to locate in Palatine.

Village, Dist. 211 to meet on high school use plans

Palatine village officials and representatives of High School Dist. 211 will meet Oct. 4 to discuss and review possible architectural renderings on the use of the old Palatine High School as a municipal center.

The date was set at a meeting Wednesday attended by Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones, Village Mgr. Anton H. Harwig and Martin Plate, Dist. 211 director of research and information.

Village officials at the meeting presented Plate with a report on village space needs projected to 1990. The report, prepared with information furnished from all department heads, projects the village will need up to 50,000 square feet of space for all departments, including the police department, by 1990.

JONES SAID the village could need as much as 40,000 square feet in the near future. The village hall and police department currently occupy between 15,000 and 20,000 square feet, which Jones has said is grossly inadequate.

The village space report as well as a report on Palatine Township space needs will be used by Unteet and Associates of Palatine, Dist. 211 architects, in determining if the 1965 portion of the old high school can be utilized as a municipal center.

Both the village and township have been considering possible use of the building as a municipal center at the invitation of Dist. 211 officials. The school, 150 E. Wood St., will be abandoned next year when a new high school is opened in September 1977. The new school is located on Rohlwing Road north of the Winston Park subdivision.

Jones said the architects will study four functions for the 1965 portion of the building, which is about 73,000 square feet. The functions include general administration for the village, general administration for the township, police use and recreational use if the Palatine Park District decides to enter into the venture.

PARK DISTRICT officials have expressed no interest in acquiring office space at the building, but said they would be interested in using the gymnasium and outdoor fields.

Jones said he did not discuss costs of acquiring the building with Plate. No selling price has been established for the building by the Dist. 211 school board but the value of the 11-acre site without the building has been estimated at $1 million.

Jones said he still believes the building may be a worthwhile purchase for the government agencies if the price plus the cost of remodeling is less than the cost of building an addition to the village hall.

"I'm still in favor of investigating it and doing our homework on it so the board can make a decision," Jones said. "I'm still optimistic that we can work together to make this work."

HAMMERS AND NAILS and wood and plaster and manual labor — put them together and you've got the ingredients for a new house. This man is working on one of several new single-family homes now under construction near Rohlwing Road north of the Winston Park subdivision.

Fast-acting gates add 'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM IS designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

Mystery illness probe narrows

Swine flu scare fading: doctor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will never find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water.

"We still do not know what it is," he said. "We have been working quite diligently, but we still do not have all the answers."

He said that with the elimination of bacteria-related diseases, the possibilities still to be checked out include the viruses, fungus-type diseases called mycoplasma, and toxic chemicals.

Sencer said some tests have been conducted to determine if viruses such as those that cause influenza were involved. "We have no positive information on the virus connection at this time," he said.

THE VIRUS research was continuing in Atlanta and at the state's laboratories in Philadelphia and Sencer said Wednesday it may take another 24 to 48 hours before any conclusions (Continued on Page 3)

This pair muscles the path for the stars

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert, right?

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filipponio of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs

many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filipponio, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filipponio said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPONIO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Gowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filipponio were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

"WE WERE STANDING at the bottom of the stage during his concert at the Chicago Stadium. We slept on (Continued on page 9)

Inverness panel OKs 2 single-family home plans

Two proposed developments in Inverness, one for five single-family homes and another for 15, have been approved by the village plan commission.

The commission Tuesday recommended the village board approve plans submitted by Barrington developer Phil Knoll to build five homes on a triangular shaped seven acres bound by Ela Road on the east, Baldwin Road on the north and Baldwin Road on the south.

The plan commission also recommended annexation of the seven acres to the village providing potential draining problems can be solved. More than 600 acres of farmland drain into the area.

The commission also recommended the village board approve plans for 15 single-family homes on 24 acres of land north of Dundee Road, known as the Eli Paul property. Richard's Group of Illinois, Oak Brook, would build custom homes and sell lots for private construction of 44,000 square feet minimum. The homes would rely on their own wells and septic tanks.

Richards' Group purchased the 65-acre, 80-acre Bonneyglen subdivision west of Ela Road, between Freeman Road and Ill. Rte. 62.

Radio owner files antenna lawsuit

A ham radio operator in Des Plaines has filed a lawsuit in an attempt to prevent the city from requiring him to lower his 72-foot antenna.

The suit, filed in Cook County Circuit Court by Walter Weber, 2555 Rusty Dr., asks for an injunction to prevent the city from requiring him to lower the antenna to the 35-foot limit outlined in the city's building code.

The suit also asks the court to find the height limitation in the building code unconstitutional, or to rule that it is not applicable to radio antennas.

The radio antenna was erected in April 1975, but Weber said city officials did not notify him until this year that the antenna's height violated a city ordinance. Weber said he was told he must obtain a variation from the city in order to keep the antenna at its present height.

Although the city's zoning board of appeals recommended the variation be granted, the city council turned down the request June 21.

City officials, in turning down the request, said they had received complaints from residents that the tower's height has caused interference and had reception on television sets in the area.

Costs burden Pal-Waukee owner

by DIANE MERMIGAS

Pal-Waukee Airport owner George Priester will ask Cook County to purchase and maintain the facility as a public airfield because he can no longer afford the spiraling cost of operations.

Revenues generated from airport services are not enough to pay for maintenance of equipment and runways, salary increases for employees or safety improvements, Priester said.

As a privately-owned airfield, Pal-Waukee is ineligible to receive government subsidies although Priester and airport users pay "enormous annual taxes" to the federal government, he said.

The 69-year-old airport owner said he has no choice but to urge state and county officials to purchase the airport so that it may survive. He said he hopes to begin talks this week, although no date has been set.

The federal government may pay 75 per cent and the state will pay the remaining 25 per cent of the purchase price if the county is willing to take over Pal-Waukee, Priester said.

Priester said he wants the purchase agreement to allow him and his son, Charles, to continue to manage the airport for the next 20 years.

The county could impose a minimal tax to support airport operations but, more important, Pal-Waukee then would be a public airport and could receive government funding, he said.

"Only the public airports get government funding. I've tried to get the people in Washington to change their minds about private airports, but they won't. So, Pal-Waukee isn't going to survive unless it's a public facility," Priester said.

PRIESTER SAID HE has refused to sell the 260-acre site for the construction of a shopping center or homes even though he is under constant pressure from local developers.

"This must remain an airport because it's a major reliever of air traffic for O'Hare Field. The planes would be backed up across the sky if it weren't for Pal-Waukee, and I'm the only one who seems to care," he said.

Priester said it's difficult to champion his cause when he's barely breaking even.

About $5 million is generated each year from fuel sales, hangar rentals, flight instruction and other airport services. The annual expenses of operating the airport amounts to at least that much money, he said.

Like most businessmen, Priester is coping with the inflationary cost of labor, equipment and utilities, increasing taxes and insurance rates.

HE HAS SECURED what loans he can from the Small Business Administration and Chicago banks, "but bank officials lend me the money reluctantly, not because our credit isn't good, but because they think I'm nuts for not wanting to sell the airport for other land use," Priester said.

Priester has asked federal and state governments to absorb the airport's electric bill and runway maintenance expenses. He has asked that real estate taxes be applied only to revenue-producing portions of the airport.

"If the government did that for us, they would be providing us with financial relief in the form of about a quarter of a million dollars each year," Priester said.

Sale of airport to county sought

"That would be peanuts to them, but to us, it would be the difference between going broke and staying alive," he said.

Owners of the 400 aircraft based at Pal-Waukee and of the more than 2,000 planes that fly in and out of the airport each year pay a Federal Aviation Airport Use Tax, he said.

THE TAX APPLIES to the sale of fuel and the licensing of aircraft. It amounts to about 7 cents per gallon of fuel and a varying percentage on the licensing depending on the gross weight of the aircraft.

"We've paid more than a million dollars in that one federal tax alone during the past four years and have received no funding in return. It's taxation without representation and benefit, and it's killing us," Priester said.

A steady increase in airport business "has not begun to cover he raises that more than 150 employees here deserve," he said.

Repeated trips to Washington, D.C., and pleas to government and Federal Aviation Administration officials for financial relief have not paid off, he said.

ENTANGLED IN A web of concerns, Priester said he has done all he can and is turning to the county as a last resort.

"It saddens me to think about this, I've just been at this too long," says Priester who bought the airport in 1953.

"There's just no light at the end of the tunnel anymore and I feel like I've been beating my brains out for nothing," he said.

Change to public airfield urged

A report by the Chicago Area Transportation Study group calls for the immediate conversion of Pal-Waukee Airport from a privately owned to a public airfield.

"The possibility of the closure of Pal-Waukee Airport must be taken very seriously, especially considering the large number of aircraft based at the airport and its role as a primary general aviation reliever for Chicago-O'Hare International," states the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

"Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned and, therefore, not exempt from real estate taxes or eligible for state and federal grants-in-aid, it is in a difficult financial situation... land values and real estate taxes soar to levels that make it increasingly difficult to maintain and operate a privately owned airport at a profitable level," the report states.

THE REPORT recommends that until Pal-Waukee becomes a public airfield that the following be done:

• A master plan and financial feasibility study for future operation of Pal-Waukee Airport should be made to increase the possibility of obtaining federal and state funding. A local sponsor would be required to conduct the study and partially fund it.

• Municipalities bordering the airport (Wheeling, Prospect Heights and unincorporated Cook County) should consider more compatible land use adjacent to Pal-Waukee. Many homes, apartments and businesses currently adjoin the airport.

• That public funding for privately owned airports be considered in the future by state and federal governments. There are 15 privately owned airports for every public airport, and their continued operation is vital to air safety and traffic, the report states.

The study group, which is an agency of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, outlines the size and significance of Pal-Waukee Airport operation in the 90-page report.

The George J. Priester Aviation Service, Inc., provides aircraft storage, aircraft maintenance, fuel sales, flight training, aircraft rental and a charter service. There are five privately owned aviation businesses also located on the airport grounds.

THERE ARE 400 aircraft based at the airport, and more than 2,000 aircraft land and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

Patrons of the airport say they prefer Pal-Waukee over other nearby airports because of its proximity to Chicago and O'Hare Airport. The airport has a control tower, 5,000-foot runway and an instrument approach landing system for pilots, the study states.

The study states that northeastern Illinois airports, including DuPage County, Chicago and O'Hare, could not jointly absorb the current services provided by Pal-Waukee if the airport were forced to close down.

Arlington growth lagging behind estimates: census

by JOE SWICKARD

A preliminary census report indicates that Arlington Heights' growth rate is lagging far behind village predictions.

The preliminary report, filed Monday with the village, places the village population at 70,997, an increase of 1,794 persons since the last special census in 1972. Village officials had projected an increase of 4,600 residents, based on birth rates, construction of new housing units and annexations.

Village Pres. James T. Ryan said the figures "seem out of whack" and called for the village administration to double check the count through water bills, polling lists and school enrollment figures.

Ryan said the village population projections of between 74,000 and 75,000 residents had been in line with projections of the Northeastern Illinois Planning Commission for water allocations.

"I AM VERY, very surprised at the figures," Ryan said. "It flies in the face of what I thought the development of the village had been."

Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson said the central part of the village has been losing population as children leave home and the older families are not replaced with younger couples with growing families, according to information supplied by the census takers.

Although there have been more than 1,000 single-family homes and 730 apartment units added to the village since 1972, Asst. Village Mgr. Frank Charlton said the census has revealed the density is not as great as had been estimated by village officials.

CHARLTON said the village projected 3.9 persons per apartment house and 2.2 persons per apartment unit. The census indicates the rates are actually 2.2 persons per single-family house and 1.5 persons per apartment, he said.

The village has the right to challenge the census figures in writing by Aug. 20. Charlton said a preliminary oral challenge has been filed.

He said the "double checking" through village records is now under way.

"First we find out if the figures are right. If they are, then we see what they mean," he said.

The most immediate impact from the census will be the village's share of state motor fuel and income taxes. The village receives $10 per person from each tax.

THE ADDITIONAL funds will cover the cost of the census — $33,964 — with $2,000 left over this year. The village will get an additional $36,000 annually until the next regular census in 1980.

At least one trustee, Richard Durava, said the preliminary census figures indicate the village should reconsider some of its long range plans.

"We might be able to pull in our horns a little bit," Durava said.

Ryan said it is "premature" to start rethinking long range plans at this point.

"It doesn't represent a tremendous change," he said. "If the figures are accurate — and at this point I'm not ready to accept them as accurate — and are not just a temporary situation, then we might have to start thinking slightly differently."

The slower growth rate is not unique to Arlington Heights or the Northwest suburbs, Hanson said, but is part of a general trend of northern Illinois and Indiana, based on findings of the Census Bureau.

MSD deep tunnel project seals village well: Geick

Mount Prospect has been forced to shut down one of its 14 wells because construction on the Metropolitan Sanitary District's deep tunnel project has sealed it, Assistant Village Mgr. Edward Geick said Wednesday.

The well shutdown is not expected to have any immediate impact on the village water supply. Three other wells also are out of service.

"If we have a prolonged drought we could be in trouble," Geick said. "That is why the sprinkling ordinance is important now. It could make us or break us. So far, we've been lucky. The weather's been pretty good."

A village ordinance currently prohibits lawn, garden and other outdoor sprinkling on Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays. Sprinkling also is restricted between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m. on Tuesdays, Thursdays, Saturdays and Sundays.

WELL 10, at Rand Road and Gregory Street, was producing an estimated maximum of 200 gallons of water per minute before the deep tunnel construction began at the site in June, Geick said.

Two other village wells are out of service, undergoing routine maintenance checks. A fourth well, which was pumping about 210 gallons of water per minute, was shut because of its declining water level. "It got so low its declining water level," Geick said.

Before construction began, the village was warned about possible adverse effects the deep tunnel work might have on Well 10. "We were told by the construction company we would possibly have to abandon it because their grouting operation may ruin it," Geick said.

Grouting is a process by which a liquid cement mixture is pumped into the ground to solidify the tunnel shafts, said James LaRocque, secretary of the James McHugh Construction Co. in Chicago.

"The well is completely sealed off," Geick said. "There is no water flowing into the well in an amount that will replenish it so we can use it. It's pumping dry."

HOWEVER, LaRocque suggested construction on the $35 million deep tunnel project may not be responsible entirely for the well having gone dry.

"It could be a coincidence that the dry season came at the same time as the grouting did," LaRocque said. "At this point we're still investigating the facts. There has not been immediate evidence that the grouting has caused the problems with the well."

When completed, the deep tunnel will collect and store storm and sewage water and eventually pump it into the O'Hare Water Reclamation Plant under construction in Des Plaines.

The project is funded by the MSD with state and federal aid.

ROBERT ANSARI, the MSD's assistant chief of engineering construction, said he believes the McHugh Co. has taken steps to correct the problem. "It is in a shallow well and it's very possible the problem was caused by the grouting. But it could also be due to the dry weather," Ansari said.

Big, bad bruisers

by DIANE MERMIGAS

If you were rock star Elton John with thousands of starstruck teenagers trying to get a glimpse, an autograph or the shirt off your back, what kind of bodyguard would you need?

A football player or a karate expert,

Larry Cowan of Wheeling and Rocco Filipponio of Prospect Heights fit the bill. They're bruisers. Their job is to guard the bodies of the famous who visit Chicago. This week it was Elton John.

The pair first offered the service one year ago through the Chicago Limousine Service, which chauffeurs many entertainers around while they're in town. The stars took them up on the offer.

IT'S SOMEWHAT of a glamour job that is worth a hefty day's salary, and it's natural work for two men who are used to being "on the defensive."

Cowan, 34, was once a U.S. Marine Corps guard who was assigned to protect foreign diplomats. He played defensive back for the Los Angeles Rams football team in 1965-66 and for the defunct Chicago Fire football team in 1972.

He's built like a fireplug a 5 feet 8 and 187 pounds, and spends much of his time operating Foxie's Restaurant, a fast food spot in the Dunhurst Shopping Center at Elmhurst and Dundee roads in Wheeling.

Filipponio, 33, is a private karate instructor with a first degree black belt who weighs in at 275 pounds and stands 5 feet 10.

BOTH MEN KNOW how to take care of people who threaten the safety of their clients, if the situation presents itself. It seldom does, however.

"Most of the time it's a hysterical woman who is trying to get into the hotel room of someone like Frank Sinatra. We have to practically throw some of them out they get so belligerent," Filipponio said.

The job requires going to all extremes and doing all things imaginable — whatever the star wants and wherever the star goes. And that's not always easy.

Rock star Elton John left Chicago Tuesday after a two-week visit that included four concerts last week.

COWAN AND FILIPPONIO waved goodbye to him at O'Hare Airport Tuesday afternoon as his plane took off. That was one of the roughest two weeks Cowan ever had, he said.

It seems Elton has a fondness for amusement parks and made two lengthy visits to Great America in Gurnee where he insisted on hitting at least a dozen rides each time — some of them twice.

"It was on the roller coaster where I turned about 97 shades of blue. I almost died. I don't take to rides too well," Cowan said.

As Elton waited patiently in line for each ride, Cowan and Filipponio were busy fighting off throngs of fans who instantly recognized the rock star who goes nowhere without an eccentric pair of sunglasses.

Swine flu scare fading: doctor

HARRISBURG, Pa. (UPI) — Scientists eliminated a wide variety of bacterial diseases Wednesday as possible causes of the strange illness that has killed 22 persons who attended a state American Legion convention two weeks ago.

The cause of the mysterious disease remained a mystery but Dr. David Sencer, director of the National Center for Disease Control in Atlanta, said with each passing day the chances decrease that it is the start of a long-feared swine flu outbreak.

"It is possible we will never find out what caused it," he said. "It may be one of those one-time illnesses that strike occasionally." But he predicted its cause eventually will be found, "probably in the next week to 10 days."

The state health department raised its confirmed death toll to 22 Wednesday and said a total of 154 cases of the illness have been reported among the 10,000 persons who attended the convention two weeks ago in Philadelphia.

STATE AUTHORITIES said the disease apparently has not spread to people who were not linked with the convention.

Sencer said laboratory technicians working around the clock have found nothing of a bacterial nature including such illnesses as lassa fever and some of the more exotic diseases which have been mentioned in connection with the outbreak.

He also ruled out diseases carried by food and water.

"We still do not know what it is," he said. "We have been working quite diligently, but we still do not have all the answers."

He said that with the elimination of bacteria-related diseases, the possibilities still to be checked out include the viruses, fungus-type diseases called mycoplasma, and toxic chemicals.

Sencer said some tests have been conducted to determine if viruses such as those that cause influenza were involved. "We have no positive information on the virus connection at this time," he said.

THE VIRUS research was continuing in Atlanta and at the state's laboratories in Philadelphia and Sencer said Wednesday it may take another 24 to 48 hours before any conclusions (Continued on Page 3)

Police to outline protection for city

Cook County Sheriff's Police and Wheeling Police Dept. officials tonight will outline their proposals for providing police protection to Prospect Heights.

A special hearing will be held at 7:30 p.m. at the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St.

Both agencies, which have been negotiating contracts with the Prospect Heights City Council's public safety committee, will outline the kind of manpower, equipment and service they can provide to the city.

COOK COUNTY Sheriff Richard J. Elrod and Wheeling Police Chief M. O. Horcher are expected to attend the hearing.

The county has proposed charging the community $264,825 a year for one sergeant and 10 trained policemen providing around-the-clock service, seven days a week.

The estimated cost would include the purchase and maintenance of equipment, officer training, use of the county's radio dispatch, evidence technicians, narcotics and intelligence personnel.

The Village of Wheeling has proposed charging the new city $195,000 a year for full-time police protection which would include the use of the Wheeling Police Dept. vehicles, equip-

Fast-acting gates add 'crunch' to paying tolls

Motorists on the Illinois Tollway ran into some new problems Wednesday when fast-dropping "cheater gates" at toll plazas reportedly "judo chopped" the trunks of several cars.

Richard E. Blakely, executive director of the Illinois Tollway Authority, blamed the incidents on a "mechanical malfunction" and said the gates had been readjusted.

"There were six instances on the first day. But if you listened to the radio you'd think it was happening to every car," Blakely said.

The gates, which began operating in the automated lanes at four toll plazas Monday, are not supposed to lower until the car clears an electronic eye.

THE SYSTEM IS designed to let only one vehicle per toll pass.

But Wednesday, several drivers said the gates at the Devon Avenue plaza on the Northwest Tollway came down before their cars had cleared, hitting the autos' trunks.

Guards at the plaza urged motorists to hurry through the automated lanes.

Blakely said the prospects for faultless operation of the gate were "excellent."

The gates were installed to prevent motorists from driving through the automated lanes without paying tolls. By the end of the year, all 102 automated lanes at mainline tollway plazas will have gates. The system is expected to recover $2 million a year in tolls previously lost, Blakely said.

$250,000 deficit likely in Dist. 26

by PAM BIGFORD

Despite numerous efforts to hold down spending in 1976-77, River Trails Dist. 26 will face a budget deficit in 1977-78 that could hit $250,000.

This prediction was made to the board of education in a statement Tuesday.

Sylvia Lule, finance committee chairman, said budget cutbacks, including increasing class size from 20 to 26 and closing Park View School, helped "enormously" in reducing the district's deficit. However, the budget still will be $145,000 in the red by the end of the year.

That deficit can be covered by using almost all the money in the working cash fund, a type of internal bank account built up by the district, she said. However, there won't be enough money in 1977-78 to cover a $250,000 projected deficit for that year.

MRS. LURIE said the committee recommended that a citizen's committee be formed this winter to decide whether financial conditions have improved or whether the district should look into making more cutbacks or holding a tax referendum.

Business Mgr. Ralph Beaudoin said that by raising the district's tax rate to the state-allowed maximum, the district would come very close to breaking even in 1978-79.

The district's present total tax rate is $2.03 per $100 equalized assessed valuation, he said. Voters by referendum could raise that to $2.65.

The committee explained that the district will do all it can to hold down expenditures, but that the district has little control over revenue, particularly state aid.

THE STATEMENT listed ways in which the district's revenue is affected:

- Assessed valuation. This should continue to grow because of "inflation and the gradual development of open-space areas." The committee said, however, that "economy and politics" will have an effect on this prediction.

- State aid. Committee members said this is difficult to predict because of "political and financial conditions Downstate." Last year the state gave school districts only 95 per cent of what they were promised. The Illinois Office of Education is predicting districts will receive 90 per cent of the aid originally expected for 1976-77. The committee said a 5 per cent difference means $75,000 to the district.

- Declining enrollment. This "remains the major threat to district revenues" because the method of determining state aid "causes our income to drop much faster than our expenses as our enrollment falls," committee members said.

The committee said the rate of decline has been 5.5 per cent of the student population, but this may be slowed if there are major new housing developments in the next few years.

The finance committee said expenditures will be kept to a minimum this year in several areas, including:

- Building and equipment improvements. Heating and lighting systems will be improved to use energy more efficiently. Some improvements are required to meet state safety standards.

The district will institute a 5-cent tax levy to finance the safety improvements. The tax money will go into the operations, building and maintenance fund. No referendum is required for the levy.

- Building and equipment maintenance. The committee, however, urged the administration to watch for danger signs that minimum maintenance is leading to more expensive major repairs.

- Instruction. Tighter controls have been placed on supplies, requiring teachers to use existing supplies instead of new ones.

The committee recommends developing "a more ambitious volunteer program" in the schools "to maintain some of the instructional patterns of past years." The committee said personnel cuts made earlier for 1976-77 were extensive and that it "means more work for those who remain."

DESPITE STAFF CUTS, the committee maintains that the instructional program will continue intact in 1976-77, except for summer school, which will be run on a tuition basis rather than free.

Some spending increases are required by the state, which mandates increasingly expensive programs in special education, career education and pupil support personnel, the committee stated. The state pays less than half the bill so Dist. 26 has "no choice but to pay the rest," it said.

The 1976-77 budget projects salary increases of 5 per cent for all personnel, including teachers. Teacher contract negotiations still are in progress, however, so the exact percentage has not been decided.

The committee report states that because personnel costs make up a large part of the budget, "salary changes of only one or two percentage points have a significant impact on the budget. If we are to make our plan work, we must keep salary increases to an absolute minimum in the coming year."

Feasibility studies suggested

Panel urges conversion of airfield to public use

A report by the Chicago Area Transportation Study group calls for the immediate conversion of Pal-Waukee Airport from a privately owned to a public airfield.

"The possibility of the closure of Pal-Waukee Airport must be taken very seriously, especially considering the large number of aircraft based at the airport and its role as a primary general aviation reliever for Chicago-O'Hare International," states the report prepared in cooperation with the U.S. Dept. of Transportation.

"Because Pal-Waukee Airport is privately owned and, therefore, not exempt from real estate taxes or eligible for state and federal grants-in-aid, it is in a difficult financial situation . . . land values and real estate taxes soar to levels that make it increasingly difficult to maintain and operate a privately owned airport at a profitable level," the report states.

THE REPORT recommends that until Pal-Waukee becomes a public airfield that the following be done:

- A master plan and financial feasibility study for future operation of Pal-Waukee Airport should be made to increase the possibility of obtaining federal and state funding. A local sponsor would be required to conduct the study and partially fund it.

- Municipalities bordering the airport (Wheeling, Prospect Heights and unincorporated Cook County) should consider more compatible land use adjacent to Pal-Waukee. Many homes, apartments and businesses currently adjoin the airport.

- That public funding for privately owned airports be considered in the future by state and federal governments. There are 15 privately owned airports for every public airport, and their continued operation is vital to air safety and traffic, the report states.

The study group, which is an agency of the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, outlines the size and significance of Pal-Waukee Airport operation in the 90-page report.

The George J. Priester Aviation Service, Inc., provides aircraft storage, aircraft maintenance, fuel sales, flight training, aircraft rental and a charter service. There are five privately owned aviation businesses also located on the airport grounds.

THERE ARE 400 aircraft based at the airport, and more than 2,000 aircraft land and take off from Pal-Waukee each year.

Patrons of the airport say they prefer Pal-Waukee over other nearby airports because of its proximity to Chicago and O'Hare Airport. The airport has a control tower, 5,000-foot runway and an instrument approach landing system for pilots, the study states.

The study states that northeastern Illinois airports, including DuPage County, Chicagoland and O'Hare, could not jointly absorb the current services provided by Pal-Waukee if the airport were forced to close down.

Owner to ask county to buy airport sell the 260-acre site for the construction of a shopping center or homes even though he is under constant pressure from local developers.

"This must remain an airport because it's a major reliever of air traffic for O'Hare Field. The planes would be backed up across the sky if it weren't for Pal-Waukee, and I'm the only one who seems to care," he said.

Priester said it's difficult to champion his cause when he's barely breaking even.

About $5 million is generated each year from fuel sales, hangar rentals, flight instruction and other airport services. The annual expenses of operating the airport amounts to at least that much money, he said.

Like most businessmen, Priester is coping with the inflationary cost of labor, equipment and utilities, increasing taxes and insurance rates.

HE HAS SECURED what loans he can from the Small Business Administration and Chicago banks, "but bank officials lend us the money reluctantly, not because our credit isn't good, but because they think I'm nuts for not wanting to sell the airport for other land use," Priester said.

Priester has asked federal and state governments to absorb the airport's electric bill and runway maintenance expenses. He has asked that real estate taxes be applied only to revenue-producing portions of the airport.

"If the government did that for us, they would be providing us with financial relief in the form of about a quarter of a million dollars each year,"

Priester said.

"That would be peanuts to them, but to us, it would be the difference between going broke and staying alive," he said.

Owners of the 400 aircraft based at Pal-Waukee and of the more than 2,000 planes that fly in and out of the airport each year pay a Federal Aviation Airport Use Tax, he said.

THE TAX APPLIES to the sale of fuel and the licensing of aircraft. It amounts to about 7 cents per gallon of fuel and a varying percentage on the gross weight of the aircraft.

"We've paid more than a million dollars in that one federal tax alone during the past four years and have received no funding in return. It's taxation without representation and benefit, and it's killing us," Priester said.

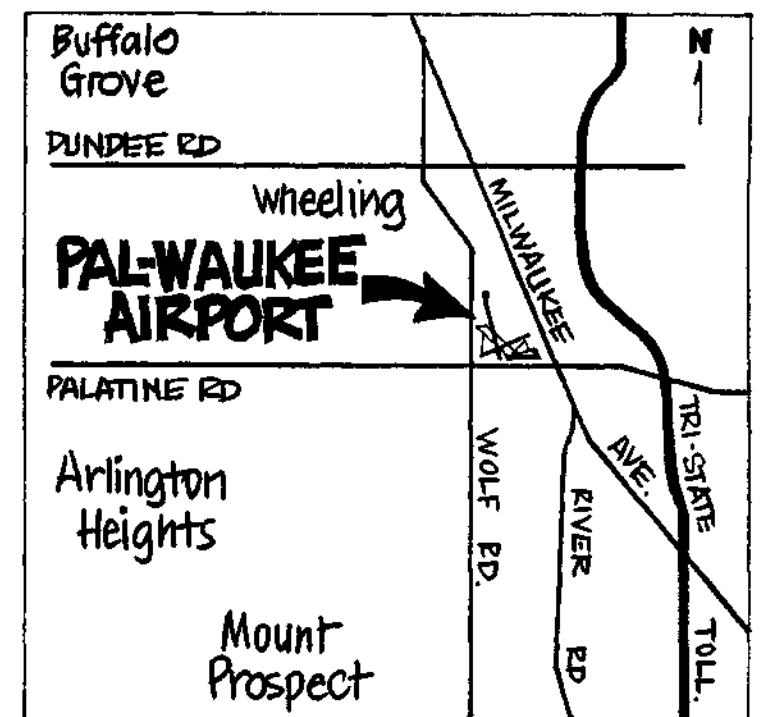

A steady increase in airport business "has not begun to cover he raises that more than 150 employees here deserve," he said.

Repeated trips to Washington, D.C., and pleas to government and Federal Aviation Administration officials for financial relief have not paid off, he said.

ENTANGLED IN A web of concerns, Priester said he has done all he can and is turning to the county as a last resort.

"It saddens me to think about this, I've just been at this too long," says Priester who bought the airport in 1953.

"There's just no light at the end of the tunnel anymore and I feel like I've been beating my brains out for nothing," he said.

Police to outline protection for city

ment lock up and communications systems. The village has not detailed the number of men who would be assigned to patrol Prospect Heights.

THE PUBLIC safety committee will question officials on their proposals and will conduct a second public hearing next week to entertain questions from Prospect Heights residents said Ald Edward Bryant public safety chairman.

The committee plans to recommend one of the two police contracts to the city council for consideration at the

Aug. 16 meeting of the council. Prospect Heights residents are receiving the same level of police protection from Cook County that they had before incorporating.

Sheriff's police officials have said that level of protection will continue without charge until the city has agreed to contract either the county or a municipality for police service.

Dist. 26 lunch price to increase 5 cents

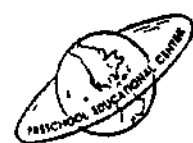

Lunch prices will increase 5 cents in River Trails Dist. 26 in 1976-77.

The board of education voted Tuesday to raise the cost of a student lunch from 45 cents to 50 cents to offset rising food and labor costs.

Business Mgr. Ralph Beaudoin said the lunch program is supposed to break even but in 1975-76 a $4,000 deficit was incurred.

Beaudoin said the 5-cent increase will raise about $8,000, which will make up for last year's deficit and will offset increased costs for 1976-77.

The district has kept the lunch at 45 cents for the past two years. The price is the lowest of any neighboring district, Beaudoin said.
